ANOTHER BIG SKI YEAR AT BOB ELKINS "SPORTSMAN SHOPS"
Where in Northern Michigan can you find more name brands & selections for skiing than at the "SPORTSMAN"
Not always the most expensive, but always THE VERY FINEST QUALITY FOR THE PRICE!

FISCHER Pioneer Recreational Pack...a top value ski outfit!

There's just no other way to call it Silverglass Pioneer gives you—dollar for dollar—one of the most likeable, liveable, outright fun skis you can schuss with. And the rest of the package was specially selected to go right along with the fun.

Fischer Silverglass Pioneer offers many of the features found in more expensive skis—plus a few that aren't! Fiberglass bands milled into the double wood core provide high response. The fast P-Tex base has continuous, L-shaped, hardened steel edges. Tip and tail protectors are inlaid. And tough ABS sides and top keep this ski looking just as good as it performs. Lengths 175-205 cm

Marker Rotamat heel binding We'll bet you didn't expect this high-performance unit to be included! Its tremendous elasticity helps keep false releases to a bare minimum. And during a release, there's Marker dependability with you all the way Adjustment settings are wide-range, and you can even change them with a coin.

Marker Simplex Standard toe binding gives you Marker engineering you can count on. Double pivot construction opens from either side during a release. And the release is as smooth as silk. Other features include: wide toe piece, dial-controlled settings, self-centering action

Allsop Champion Standard Ski Poles proven ultra-rugged in all-out competition High-strength aluminum alloy with a brushed, natural finish Deeply notched grips

Mrs. Hull Hosts Legion Auxiliary

By BETH GENEIT

The Auxiliary of the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 met at the Post Home on Tuesday evening, Oct. 14 with Mrs. Lillian Hull and Mrs. Elinor Spigl acting as co-hostesses.

The meeting was presided over by the new president, Mrs. Josephine Bindi.

The Communication Service report was given by Mrs. Esther Shearer. A Hospitality card of thanks was received from District president, Mrs. Sophie Stafford of Alpena.

The new business chairman were appointed as follows: Americanism, Mrs. Betty Pearsall; Children's Home and Child Welfare, Mrs. Elinor Spigl; Communications, Mrs. Esther Shearer; Constitutional By-Laws, Mrs. Lillian Hull; Educational, Scholarship and Legislative, Mrs. Lois Wasoski; Music, Mrs. Mary Otis; Junior Activities and Girls State, Mrs. Nancy Wood; Membership Mrs. Eleanor Nowakowski and Mrs. Evva Smith; Poppies, Mrs. Maxine Plum; Publication, Mrs. Lyda Johnson; Rehabilitation, Mrs. Betty McKenzie and Mrs. Gene Smith.

All members were again urged to have all Betty Crocker coupons mailed or delivered to Mrs. Esther Shearer, 113 E. Garfield, by Nov. 1.

Members voted to send a local girl to their annual Girl's State to be held at Olivet College next summer. They also agreed to subscribe to the Legislative Bulletin to be sent to the Veterans Home at Grand Rapids. Eighteen gifts were voted to be sent to the Battle Creek Gift Shop by Nov. 1.

Members also volunteered to sponsor a program for drug addiction treatments as soon as a date is available by the State Police Department. Twenty-five dollars was donated to the local T.I.W. fund (Those In Need).

All members were reminded of the joint Legion-Auxiliary potluck dinner to be held at 4:00 p.m. on Sunday Nov. 7 for members who attended Boy's State, Girl's State and all sponsors who made the schooling possible.

The next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 11 to be held at the Post Home with Mrs. Mary Otis as hostess.

Rayders Defeat Gaylord 8-0 at Homecoming

The Red Rayders racked up a Homecoming victory over Gaylord, 6-0, bringing their season record to two wins and three losses.

A day-long rain ended shortly before game-time, making for less-than-ideal playing conditions.

The only score in the game came in the third quarter on a pass from Tim Carey to Larry Potter who went eight yards for the TD. The first conversion attempt was discounted because Gaylord was offside. On the second attempt, Joe Jones plunged the ball across, for the 8-0 score.

A Gaylord rally late in the game was scotched by a 15-yard penalty that halted the march of the Blue Devils.

In other Michigan-Huron Shores Conference action, St. Ignace defeated Petoskey, 20-6; and Rogers City beat Boyne City, 48-0.

This week, Charlevoix plays at Cheboygan; Rogers City (undefeated) at St. Ignace; and Petoskey plays at Boyne City. Gaylord will play a non-conference game with Manistee Catholic.

This May Be Last Winter for Studs

Motorists may find this the last winter that studded snow tires are legal in Michigan if current pending legislation is approved, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Snow tires with metal studs are permitted on Michigan roads this winter from November 1 through May 1.

"Legislation aimed at banning studded tires in Michigan, supported by Michigan State Highway Commission, the State Police and the Michigan Good Roads Federation, is now before the state legislature.

Currently, studded tires are permitted in 46 states and the District of Columbia. Only Minnesota, Louisiana, Mississippi and Hawaii ban their use.

Michigan joined eight other states to finance a study to determine the nature and extent of damage to road surfaces by metal tire studs. These studies show substantial effectiveness in stopping and starting on glare ice with studded tires, but they are less effective on dry pavement than conventional tires.

Michigan motorists are warned that tickets can be issued to any motorist with studded tires in Ontario and the four states where the studs are prohibited.

Fines in the three continental states banning studs are: Louisiana, up to $50; Minnesota and Mississippi, up to $100. In Ontario the fine is $20 plus $3 court costs.

CHS Bandsmen Play at Alma Fete

One of autumn's most colorful and nostalgic events is homecoming on a college campus. And this fall the Charlevoix High School Marching Band helped to make Alma College's Homecoming an especially memorable occasion.

Thousands of returning Alma alumni, students and residents of the city of Alma were treated to the music and marching skill of the Charlevoix band under the direction of Gary Stutzman as it traversed the homecoming parade route through downtown Alma to the college campus.

Adding to the parade thrills were floats and other marching units including the well known Alma College Kiltie Band and the Alma High School Marching Band.

The Charlevoix High musicians, attired in their colorful uniforms of red and white, preceded the float carrying Alma's Homecoming Queen Margie Odell of Grosse Pointe Park and her court.

Highlights, besides the parade, of the memorable autumn day in Alma were a cornerstone laying ceremony at the college's new Clack Art Center and competition in cross country, and women's field hockey. Alma's teams defeated Kalamazoo College squads in both sports.

It wouldn't be Homecoming without football, and the Charlevoix band was in the stands that Saturday afternoon as Alma's Scots took on Kalamazoo College in the Homecoming gridiron encounter.

WE WROTE A BOOK THAT SHOWS YOU HOW TO SAVE ON ONE OF THE BEST BARGAINS IN YOUR HOME.

Read "The Great Escape," Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's free booklet that shows you how to save Gas and money.

It's the great escape of heat from your home that may be wasting Gas every month.

You use Gas to heat air and water. But chances are that your home is letting some of that heated air and water escape before it does its job.

That's why we wrote "The Great Escape." Because by checking and correcting the ways heat escapes from your home, you can make Gas (already one of today's big bargains) an even bigger bargain.

Fill out the coupon below, and learn how to foil the great escape—and save Gas and money, too. Or pick up a copy of "The Great Escape" at any of our offices.

A CHEERFUL FIREPLACE
And an Efficient gas heater all in one!

SIEGLER Gas Fire Place Heater

Here's a delightful new way to add beauty, charm and economical gas heating comfort to your home. The Siegler Fireside gas fireplace-heater gives the warmth of a heater and the joy of a fireplace without the trouble and mess. No logs to haul in, no ashes to haul out. The Fireside uses "Gem O-Lite" logs....permanent, made of asbestos material, they glow realistically when heated by the dancing gas flame. An exclusive inner channel system directs the heat out the front and down to the floor level. For forced air heating comfort, an accessory blower can be easily added. The front is tempered glass with polished chrome trim. The casing is finished in charcoal hi temp baked enamel for lasting beauty. The Fireside has a capacity of 25,000 btu per hr. in the vented model, and the unvented model has capacities of 19 950 and 25,000 btu per hr.

Volleyball Teams Win Four, Lose Four

By DENICE WAGNER

Charlevoix High School GAA volleyball teams, along with their advisar, Mrs. Paul Osterberg, traveled ta Cheboygan, Oct. 18, for their second volleyball meet.

The two teams left Monday at 5:30 and returned the same evening. The girls came home with a four win and four loss record.

Team I consisted of Donna Warner, Cheryl Pence, Lori Herzog, Jane Wimmer, Tiller Otis, Cindy Klieber and Cindy Strohshein.

Team II consisted of Linda Sneathen, Carol Russell, Jackie Hawkins, Cathy Dupey, Cathy Whitley and Cindy Hawkins. Substitutes were, Tammy Penny, Laura Custer, Connie Crain and Sue Elzinga.

The girls are to be congratulated on their victorys.

On Oct. 25 the team will travel to Petoskey for a four team meet. The schools included are; CHS, Petoskey, Cheboygan and Boyne City.

This meet was originally scheduled to be held here, in Charlevoix, but due to inadequate facilities at CHS the location has been changed.

JV Squad Defeats Northmen

By STEVE KANTOLA

Charlevoix's JV football squad pulled off an exciting upset against the Petoskey Northmen.

Although the Rayders were outweighed and less experienced, they appeared to be an impressive team.

The Rayders dominated the running game with Dan Austin carrying the ball most of the time. Dan carried down to the 17-yard line to set up Charlevoix's first TD. The extra point was successful.

In the second quarter Petoskey scored its only touchdown of the game. The extra point was no good. In the last quarter, with five minutes to play, Rayder quarterback Randy Faust passed to Pat Plumm on the Charlevoix 30. Plumm then broke through and ran seventy yards for a touchdown, making the final score 14-6.

Outstanding defensive players for Charlevoix were Tom Keie, Joe Ignoffo and Ron Kewagsiken.

Oscar Stroud Will Be A Hard Man to Follow

The Grand Old Man of Charlevoix's Grand Old Party is calling it quits.

Oscar Stroud, who has served as GOP chairman for five years, told a meeting of Charlevoix County Republicans at the Courthouse Thursday night that he is "just getting tired" and said it is time for new blood to take over the party reins.

The Executive Board accepted Mr. Stroud's resignation "with regrets" and set about the awesome task of finding a replacement for a man who has worked at being GOP chairman 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Under Mr. Stroud, Charlevoix County was always one of the first counties in the state to meet and exceed its membership and dues quotas. No small number of independent voters, and even a few Democrats, reportedly have signed up for a membership in the GOP just to have the doughty county chairman quit hounding them.

From time to time Mr. Stroud found himself at loggerheads with other members of the party issues and candidates, but he always acted in what he felt were the best interests of the party.

Murel Edinger, GOP liaison man from Traverse City, had high praise for Mr. Stroud at the conclusion of Thursday's meeting, pointing to his energetic efforts to build the GOP in Charlevoix County.

Although Mr. Stroud is stepping down, he made it abundantly clear that he is not stepping out. He said he will work in any capacity the party sees fit to use him.

We suspect that the next party chairman — whoever he is — will find an important niche for Mr. Stroud to fill.

Bring 'em Back ALIVE!

Watch Out For Ghosts, Goblins This Halloween

This weekend's motorists face added danger after dark-- the thousands of witches, goblins and other fun-seeking masqueraders darting through the streets making annual Halloween rounds.

Most dangerous hours for venturing with an automobile either Saturday or Sunday will be from 6 to 9 p.m., according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Although Halloween is celebrated on Sunday in many communities, some areas, including Charlevoix, have declared Saturday the official "begging night."

Regardless of when children haunt streets this weekend, parents are asked to help "Bring 'Em Back Alive!" by enforcing these rules:

1. Make sure masks do not obscure vision, and instruct children to remove masks when crossing streets.
2. Provide light-colored clothing that can be seen at night and attach reflective tape to aid detection by car headlights.
3. Have children cross only at lighted intersections or provide flashlights in areas where lighting is inadequate.
4. Accompany children who do not know or ignore safety rules and get them off streets by 8 p.m.

Student Exchange Wouldn't Do Job

Bob Clock, Editor
The Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Bob:

In the past several weeks the editorial page of the Courier has expressed an opposition to forced busing to achieve integretion. Unfortunately, I do not have all those expressions of opinion before me now but I would like to respond to the editorial appearing in the October 13th edition. As you will recall, the editorial proposed as a "possible solution" to the problem of racially segregated schools, an urban rural exchange program. The idea has considerable appeal. But I think it must be recognized that the magnitude of the problem of segregated urban schools makes such voluntary programs only minimally effective at best. It is not truly a "possible solution" as the editorial suggests.

In the main the editorial took a stand against forced busing and for Sen. Griffin's proposed constitutional amendment which would effectively deny to federal judges the use of busing orders as a method of forcing compliance with the equal protection requirements of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

Busing was never as the editorial implies "just to achieve a pleasant salt and pepper effect in the classroom." Busing is one means of ending segregation in schools and has been imposed only after a judicial determination that the segregation has existed as a result of governmental policies. The 14th Amendment demands no less. (Incidentally, contrary to the Courier's editorial, Judge Roth in Detroit has not "given the nod" to busing. He has merely made the determination that segregated schools in Detroit are not an accident resulting from private actions but rather have been created by policies of government in locating new schools, in closing old ones, in building public housing, etc. He has as yet refrained from ordering busing.)

Are we to retreat from forced integretion because it is "turning Southeastern Michigan into a hotbed of racial antagonism"? Did the Courier's editor make that argument when much more pronounced antagonism resulted in the need for federal troops to integrate schools in Little Rock or when a hastily gathered force of federal marshalls, border patrolmen and prison guards assisted James Meredith in enrolling at the University of Mississippi?

Or as the editorial suggests, are we to delay integration in schools "until it occurs in other segments of society, such as housing and job opportunities"? I believe that if segregation in schools was to end with "all deliberate speed" in 1954, it means "now" in 1971. The Supreme Court has effectively so held in a 1969 decision (Alexander V. Holmes County Board of Education). Furthermore, it is doubtful whether job and housing opportunities would ever be equal so long as Blacks receive inferior educations.

The editorial states that money spent on busing "could far better be spent in improving inadequate schools." That statement could result only from thinking that the effect of busing was merely to achieve a "pleasant salt and pepper effect." Just as busing pupils to consolidated schools from one room school houses was to improve education, so also is busing to integrated schools from segregated schools designed to improve education. The Supreme Court has found that even where objective criteria such as teacher-pupil ratios, room size, expenditures per pupil, etc. are equal; segregated schools remain inherently unequal. Does the Courier's editor disagree with those findings? Is it so impossible that the badge of inferiority placed on Blacks in segregated schools affects their ability to learn? To say that money spent on busing could better be spent improving schools where they exist is to negate the essential holdings of the Supreme Court where they exist it to negate the essential holdings of the Supreme Court in Brown v. Board of Education (1954) and to imply that there is no real commitment to the requirements of the 14th Amendment or perhaps to constitutional government itself.

I disagree with the opinion that Sen. Griffin's action in proposing the anti-busing amendment was "indeed an act of courage." I know the Senator can be courageous (witness his opposition to Presidential nominees to the Supreme Court who lacked the experience, intellectual superiority, legal expertise and plain integrity that that high office requires) but this last action is better characterized as one of political epediency. He has protected his right flank from the macinations of Huber and has lost nothing to the left except possibly my vote.

I can only conclude that he and many Americans (perhaps most) are coming to realize that we have a 14th Amendment which has established certain governmental standards. Well, we have had a 14th Amendment since 1868 and its time we gave it real effect or abandoned the pretense.

Sincerely

Charles (Tony) Duerr,

Re: Proposed Indian Memorial

Dear Editor:

I saw the article in the October 13th issue of your newspaper about the above proposal. Needless to say I am opposed to the entire idea und will do everything in my power to co-operated with the concerned citizens group.

I own lot No. 68 in Clipper View and was planning to build a summer home there next spring. I would not consider selling my property for any price and resent the fact that I could be forced to give it up after I made a good investment and had made plans for myself and my family to enjoy the property in the near future.

I would appreciate it if you would forward this letter and the enclosed check to the Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County. I would also appreciate getting the addresses of all persons that your article suggested should be contacted by mail.

I want to thank your paper for providing the news so that all are able to take steps to alleviate the problem before it is too late. I hope that you will continue to follow the progress of the proposal and report it along with all of the opposition. If you will send me a copy of your paper each week I will be glad to pay for it, please bill me.

I also would like to state that I think this question should be resolved quickly so that alternative measures may be taken and that development of the area would not be stopped or hindered due to fear of the future.

Years of Toil Went Into Their Farm

October 18, 1971

Bob Clock, Editor

Re: Letter by Merton M. Carter, Former Vice Pres. of Little Traverse Regional Historical Society.

Dear Sir:

If you were in danger of losing your farm on which you had paid ever increasing taxes, remodeled the farm house, dug a trout pond, planted several stands of trees, put a new roof on the barn, installed electricity and water and electric fencing, just what would you call "reasonable in their requests of those who now live within the boundaries?" We should be happy living somewhere else?

How about someone being a "champion of the little man" living on a fixed income and fighting for his rights? We don't have anything against Indians having their rights. If the proposal was for a place for the Indians to live, we would feel better about parting with some of our land-but for the Government to take it all?!

Clockwise Ah, Wilderness

By BOB CLOCK

More interesting information ends up in the wastebasket under the desk of a weekly editor simply because he can't find a local tie-in. Weekly newspapers, as you know, are supposed to be strictly local, although there is a certain amount of state and national news that does creep in because it affects every one of us.

But unfortunately, most of the press handouts that come our way simply must be relegated to File 13 for lack of space on the news pages. And sometimes it's a shame.

For example, did you know that Michigan has fewer acres of farmland today than it did in 1880? I'll bet you didn't, and neither did I until I received a press release from Carl Olson of the Michigan Department of Agriculture last week. Here's what Olson had to say:

A continuing trend toward larger and larger farms in Michigan, while the number of individual farms continues to dwindle, is reported by B. Dale Ball, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Ball, commenting on figures released through the federal-state Crop Reporting Service, said, "When you realize that, at the time the 1969 agricultural census was taken, Michigan had less land in farms than before 1880, you become aware of the increased productivity of each acre."

"Census statistics indicate Michigan had 13,807,240 acres in farmland in 1880, a figure which continued to grow until about 1920," Ball pointed out. "Since that time it has been shrinking until in 1969 that state reported 11,900,689 acres in farmland."

"The acreage harvested in Michigan during 1970 was approximately one million less than 1965," Ball indicated, "but total production remained constant."

Between 1964 and the 1969 census, the total number of individual farms in Michigan was reduced from 93,504 to 77,946 or 16.7 percent. However, the average size of the state's farms increased from 145.4 to 152.7. In corresponding figures, indications are that small farms, up to 499 acres, decreased in number by 17.3 percent while farms over 500 acres increased in number by 9.5 percent.

That should give you something ta talk about in front of the bank on Saturday night. In a subsequent press release, Ball had this to report via his press agent, Carl Olson:

"If Michigan experiences a better hunting season this year than last, much of it can be attributed to the state's farmers," said B. Dale Ball, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture "Through soil conservation projects, Michigan saw yet another increase in land devoted to wildlife habitat and general recreation."

In the last year, Michigan farmers turned approximately 65,000 acres of their land into wildlife habitat. They also planted 618,515 feet of hedgerow and 593,798 feet of field border. These provide cover for deer and small game.

A total of 1,583 ponds were established while another 939 were developed to produce fish for domestic use and recreation. In addition, trees were planted on 12,032 acres.

Along the same line, here is a press release received last week from the American Forest Institute, headquartered in Washington, D.C.,

A report on the state of the nation's forests, issued by American Forest Institute, says the United States still has three quarters of the woodlands it did when Columbus landed.

And, the report states, those woodlands are growing more wood than is being cut off them; in the past 15 years their harvest has yielded 197 billion cubic feet of timber and their growth has amounted to 246 billion cubic feet of wood — a net increase of 49 billion cubic feet.

The Institute's 18-page report, titled "Forests USA", lays to rest the misconception that the forests are owned primarily by large timber companies. It says there are 758 million acres either are set aside for special uses, such as wilderness, parks or watershed protection, or are not suitable for growing timber of commercial quality.

The remaining 510 million acres constitute our "commercial" forests. Industry owns 65 million of these acres, and government owns 142 million acres. The other 303 million acres are owned by about four million individuals, small landholders for the most part.

Gives you second thoughts, doesn't it, about all the information that has been fed us lately about land misuse, overcrowding and the population explosion. Are we really going to be standing on each other's shoulders by the year 2000?

Then, on Saturday, a clipping, apparently from a New England newspaper, was slipped through the slot in the front door by Gordon Freedman who thought we might be interested. We were.

It has to do with how the public is ruining a 260-mile hiking trail through the Green Mountains of Vermont. The article, written by Joe Swayze, a reporter-photographer for the Bennington (Vt.) Banner, claims The Long Trail has been the victim of "Popularity."

"According to the Green Mountain Club (which maintains the trail), in recent summers — and this summer has been a record-breaker — the trail has felt the crush of civilization. There has been erosion from overuse, especially in the higher elevations; overcrowding in the shelters (there are 70); littering; vandalism; and squabbles between hikers and local people, through whose private land sections of the trail passes.

"Americans, with more free time, more money, and greater mobility, are fleeing megalopolis on the weekends and during vacations in search of fun and recreation. Unfortunately, they bring along with them some of the problems they seek to escape — like overcrowding.

"For the hiker who enjoys walking miles without seeing anyone, the worst thing about this mass exodus to the out-of-doors has been his loss of solitude in the wilderness."

So there you have it: four items which crossed the editor's desk this week relative to the great out-of-doors. Three of them paint a relatively rosy picture relative ta our woods and wilderness. The last depicts the grim death of a wilderness hiking trail.

You pays your money and you takes your choice.

Sports vs Books

By JIM FITZGERALD

After exhaustive study, 2 psychologists have reported that sports do not build character. Being a football star does not make Johnny a better person.

20,000 high-school coaches just slit their jockstraps.

But I am laughing. I am remembering a basketball coach who was also a history teacher. He couldn't understand how I could be 6 foot tall and not want to play basketball. Every time he graded my history assignment, he subtracted 10 percent because I was a sissy and 15 percent because St. Stephen High was in last place in the St. Clair County League and it was all my fault.

He was 1 of those coaches who insisted Lincoln would never have been elected president if he hadn't been a little leaguer. World War 2 would be won on the West Point football field, he said, and France fell to Germany because French kids never learned how to play shortstop.

If that coach is still alive today, he probably thinks the world's greatest sissies are Dr. Bruce Ogilvie and Dr. Thomas Tutko, psychology professors at San Jose State College in California. For 8 years they tested 15,000 athletes, worked with 27 professional teams and hundreds of high school and college teams. And they concluded there is nothing to support the traditional idea that sports build character.

"Indeed," they said, "there is evidence that athletic competition limits growth in some areas...athletic competition has no more beneficial effects than intense endeavor in any other field."

So there, Coach. 30 years later, my judgement is vindicated by experts. I never could understand how running around in public in my underwear would make me editor of the New York Times.

It's not that I don't like sports. As a boy, I went to all the games and crawled around under the bleachers, looking for dropped money. That's how I became a fan. I still attend more games today than most normal men. I take my son along to pick up the money although I get half if I see it first.

The other day my mother came visiting and got her first look at the recreation room recently installed in my basement. Dear Old Mom remembers my hyper-relaxed boyhood better than anyone. She remembers when I delivered newspapers on foot and my dad looked out the window and swore he had to line me up with some trees to see whether I was moving.

"You have finally achieved your boyhood ambition," Mother said. "You have your own pool table and your own bar with running water and cold beer. I am so proud of you."

I explained to her that it was, shucks, really nothing. And I asked her if she had been worried, those many years ago, about a son who never went out for school sports.

"You were always sitting around the house reading," she remembered, "while the other boys were out playing ball. I asked you once if you thought you'd grow up to be a great man and you said you'd rather grow up to be a great reader."

Hmmm. I wonder if books build character? I don't remember any teacher ever saying so. I never won a letter for my sweater for reading. There were never any pretty cheerleaders chanting: "Go man, read that sentence, understand that paragraph. Rah rah."

"I'll bet you're glad I built my character with books instead of sports," I told Mother.

"You bet," she said. "All you ever read were comic books."

Onward and Upward, with character.

Antifreeze Helps Insects Survive Hard Winters

The average bug doesn't look for a rug when winter comes. It heads for a snug cranny, burrows into the ground, or even fills up on antifreeze.

Some insects migrate. A monarch butterfly may fly almost a thousand miles in search of warmth. Tiny tree insects crawl a few feet from the trunk into the cozy mold at the roots–a majar trip for them.

Most insects live only a year, and they have developed ingenious ways of carrying on the species over the winter, the National Geographic Society says.

They may spend the cold season in any of the four stages of their development: eggs, larvae, pupae, or adults.

EGGS PROTECTED

Eggs require no food, are small and inconspicuous, and resist extreme temperatures. Entomologists believe an internal "clockwork" mechanism prevents the warmth of a midwinter thaw from prematurely, and disastrously, hatching eggs.

In the fall, the female grasshopper, deposits in the soil a mass of eggs wrapped in a protective gluelike coat. Some species will not hatch unless they first have been frozen, insurance against hatching early in a mild winter.

FOLLOW SEASONS

Insects often coordinate their life cycle with the seasons. The oriental fruit moth may develop five generations in one year, but a caterpillar of the last autumn generation becomes dormant.

Resting comfortably in its warm cocoon until spring, the caterpillar then completes its metamorphosis and restarts the cycle

Countless insects seek the shelter of the soil. White grubs, for example, tunnel below the frost line, where they remain until that balmy spring day when they emerge as June bugs.

Entomologists estimate that as many as 700,000 insects may winter in just one acre of average soil.

Other insects burrow deep into rotten wood and among plant roots or crawl under fallen logs and stones.

ANTIFREEZE IN BLOOD

Whatever refuge they find, insects sometimes must endure below-freezing temperatures. Some apparently survive by producing a compound, called glycerol, to prevent ice crystals in their blood.

Frozen ponds also carry their quota of dormant life. Many mosquitoes spend the winter as larvae, or "wrigglers." In the spring they thaw and, after metamorphosis, buzz off. Buried in the mud of the pond bottom wait the nymphs, or pupae, of dragonflies–far removed from their airborne gossamer maturity.

Some species of adult moths and butterflies take cover in nooks and crannies of old barns and sheds or under loose piece of bark. The queen bee, sole survivor of her hive, takes refuge where best she can–perhaps in an abandoned mouse hole.

One strange insect, a cranefly that lives in the far north, inverts the usual life cycle. It passes the summer as a larva, then becomes an adult in the coldest season of the year, scurrying across January snow in below-zero temperatures. Vulnerable to warmth, it will die in a few minutes if held in a warm hand.

C of C Ballots In Mail

Chamber of Commerce Manager Tom Merta reports that ballots are in the mail for the election of three new members of the C of C Board of Directors.

Merta said ballots have been sent to all businesses in town, whether or not they have paid their 1971 membership dues., in hopes that some of them will pay up. Only the ballots of paying members will be counted however.

The nine candidates are Max Horner chief engineer at Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp., Bill Supernaw announcer-salesman for WJML radio; Jim Withers, manager of the A & W restaurant; Bill Cooper, owner of King's restaurant, Dick Martin, vice president and manager of the Charlevoix Insurance Agency; Bill Staffel, owner of Staffel's Studio Shop; Bill Pioch manager of The Little Shop Around the Corner; Don Berlage, Charlevoix attorney; and Jim Mielke, owner of the Park Place book store.

Results of the election will be announced at the Chamber's big Autumn Ball Saturday, Nov. 6.

The dinner-dance will feature a stuffed pork-chop dinner catered by Grey Gables and dancing to the music of the News Steinsmen.

Tickets are available at the Chamber office on Bridge-st.

Band Dinner Set Nov. 3

The Band Boosters' dinner will be held Wednesday, Nov. 3, at the Elementary School from 5 until 7 p.m.

Swiss steak with all the trimmings is on the menu.

Money raised by the dinner will be used to support band activities and help buy equipment.

Tickets are available from members of the Band Boosters.

School Board Fields Questions on Sports

obtaining coaches was as much a problem as finding the money to pay for the program. Mrs. Arnold Loper said she felt the program was important for disciplinary reasons as well as the need for training.

The physical education program in both the elementary and middle school was discussed. However, it was emphasized that fundamentals are more important to young players than playing team ball.

Doan said that the Sports Boosters had made over $5,000 in its concession project and that as soon as the club's financial obligations for the concessions building were met, they would use their profits to help the Pep Club, Varsity Club and the cheerleaders.

Doan also mentioned the need of discipline at the games for youngsters who go to the games only to play. He was told there was nothing the school could do, that the problem was primarily one for parents who take their youngsters to games and let them run wild while they watch the game.

Several suggestions were made but no action was taken.

The board postponed action by the policy committee relating to bus drivers because the communication the committee had been waiting for arrived only Monday. The issue is to be discussed at the Nov. 8 meeting.

Miller, reported briefly on legislation and Max Novak, Middle School Principal, and Glenn B. Snider, Elementary school principal, reported on the McGraw-Hill Conference they attended recently in Grand Rapids. They said they already had put into practice some of the information they had learned at the meeting.

Mid-School To Host PTO

The next PTO meeting will be Nov. 3 at the Middle School.

Visitors are invited to sit in on a rehearsal of the 7th and 8th grade bands from 7 until 7:30 p.m.

From 7:30 until 8:30 p.m., classrooms will be open for a walk-through.

Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria from 8 until 9 p.m.

All parents, teachers and students are invited.

sewers today than they were five years ago," he commented.

–Applied for renewal with the Michigan Aeronautics Administration of an airport manager's license for Joe McPhillips as well as renewal of the airport license.

–Received a request from the Charlevoix Board of Education that the city share the cost of a $465 scoreboard at the Middle School, which will be used by the Independent Basketball League.

–Referred to the District Health Department a request by Alderman Nathan Boss that the "Bachelor's Quarters" on Norwood-rd. be condemned as a health menace.

–Heard a request by Mayor Andrew Essenburg that the city hire a full-time auto mechanic. Essenburg also charged that the brakes on the fire engine have failed three times recently, although City Superintendent Thomas Hanna said he was unaware of any trouble. Essenburg said someone had ordered a new master cylinder, which has been in storage at a local garage for the past month.

After the meeting, the council discussed proposed airport improvements with 20 members of the Charlevoix Flying Club.

REX DAVIS, newly appointed Charlevoix postmaster, poses in front of Charlevoix Post Office on Mason-st. He has been with the post office 18 years.

City Wins C-E Offices

Charlevoix was selected as the site of the new Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District administration building in a secret four to two ballot by the C-E board Monday night.

The vote culminated years of deliberation on the project, including three meetings within the last week.

Site of the proposed office building is a 3.2-acre tract of land on Mercer-blvd. offered to the district by the Charlevoix City Council at a cost of $750 per acre.

The only other site under consideration Monday was land on M-75 between Boyne City and Boyne Falls, offered to the district by Everett Kircher, proprietor of Boyne Country.

A third site in Boyne City's Rotary Park was rejected last week by the board because of its high water table.

Purchase of the land from the city is contingent upon approval of a $217,000 bond issue by the Michigan Municipal Finance Commission, according to Charles Robinson, Intermediate District superintendent.

Robinson says he hopes the bonds will be sold shortly after the first of the year and that construction will start in the spring.

The district must have the structure ready for occupancy at least by next September. Early completion is especially important to the Special Education staff which has been ordered to vacate offices it now occupies on Stover-rd by June 1.

Robinson said present plans call for a one-story building of something over 9,000 square feet which will provide office space for 10 C-E personnel now located on the second floor of the Charlevoix County Building as well as 23 members of the Special Education staff.

A vote on the land was scheduled for Oct. 25 but the board reached an impasse and called a special meeting for Friday, Oct. 29.

However, a new member of the board, Mrs. Judy Juilleret of Harbor Springs, said she felt unqualified to vote until she had inspected both sites and the second special session was called.

The Charlevoix site was chosen, among other reasons, because of city police and fire protection, lower insurance rates and the possibility of city water and sewer service in the not-too-distant future. It is also easily accessible to other county offices located in Charlevoix.

Board President Clayton Healey favored the Boyne Falls site because it is more centrally located.

Supt. Robinson told the board that his attorneys have advised him that court tests of the proposed financing procedure affecting community colleges are not applicable to intermediate school districts.

The building and land will be financed by a levy of one-quarter mill over the entire C-E District for four years.

Busy Night For Schools

School activities will keep townspeople hopping tonight (Wednesday).

The Band Boosters swiss steak dinner will be held at the Elementary School from 5 until 7 p.m.

After the dinner, the PTO will hold open house at the Middle School. The program includes a rehearsal of the 7th and 8th grade bands from 7 until 7:30, a walk-through of 5th through 8th grade rooms from 7:30 to 8:30, followed by refreshments in the cafeteria.

NEW C-E board member Mrs. Judy Juilleret of Harbor Springs wanted more time to study office sites before voting.

Township Well Yields 400 Gallons a Minute

A municipal water supply for Charlevoix Township is one step closer to becoming a reality, after the Leo Riegler Corp. of Muskegon Heights struck a superb flow at a depth of water last week of 430 feet just off Waller-rd. near the junction of Martin-rd.

A 24-hour pumping test, required by state law, indicates that the well can supply 400 gallons a minute, according to Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud.

If the water checks out all right with the state Health Department, a second well will be drilled about 100 feet from the first.

If the flow from the second well matches the first, the township will be in a position to supply 233 township homes with water.

The first well took about two months to drill, although Leo Riegler, owner of the well-drilling company, says he hopes to have the second well completed by Dec. 15.

His crews will return to the site some time after the middle of November.

Water from the first well is clear, cold and has only a slight mineral taste, despite the depth.

The drillers encountered about 30 feet of clay, followed by 400 feet of rock.

Stroud says the municipal water project has been made possible through the cooperation of several township residents.

Ed Shanahan donated the site for the wells and pump houses.

Contractor Steve LaBlance is contributing the construction of the two heated pump houses, one measuring about 12 by 24 feet and the other eight by ten feet. Both will be constructed in the spring.

Engineering has been donated by Greg Shadko.

By the time the second well is sunk, Stroud says the Township will have $15,000 tied up in the project.

Another $20,000 has been earmarked for pumps and valves.

The larger of the two pump houses will contain a control board and a 5,000-gallon pressure tank.

Stroud says the first areas to be served by the new water system will be Waller-rd., Mercer-blvd., North Point and Pa-Ba-Shan-ln.

The next area to be hooked up will be Pine Point, via Martin-rd.

Stroud says engineering already has been completed for a second water system for that portion of the township lying south of Charlevoix.

The township board went ahead with the water project after applying unsuccessfully to the City of Charlevoix for water service. The council was never sure whether the city system could handle additional homes in the township, although some homes and businesses just outside the city do have city water.

Stroud says the township water system will have 10-inch mains, which will permit a tie-in with the city system, if and when the city council decides to become a part of an area-wide system.

Stroud added that township residents will not be assessed for the laying of water main past their homes. However, he said residents will be charged a tap-in fee which will cover the cost of construction.

LEO RIEGLER, of the Riegler Corp. of Muskegon Heights, checks flow of Charlevoix Township's first municipal water well. A flow of 400 gallons a minute was maintained for 24 hours during tests last week.

Rex Davis Appointed Charlevoix Postmaster

At last it's official!

Rex Davis, officer-in-charge of the Charlevoix Post Office for the past two years, received word Oct. 29 from L.J. McNaughton, district manager of the Post Office Service in Grand Rapids, that he has been appointed Charlevoix postmaster.

Charlevoix's last postmaster was Dan Geneit, who retired two years ago this week. Davis has been serving as officer-in-charge during the interim.

Davis joined the Charlevoix Post Office in May, 1953, as a rural letter carrier on Route 1.

He became a window clerk Jan. 1, 1959.

"It was a good time to move inside," he says, recalling the mountainous snows of that winter.

Davis, 51, was born in Boyne City June 23, 1920, and graduated from Boyne City High School.

He moved to Charlevoix in the fall of 1946 after being elected register of deeds, with his term starting Jan. 1, 1947.

He resigned as register of deeds in 1953 to join the Post Office.

Davis was married July 12, 1941, to the former Lucille Thompson of Boyne City. They have two children, Rex B. of Charlevoix and Mrs. Tom (Kay Lynn) Webster of Walloon Lake.

CHS Takes Another Meet

Charlevoix High School girls' volleyball teams swept another regional meet Monday night, defeating Petoskey and Boyne City.

CHS girls won five of six games. Petoskey and Boyne City teams each won two of six.

The Rayder teams are coached by Mrs. Marie Osterberg.

ANGRY CITIZENS from south of Charlevoix attended a third protest meeting over the proposed Woodland Indian National Memorial at Charlevoix High School Oct. 26.

How Task Force Agreed on Fisherman's Island

(Following are excerpts from the Task Force Report on the Woodland Indian National Memorial, a proposed 8,000-acre cultural park to be located on the Lake Michigan shore just south of Charlevoix. The report has been submitted to Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton for approval.)

In Michigan about 1,600 Indians live on reservations and about 18,000 Indians live off reservations. The non-reservation Indians live in rural settlements throughout the northern part of the state or in the larger cities of Michigan. Physically, there is little that distinguishes a reservation Indian from a non-reservation Indian. They have in common social, economic, physical and political disadvantages. Their differences are political.

Michigan has four federal reservations that are units of government. These reservations are political subdivisions with tribal government in accordance with the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 (IRA). The reservations are on tribal land with the title held in trust by the Federal Government. Reservation tribal councils are empowered to negotiate contracts with federal, state and local governments.

Because Michigan's reservations were too small to be effective separately, in 1968 all four reservations joined to form the Inter-Tribal Council of Michigan (ITCM). This organization has federal recognition as a political unit.

The non-reservation Indians live on land which they rent or hold title and have no official political representation as Indians. Because the ITCM can negotiate and be program sponsors for non-reservation Indians, an initial objective of the ITCM sought to work for the benefit of all Indians in Michigan, even though non-reservation Indians would not be officially represented. Prime consideration of the Council would be to eliminate the social, political, economic and physical disadvantages of Michigan Indians.

An early idea presented to the ITCM was to develop a Woodland Memorial. The purpose of this facility is to focalize the efforts of the ITCM in assisting Michigan Indians. The Memorial will provide Indian employment, an exhibit of Indian culture and facilities for Indian conferences and tribal activities.

The first proposal for a Woodland Indian National Memorial was prepared in September of 1968. Its stated purpose was "preserving, perpetuating, depicting, and displaying the forest culture, history, lore and life of the Indian of the Woodland." The ITCM would sponsor the project. Because their constitution and bylaws empower them to "negotiate with the federal, state and local governments; manage economic affairs and enterprises; create tribal council funds by accepting grants or donations from any person, state or the United States; to charter subordinate organizations, delegate to such organizations or to any subordinate boards or officials of the organization the foregoing powers reserving the right to review any action taken by virtue of such delegated powers", the ITCM would negotiate with the federal or state governments to request program assistance, acquire and engage in transactions for a land base or other by gift, sale, exchange or other means.

The major state agencies to be contacted were the Department of Natural Resources, Commission on Indian Affairs, Michigan Tourist Council, State Historical Commission and Michigan Department of Commerce. The federal agencies included Bureau of Indian Affairs, Department of Interior and Upper Great Lakes Commission. The ITCM hopes to obtain technical assistance from the various agencies, as well as a financial commitment.

Gov. William G. Milliken was asked to support the activities of the ITCM and create and act as chairman of a "Blue Ribbon Committee" to assist and support the Woodland Indian National Memorial. The following persons were selected: Gov. William G. Milliken, chairman; Dr. Walter Adams, Michigan State University; Mr. Frank Angelo, president, Michigan Press Association; Dr. William B. Boyd, president, Central Michigan University; Mr. Herbert D. Doan, president, The Dow Chemical Co.; Dr. R.W. Flemming, president, University of Michigan; Sen. Robert P. Griffin, U.S. Senate; Mr. Harry R. Hall, president, Michigan State Chamber of Commerce; and Sen. Phillip A. Hart, U.S. Senate.

The ITCM contacted various state and federal agencies and asked that a Task Force of Advisors be appointed. (The names of Task Force members appeared in the Oct. 6 Courier.)

The major concept that the ITCM wanted to make explicit was the need for a cultural, social and economic midway station of Michigan Indians. The traditional Indian community is a highly personalized society; the non-Indian community is highly depersonalized. The ITCM wanted to make the Woodland Indian National Memorial a living Memorial and through it provide a means whereby Indians could accommodate themselves to white man's society, if they wished to assimilate into that society.

The goal of the Memorial would then be to change the levels of living conditions in the Indian community by:

1. Memorializing Indian ancestors and the Woodland culture they created to correct the present historical image of Indians.

2. Provide cultural facilities for Indians to use as a focal point of information dissemination within their community.

3. Provide a place of opportunity for Indians to learn skills, attitudes and gain the experience necessary to assimilate into white man's society.

The ITCM, in concert with the Task Force, developed the concepts and criteria to be utilized in selecting a site for the Memorial.

1. The site must have a natural setting of woods and water to typify the culture and the environment in which the Woodland Indians lived. Historical and archeological remnants of Indian culture should be present. The

Task Force Due In City Thursday

The 14-man task force which has done preliminary planning of the proposed Woodland Indian National Memorial will be at Charlevoix High School Thursday, Nov. 4, at 7 p.m. to explain the project and answer questions.

The meeting was arranged by Walt Thorsen, chairman of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, and Bill Mercer, county planning director, who met with the task force in Lansing Oct. 20.

Announcement of the project several weeks ago has resulted in organization of a group called Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix County, made up largely of persons living in the affected area south of Charlevoix.

At a meeting of the group Oct. 26, John Dorsey of Glen Lake reported that creation of the Sleeping Bear National Lakeshore has resulted in financial hardships and a stagnation of building in the area.

The proposed 8,000-acre memorial park will include Fisherman's Island and rich archeological sites along the Lake Michigan shore.

CHARLEVOIX GALS are turning out in force every Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. at the Elementary School gymnasium for a program of exercise and sports. Here, a lively game of volleyball is in progress.

Joan S. Boal Wed

By Beth Genelt

Saturday evening, Oct. 23, the Bethany Lutheran Church was the scene of the wedding of Joan Stevens Boal and William S. Graves.

The Rev. Duane Imig officiated at the double-ring service in the presence of immediate family and close friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens who observed their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary on the same date. Mr. Graves is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Graves sr.

The bride was attired in a royal heather wool street length dress and coat ensemble and matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink and white carnations.

Mrs. Warren Allison was her sister's attendant. She wore a turquoise two-piece dress and matching accessories, her corsage was of gold and white mums.

Mrs. Stevens selected a beige, brown and pink knit dress, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink and white mums.

Donald Meggison assisted the bridegroom as best man.

Following the wedding a reception for 150 guests was held at the Legion Post Home. Assisting were Mrs. Herbert Moore; Janeen Boal, daughter of the bride; Mrs. James Janis, niece of the bride; Mrs. Frederick Keie; Nancy Smith and Mrs. Perry Smith.

Women Hear Need Of Oil Exploration

It is necessary to search for oil and natural gas in Michigan, but this search can be compatible with a "wise-use" of the environment.

That was the point of view expressed by an oil industry representative as he spoke to the Women's Club of Charlevoix on Nov. 1. To illustrate how both of these are possible, J.A. Naye, community relations manager for shell Oil Co., showed a slide presentation entitled, "Energy and Environment: Conflict or Coexistence?"

Naye explained there is an urgent need to find more oil and natural gas since current supplies already are not sufficient to meet U.S. energy requirements. "This accounts in part for the energy crisis currently facing the U.S., since oil and gas supply three-fourths of the energy we consume," he said.

Naye pointed out that while this deficit is in itself critical, it is made more ominous by its long-range implications. "Unless new sources of oil are discovered in the U.S.," he warned, "American people, by 1980, will be forced to depend on even greater amounts of imports. And these imports, which right now provide 24 percent of all the oil used in the country, come from potentially unstable sources of supply."

"By developing our own natural resources," the speaker emphasized, "we avoid being in the untenable position whereby a nation, or group of nations can coerce us by threatening to shut off our oil supply."

"The domestic oil industry is searching desperately for energy supplies to serve the burgeoning population, and at the same time, it is aware of its continuing responsibility to carry on good environmental protection practices," Naye continued.

Following the presentation, he answered several questions from the audience about oil drilling in Michigan.

Arrangements for the program were made by Mrs. William Brady.

Friends and relatives helped Mrs. Leonard Strange celebrate her birthday Saturday evening at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Anderson and son Tim of Grand Rapids, were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Essenberg, returning from a northern color tour.

Walter Kooyer and Bill Kooyer and three sons of Grand Rapids spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kooyer.

Willard VanderArk boasts a 20 inch head sunflower which he harvested the past week. We all admired that tall row of sunflowers in his garden this summer. Some time ago, someone drove their car through the garden and knocked several down.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Petter and children of Six Mile Lake were Sunday dinner guests of his parents, the William Petters.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shooks and daughter of Lansing were weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Essenberg left this week to spend the winter in El Paso, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kuiper are visiting their children in the Grand Rapids area. Hattie Kuiper accompanied them for a few days visit with her daughter and family, the Bob Swaneys.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Bergsma of Wyoming were here on business and were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Jansen. They also called on their Cooper relatives.

Rev. and Mrs. John Rubingh sr., of Grand Rapids are guests of his sister Mattie VanderArk for a few days while visiting with other relatives also.

The family of Floyd Falting of Utica came during the past week for her step-father, Joe Tornga, who returned to Utica with them for an extended visit.

No frost yet. Another unusual item for this time of year: Mina June VanderArk picked sweet corn Saturday Oct. 23.

Lawrence Wynsma of Charlevoix took his parents Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Wynsma to Grand Rapids recently. They called on her sister, Mrs. Rose Brinkman at the Holland Home, were evening visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wynsma and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Vollmer spent the weekend with Rev. and Mrs. Ron VanderWerff and family in Livonia. Judy's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Ruis, accompanied them to visit Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Baar in Detroit.

Library Notes

A book in the hand is worth two on the shelf, and there are some outstanding new books in the Library which won't remain on the shelves very long.

"The Twenty Million Dollar Honeymoon" is a first-rate and marvelously entertaining account of Jackie and Ari Onassis' first year. Fred Sparks, a Pulitzer prize-winning journalist, has watched the couple as carefully as the CIA watches the Kremlin, and this book is the result. With the help of some well-placed friends, he follows Jackie and Ari through their first golden year—where they went, whom they entertained, who entertained them. It all adds up to a fascinating tale which will make every woman of every age green with envy.

Not since "Seven Days in May" and "Fail-Safe" has there been as frighteningly believable a suspense story as "Deep Cover," a new book by Brian Garfield. Victor Rykov, the master of Russian intelligence, has an incredible plan to teach 300 Russian men and women to think, act and talk like Americans and to become entrenched as powerful members of a vital American community. This is a thrilling, exciting yarn written by a skillful and experienced author.

"The Trial of Martin Ross" by Alfred Kern would, at first glance, appear to be a quiet novel about a well-married couple on a long and snowy Thanksgiving weekend, but it turns out to be a great deal more than that. The hero, Martin Ross, conducts his own defense in the name of all intelligent, critical, and concerned men and women who refuse to give up on their children, themselves or the future.

"The Winter of the Fisher" by Cameron Langford is a beautiful plea for freedom and respect for all wild creatures. The fisher, a magnificent fur bearer, dens in the forest of the north. Seldom seen, he is nocturnal and solitary. The Indians call him "black cat".

In this novel, based on fact, the author tells of one year in the fisher's life, from the spring of his infancy to the next spring when his mating occurs. It is a story of struggle and survival as he battles with fellow predators and faces the harsh months of winter. It is also the story of the lessons he learns from man, the most dangerous predator of all.

"Mrs. Palfrey at the Claremont" is as charming a story as the title would suggest. Mrs. Palfrey went to London after her husband died because that was "where the action was". She was too independent to stay with her married daughter in Scotland. It soon becomes evident that the Claremont Hotel is not exactly a hub of activity. A lovely story unfolds under the warm and human pen of Elizabeth Taylor whose nine previous novels have placed her in the class of sure-to-please authors.

Pvt. Jeffery Takes Basic

Pvt. Theodore A. Jeffery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theo A. Jeffery, 720 N. Maple, East Jordan, recently completed eight weeks of basic training at the U.S. Army Training Center, Armor, Ft. Knox, Ky.

He received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, combat tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

The 23-year-old soldier was graduated from East Jordan High School in 1965 and received a B.S. degree in 1970 from Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

His wife, Bette, lives at 204 Fifth-st.

AN UNUSUAL "weathervane" has been erected at the Irish Boat Shop at the foot of Stover-rd. The weathervane is a Sunfish sailboat merchandised by the marina, mounted on a swivel pedestal. With the sail hoisted, the boat always points into the direction of the wind. What next?

Ski & Shore Plans Traverse City Office

Ski & Shore Properties, Inc., Bellaire-based real estate brokerage specializing in resort properties, announces a new Traverse City office to open Nov. 1 in the main lobby of Park Place Motor Inn.

"We are pleased to have reached agreement with Ted Okerstrom on a location in Park Place Motor Inn, because that is the center of recreational activities," said Richard E. Georgi, Ski & Shore board chairman. "We have been considering a Traverse City office for some time. Concentrating as we do on resort property, it is unthinkable not to operate in Traverse City which is unquestionably the unofficial capital of Michigan's most attractive resort area."

While the new Ski & Shore office will emphasize general real estate brokerage at the new office, Georgi said, his firm's development and investment subsidiaries will also be active in the Traverse City area.

Manager of the new office will be Eugene S. Steel, Elk Rapids, who is being transferred from his present assignment in the firm's Charlevoix office. Other key personnel will include James Bouwman, Elk Rapids, presently on the staff of the Ski & Shore office at Antrim Dells, 1,700-acre leisure community under development just north of Torch Lake on the east shore of Grand Traverse Bay; Ralph Sorenson, Traverse City advertising and public relations specialist; James Christians, investment specialist from the firm's main office in Bellaire; and Susan Nipper, currently secretary-receptionist at the Bellaire office.

The new Traverse City office will be Ski & Shore's fifth full-service branch in northwest lower Michigan. The firm, established two and one-half years ago, has its headquarters in Bellaire and branches at Schuss Mountain, Charlevoix and Shanty Creek.

The firm plans to open its sixth office next spring on property it has acquired adjacent to I-75 in Grayling. A seventh office is scheduled for Elk Rapids late next spring.

Open House

An open house for Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Crain celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Seese on Old U.S. 31 South from 2 until 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 7.

TONI SIMMONS (Janice Smith) and Igor Sullivan (David Trautman) discover that neighbors also make good friends in the Little Traverse Civic Theater production of "Cactus Flower." The show will be presented Thursday and Friday at Gig's on Pleasantview-rd.

JOHN HOLEC as Senor Arturo Sanchez attempts to woo Stephanie Dickinson (Linda Amtsbuechler) in "Cactus Flower." The play takes its name from cactus flower (on desk) which rarely blooms. But when it does the blossom is a beaut. (Photo by Doug Bloom)

WORKING out the problems of love and marriage over cocktails at the Fleabag Supper Club are Dr. Julian Winston (Chris Smith), Harvey Greenfield (Paul Voorheis) and Boticelli's Springtime (Pat Bloom of Charlevoix). "Cactus Flower" still has two nights to run. (Photo by Doug Bloom)

'Cactus Flower' in Blossom at Gig's

Cactus flowers bloom beautifully not only on the desert but also at Gig's on Pleasantview-rd. near Harbor Springs.

The Little Traverse Civic Theatre's presentation of "Cactus Flower", which still has two nights to run, offers some high comedy in an unusual setting, Gig Stewart's teen club, formerly the Golden Horseshoe.

Although the table seating leaves the audience straining for a full look at the stage, the Little Theater troupers have done a remarkable job of converting a nightclub runway into a modified theater-in-the-round.

Some of the action even takes place on Gig's balcony next to the bar—as authentic a setting for scenes in a New York night club can be imagined.

The story revolves around a swinging New York bachelor dentist Dr. Julian Winston (Chris Smith) who invents a wife and children in order not to become too involved with his latest heartthrob, Toni Simmons (Janice Smith).

When Toni attempts suicide after being stood-up, Dr. Winston proposes marriage. But Toni won't agree until she meets Dr. Winston's imaginary wife, who, conveniently, has agreed to a divorce.

The Doc persuades his attractive but straight-laced nurse Stephanie Dickinson (Linda Amtsbuechler) to pose as his imaginary wife.

In the meantime, the Doc's intended starts playing footsie with a writer-neighbor Igor Sullivan (David Trautman) who has a penchant for visiting Toni wrapped only in a bath towel.

Complicating the plot and adding touches of sparkling humor are Mrs. Dixon Durant (Anne Landry), a society-dame patient of the doctor's who loses a filling on a caramel; Harvey Greenfield (Paul Voorheis) who brings his girlfriends to Dr. Winston for free dental work; Senor Arturo Sanches (John Holec), an ambassador to the United Nations from an undisclosed Latin American country who likes to forget he has a wife at home; and Boticelli's Springtime (Pat Bloom of Charlevoix), Greenfield's latest love and an inveterate tippler.

The scene involving Mrs. Bloom and Voorheis in the Fleabag Supper Club is high comedy.

Other roles are played by Gerald E. Landry, a music lover; Jay Nelsin, a customer at the Village LP Record Shop; and Sandi Wangeman, a gum-chewing waitress who will break you up.

Veteran LTCT actor Chris Smith reaches professional status in "Cactus Flower." His comic timing is superb and his stage projection unimpeachable.

Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Amtsbuechler, Mrs. Landry, Trautman Voorheis and Holec also are excellently cast.

"Cactus Flower" was written by Abe Burrows, based on a play by Pierre Barillet and Jean Pierre Gredy. It is directed by Ross Stoakes of Petoskey and contains many Stoakes' touches that theater-goers in the area have come to appreciate.

Remaining performances of the play will be Nov. 4 and 5 at 8 p.m. at Gig's.

Magistrate's Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Magistrate John Connolly:

Sandra J. Smith, 33, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for driving with an expired operator's license.

Daniel H. Strong, 27, Boyne Falls, was assessed $10 for driving a motor vehicle with defective equipment.

Mary Lou Supernaw, 28, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for failure to obey a stop sign.

Charles E. Butters, 18, Petoskey, was assessed $15 for failure to obey a stop sign.

Frank Antene, 23, Traverse City, was assessed $15 for improper passing and overtaking.

Earnest Moore, 25, Charlevoix, was assessed $10 for driving a motor vehicle with defective equipment.

Winter Sports Guide Ready

If you're one of those people who have never considered a vacation in winter, the Michigan Tourist Council has just published 199 reasons why you should.

The 1971-72 Michigan Winter Sports Guide lists 73 developed sports areas; 15 in the Upper Peninsula, 34 in West Michigan, 15 in East Michigan and 9 in Southeast Michigan. These include two new areas debuting this season; Adventure Mountain at Mass in the Upper Peninsula and Fun Valley, five miles north of Mio on County road 612 in eastern Michigan.

Many areas have made additions and improvements to their facilities and expanded their accommodations. Other plus factors enhancing Michigan winter vacations are cozy cocktail lounges, heated swimming pools, dancing and entertainment.

New, add 126 authorized snowmobile areas and you have 199 reasons for a "snowsational" winter vacation in Michigan. There are a few more too, because the majority of Michigan's state parks have some areas open for snowmobiling. The Council suggests that the snowmobiler check with the individual park managers for specific locations.

For a free copy of the 1971-72 Winter Sports Guide, just address a card to the Michigan Tourist Council, Lansing, 48926.

Sgt. Fettig Claims Bride in Phoenix

Lynne Marie Border of Phoenix, Ariz., became the bride of Sgt. Steven Anthony Fettig of Camp Daggett-rd., in ceremonies Oct. 16 at Luke Air Force Base Chapel, Glendale, Ariz., Fr. Harnyak officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Border of 4038 East Fillmore, Phoenix. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fettig sr., R-1, Petoskey.

Approximately 200 guests attended the nuptial mass, which was conducted by candlelight.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin Juliet gown and carried a bouquet of white carnations tipped in blue.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Rick Gill. Bridesmaids were Pamela Border and Ruth Border and junior bridesmaids were Edith Susan Fettig and Rebecca Border. They wore evening gowns of baby blue and carried bouquets of blue and yellow carnations and baby's breath. Bekki Galbreath was flower girl.

Best man was Joseph Dutkowski and groomsmen were Sgt. Ivan Tillbury and Sgt. Tom Walsh. Sgt. Bob Arrington and Sgt. Ken Williams served as ushers. Gordan A. McMillan was organist.

The reception was held at the Luke AFB NCO club, hosted by the Borders. Mr. and Mrs. Fettig hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Big Apple Restaurant in Phoenix.

Both Mrs. Border and Mrs. Fettig wore light blue street length gowns for the wedding.

Guests attended from Petoskey, Arlington, Va., Morgantown, W. Va., and South Dakota.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Judge W. Richard Smith:

John D. Kujawski, 23, Boyne City, was assessed $25 for careless driving.

Wayne R. Kuzmik, 19, Boyne City, plead guilty to receiving stolen property. He will be sentenced later.

Celeste Murdick, 17; John Francis Murdick, 18; and Michael R. Bergmann, 18, all of Charlevoix, plead guilty to illegal use of marijuana. They were assessed $240 each, to be paid at the rate of $20 a month. Miss Murdick and John Murdick were sentenced to spend three weekends in jail and Bergmann was sentenced to 10 days in jail, with credit for time already served. They all were placed on two years' probation.

Gordon McCrary and Gordon Cotton, both of Charlevoix, plead guilty to a charge of petty larceny. They were assessed $50 each and ordered to pay $30 restitution each.

Sam Staph, 19, Mancelona, was assessed $35 as a minor in possession of alcoholic beverages.

Murley Shnnanquet, 43, East Jordan, demanded examination on a charge of breaking and entering. Bond was not furnished.

Frank L. Trojanek, 18, East Jordan, was assessed $35 as a minor in possession of alcoholic beverages.

Glenn L. Wilson, 31, East Jordan, was assessed $105 for driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He also surrendered his driver's license for 90 days.

'EnvironVan' Lecturers Discuss Lake Ecology

By Ted Schantz
and Beloit College
News Service

Science students at Charlevoix High School took part in a lecture-presentation on the "Ecology of Lake Michigan" by a team of Beloit College students on Oct. 28 at the school.

Charlevoix High School is one of about 85 schools along the lakeshore at which the Wisconsin-based team will appear.

Known as "EnvironVan," the program is designed to stimulate study of the environment by secondary school students. When possible, the team also is speaking to adult groups.

In addition to the formal lecture-presentations to the high school students, the Beloit student-environmentalists will conduct a field trip each Saturday of their 14-week journey for students visited during the week.

The 1971 EnvironVan program is principally funded by a grant from the U.S. Office of Education. The team visiting schools along the lakeshore is one of five teams this fall. Other teams are touring the Wisconsin and Rock Rivers, the Grand and Kalamazoo Rivers, the Wabash River, and the Miami River.

More than 150,000 high school students in 350 high schools in nine states along the Mississippi River.

Making up the EnvironVan team at Charlevoix were Don Meagher of Westbury, N.Y., and Joe Strapko of San Bernardino, Calif., who discussed pollution of the Great Lakes and atomic power plants.

Prior to beginning its extensive trip, the team spent considerable time along the lakeshore viewing possible field trip sites, photographing geologic formations and other landmarks, and coordinating textbook material into a localized program.

The formal EnvironVan programs, which are presented at no charge to host schools and organizations, will be concerned with geographic and geological formations along Lake Michigan, as well as the effect of man on the lakeshore environment.

Covering about 4,000 miles in three and one half months, living in a 20-foot motor home, the EnvironVan team will be doing more than discussing a topic of contemporary interest. It also will be attempting to stimulate interest in the study of science as a career by demonstrating the many positive areas in which science can work to improve and preserve the environment.

Toward the end of the assembly, students discussed possible solutions to ecological problems, including the recycling of waste products and conservation of natural resources. The assembly concluded with a question and answer session.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Leaf Pick-up Conducted by Bio Students

By VICKI SKELTON

Biology classes at Charlevoix High School are sponsoring a "Leaf Pick-up" in the city of Charlevoix from Nov. 1-5.

Students are asking residents of the community to put raked leaves in bags and place them on the curb.

They also ask that only leaves be placed in the bags; no sticks, bottles, cans, or other debris. Students will collect the leaves after school during the designated week.

The purpose of this "Leaf Pick-up" is to prevent the pollution created burning leaves.

The leaves collected will be hauled to H.J. Wilson's farm and dumped in a field for compost.

Volleygals Win7, Lose 1

By DENISE WAGNER

With all of the energy that Rayder girls displayed in Petoskey at the third volleyball meet, it's no wonder they came home with a seven win and one loss record Mondny, Oct. 25, against Petoskey, Boyne City and Cheboygan.

Team I won three games and lost one and team II won four games and lost none.

Eight girls out of 21 will be chosen to represent C.H.S. in the conference meet to be held in Cheboygan on Nov. 6.

THE REFRESHMENT stand has been dedicated by the Charlevoix Sports Boosters in memory of the late John Martin, a life-long backer of athletic programs in the city.

Hart Wants Doctors Out of Drug Sales

Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.) has reintroduced his bill which would take doctors generally out of the business of selling things they prescribe.

The bill – the Regulation of Trade in Drugs Act of 1971 – would prohibit physicians from owning an interest in small drug repackaging companies, from dispensing drugs – with some exceptions – and from owning an interest in a pharmacy.

Physicians could dispense drugs occasionally and in emergencies but not as a usual course of doing business.

"Doctor-dispensing of drugs and devices would be allowed when actually in the best interests of the patients. But, doctor-profiteering would be eliminated," Hart said.

Hart said the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee has been investigating the effects of doctor-merchants for seven years.

"Our hearing records are filled with examples of overprescribing, overpricing, and dangerous handling of medications," he said.

"On the economic side, we have documented the number of independent businessmen who have been seriously harmed – many to the point of bankruptcy -- by doctor-merchants."

Homecoming A Success

By CHARLEY BORTHS

This year's homecoming was truly a success for Charlevoix.

Under the direction of Student Council President Fred Davison, and vice-president Paul Klooster, the schedule of events came off without a hitch.

The Rayders also beat Gaylord 8-0 making it another victory for Charlevoix.

Both the Senior class and the Student Council profited from the Homecoming Dance which was well attended.

Silent Auction Is Planned By Rebekahs

Nine members of the Rebekah Lodge met Tuesday evening, Oct. 26, at the Legion Post Home. Noble Grand Mrs. Sims Baker conducted the regular business meeting. Discussion and plans were made for a joint potluck dinner and card party to be held with members of the Odd Fellow Lodge.

Mrs. Eldred Ostrum reported on her attendance at the Rebekah Assembly held at Grand Rapids, Oct. 17 through the 19. Mrs. Baker also reported on her recent visit with former local member, Mrs. Olga Henrickson who is a patient at a convalescent and rest home at Grand Rapids. Mrs Hendrickson sent her regards to local friends.

Mrs Ostrum and Mrs. Baker are on the luncheon committee for the next regular meeting on November 9. A Silent Auction will be held at that time as a money making project.

Graduates

Navy Seaman Apprentice Benjamin E. Drost, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Drost of Route 2, Charlevoix, has graduated from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

The Charlevoix County Road Commission will accept sealed bids until 10:00 AM Friday, November 12, 1971 at their offices at 1051 East Division St., Boyne City, Michigan 49712 for the sale of:

One used V-Plow No. 5
Six used 1-Way Plows No. 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, & 7.

Plows may be seen at Road Commission Garage in Boyne City. The Commission reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive informalities in bidding, and to award the bid as the Commission deems to the best interest of the County.

China in the U.N.: A Step Toward Peace

The United Nations vote Oct. 25 granting Red China a seat on the Security Council in place of Chiang Kai-shek's government-in-exile on Taiwan should go a long way toward easing the terrible tensions that have beset peoples of the world since the 1940's.

For the first time in 22 years, the great mass of Chinese people (750 million of them) will have a voice in the United Nations --- an organization which remains our last, best hope of achieving world-wide peace.

The 76-35 vote to seat the Peoples Republic of China in the U.N. was, in the words of Britain's Sir Colin Crowe, a "return to reality" in the arena of world politics.

Although many top-ranking U.S. legislators and diplomats have expressed dismay at the ouster of Chiang's government from the world body, official Washington remains relatively calm.

Even Secretary of State William Rogers, who fears the U.N. might have made a grave mistake, admits there may be some advantage in having mainland China represented, even though 14 million Taiwanese have lost their voice.

Furthermore, admission of Red China to the U.N. certainly will provide a more agreeable climate for President Nixon's visit to Peiping next year.

The American Right --- including the John Birch Society --- certainly will raise cane over the U.N. vote, viewing it as another step in the world-wide Communist plot to take over America. But such a reaction is to be expected.

Nationalist Chinese Foreign Minister Chow Shu-kai's comment that "It will be the beginning of a third world war" is more difficult to understand. It would seem that recognition of Red China by the U.N. lessen the possibility of World War III.

Although it is perhaps too early to be overly optimistic, the world situation appears to be brighter in the fall of 1971 than it has for many a moon.

In recent weeks top-ranking Russian officials have carried the olive branch to both Canada and France. And in the offing are our own President's proposed visits to Russia and China.

Furthermore, the abominable war in Vietnam seems to be sealing down markedly as more and more American troops are brought home.

In light of recent developments, the Republic of China's acceptance by the U.N. seems a natural step toward greater international harmony.

DIRECT LINE

Senator Bob Davis

Q. With all the petition drives and joint resolutions being introduced in the Legislature, what will the 1972 general election ballot look like? M.G., Newberry.

A. The way special interests are clamoring to put their favorite issues on the ballot for a statewide vote of the people it appears that the 1972 ballot will be a "bedsheet" affair.

Normally, the election will be a big affair anyway because voters will be electing a President and United States Senator, among others. But in addition it appears that there will be several other important issues up for a vote. They include:

1. Double fast time. Although twice defeated by the Legislature and once by the people, the daylight savings time backers don't give up easily. They already have qualified the issue for the ballot.

2. Authorize a graduated income tax. The graduated income tax was turned down by the 1963 Constitutional Convention and was soundly beaten by Michigan voters in 1968. But union leaders are determined to try to force the issue on the public again.

3. Property tax relief. This would ease property taxes for school purposes and provide other means of financing education.

4. Unicameral legislature. Although the Congress and 49 states retain the time-tested two-house legislature and only one small farm state–Nebraska–has the one-house legislature, there is a move to install the virtually untried unicameral legislature in Michigan.

5. Abortion reform. A bill to liberalize Michigan abortion laws already has passed the Senate but it is stalled in the House of Representatives under the leadership of Speaker William Ryan. Backers hope to take the referendum method of amending the constitution to get around inaction in the House.

6. Legalize Lotteries. Backing for legalizing lotteries has gained strength in Michigan in recent years, primarily because it would be a means of increasing state income without increasing normal tax sources.

7. Constitutional limitation on the state income tax. Former State Senator Robert Huber and other conservatives would put a 2.6 percent ceiling on personal income tax.

8. Reduce size of legislature. An alternative to the unicameral legislature.

9. Change legislative pay system. Small group would take away from the people their right to set pay of legislators and give it back to the legislators themselves.

10. Exempt homesteads from property tax. Has great appeal among home owners and those on limited incomes.

These are just a few of the issues Michigan voters may be called upon to face in 1972. Others are sure to make their way to the front before next year.

Please address your questions and comments to Sen. Robert Davis, State Capitol, Lansing, Mich. 48902.

Friske Asks Nixon Veto On Child Act

October 20, 1971

The Honorable Richard M. Nixon
President of the United States
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

On Sept. 30, 1971, by a margin of just three votes the House of Representatives passed one of the most dangerous pieces of legislation. By 186 votes to 183 the House approved the Comprehensive Child Development Act as an amendment to H.R. 10351.

Of the 183 members of the House who voted against the Comprehensive Child Development Act, 134 are Republicans. Mr. President, this clearly indicates that your party, of which I am also a member, spoke against this measure. This gives you grounds to veto the entire bill of which it is so important a part.

The Comprehensive Child Development Act is specifically aimed at children from one to five below school age. It sets up the financing and complete machinery for a total invasion by government on this last stronghold, the homes in America. I lived under the Hitler dominated system of total control and government intrusion in the affairs of every individual. I fled to the United States where freedom prevailed. Must we go the same way so many other countries have gone and end up under dictatorship? I think not. Mr. President, I respectfully urge you to follow the expression of the 134 members of your party and mine and the 49 Democrats and veto this entire bill.

Respectfully,

RICHARD FRISKE
State Representative

Would Exchange Be 2-Way?

2125 Sheffield Drive
Kalamazoo, Mich.
Oct. 18, 1971

Dear Bob:

On Oct. 17, 1971, the Kalamazoo Gazette also featured an editorial concerning Sen. Griffin's position on busing to achieve racial desegration of public schools. The Gazette assesses Griffin's stand somewhat differently from the Courier. I thought you might be interested.

(Editor's note: The Courier applauded Sen. Griffin for his proposed amendment to the Constitution which would prohibit busing of students to achieve a racial balance in the classroom. The Kalamazoo Gazette claims that the senator's concern about "forced" busing developed only when such busing began to offend Michigan voters.)

I do at once commend and question the Courier's suggestion that ghetto children be invited into Charlevoix homes and schools. Surely increased understandings of racial and cultural differences and similarities could result from activation of this suggestion – and yet:

Would this be a "two-way street," a true exchange program with Charlevoix students experiencing urban ghetto life?

How could this practically involve children younger than high school age, for whom the aims of your suggestion would be equally valid?

Hastily yours,
Carrie Duerr Venema

(Editor's note: The exchange could indeed be a "two-way street." I am sure there are many young people in Charlevoix sufficiently mature to benefit immensely from such an experience. Furthermore, there is no reason such a program could not involve younger children, as well as teenagers, but I suggest this phase of the program be a "one-way street," with urban youngsters coming to the small towns. I am sure you will agree that a certain level of maturity is necessary to cope with big city problems–unless you happen to be born there. I would suggest one limitation to such a program: That youngsters spend no longer than one school year in their new environment. The temptation to keep their exchange students indefinitely will be almost irresistible for some families; however the inner cities will benefit most when their exchange students return with new ideas and new outlooks on life.)

Would Let Son Ride On Bus

October 10, 1971

The Editor
Charlevoix Courier
111 Bridge Street
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720
ATTN: Bob Clock

Dear Bob:

As a concerned parent, I'm desirous of making response to your editorial of the past week concerning the "partially sighted school bus driver." Please understand from the very beginning that I'd entrust the care of my young son who is a student in the Charlevoix system to such a man for the following reasons:

1. No indication was given as to the man's "good eye" whether 20/20 or other. In fact, no real indication was given in the issue of the Courier which included the School Board Minutes, and the Courier editorial as to if the man's vision were 20/200 with or without corrective glasses or other visual aids.

2. There are other prime and important considerations for qualifications of a school bus driver...examples, steady nerves under possible distraction of students on a bus, response to traffic conditions, and important of course the man's basic attitude of affection and understanding of school age children.

3. During the school year, weather conditions of fog, snow, and other natural phenomena cause a considerable decrease in visable conditions. No one, whether 20/20 or 20/10 can actually "see" more than a few feet ahead in a snowstorm. Maturity of judgement is then required under such conditions.

4. Jobs in the area are hard to come by. If the bone to pick between the Superintendent and the school board comes to further anymosity, I'd be hopeful that such a man under consideration demand and be hired in another position.

5. Let me again say I'd entrust my sons care to a mature man. It takes "guts" to drive a school bus. I know because I teach.

Sincerely, sign me
Tolliferro

Clockwise Restaurant Sleuth

By BOB CLOCK

There was a story in Detroit Magazine, which accompanies the Free Press every Sunday, which could well give Charlevoix restauranteurs the heebie-jeebies.

Raymond Sokolov, a frequent summer visitor in Charlevoix, has been named food editor of the New York Times, a position so powerful that Sokolov could make or break any restaurant in Gotham with a few inches of type.

So says Wayne King, a former Detroit Free Press editor now working for the Times, who wrote the Free Press piece on Sokolov.

The new food editor's connections with Charlevoix were pointed out to the Courier by Mrs. Edith Gilbert, author of the book "All About Parties" and something of an expert on fine food herself.

She said Sokolov and his parents used to vacation at the Sunset cottages at the foot of Dixon-ave. She added that food editor Sokolov was a guest at a New York's Eve party at her home several years ago.

But in those days, the name Sokolov didn't strike fear into the hearts of headwaiters and maitre de's, as it does today.

That is why Sokolov tries to arrive incognito when he dines out in New York.

"Say 'Sokolov' when you sit down in one of Gotham's leading restaurants and there's a good chance the fish chowder on the menu will become a petit bouillabaisse in the kitchen, or the beef stew a Boeuf Bourguignon," writes Wayne King.

"That, of course, is no bad thing if you're the ordinary once-a-month gourmet, or a traveling salesman trying to impress a client. But for Raymond Sokolov, letting the waiter know who you are is like telling the skinheads at Fort Bragg that General Westmoreland is on the grounds. Word passes from headwaiter to chef, from pantry to wine cellar, from baker to salad man. Waiters scurry like marshalled penguins; flowers sprout on suddenly immaculate tables; tarnished forks, the ghosts of long-dead yokes haunting their tines, clatter into hiding to be replaced by silver glinting like the light of hope in the owner's eye.

"He is here."

"Sokolov is in the dining room."

"Sokolov."

Such apparently is the power of the food editor of the New York Times.

Quite democratically, Sokolov doesn't spend all of his time nibbling delicacies, at big, fancy, expensive restaurants. Once he turned an unpretentious little family eatery into the toast of New York City by giving it a four-star rating in his column. The restaurant developed a year-long reservation list.

Another time he found the Chinese food offered in a diner attached to a New Jersey gas station to be superb. A few complimentary words from Sokolov turned the area into one massive traffic jam at mealtimes.

According to writer Wayne King, Sokolov is the most influential food critic in the country – something akin to the position once held by the late Duncan Hines, author of the book "Adventures in Good Eating."

Hines, you'll remember, traveled around the country sampling the cuisine at restaurants from coast to coast. If he found it fit for a gourmet, the restaurant was awarded a little plaque which read, "Recommended by Duncan Hines", and a report on the specialties of the house were included in Hines' gastronomic travelogues.

Unlike Sokolov, who apparently tries to maintain a mantle of anonmity throughout the meal, Hines arrived on the scene like a health inspector.

If possible, he went around to the back door first to see how the restaurant handled its waste disposal. If the garbage were properly handled, he felt reasonably assured that the rest of the operation probably met his exacting health standards.

Once when he arrived at the back door of a famous eatery he was astounded to find an alley cat snoozing peacefully atop a mound of bread dough which had been left outside in the sun to rise.

Needless to say, Hines didn't even try the front door.

If he did make it inside, Hines never hesitated to ask the waiter if he could visit the kitchen. If permission were granted and if the kitchen passed inspection, Hines would order a meal. If permission were denied, Hines left, and the restaurant missed an opportunity for international acclaim.

Hines thought so well of his system that he urged all restaurant-goers to request kitchen tours, but, happily for chefs and dish washers, his idea never gained much currency.

Sokolov, as you might suspect, isn't a native New Yorker. He comes from Detroit where his late grandfather ran a fish market and where his mother and father, a retired physician, still live.

And the Sokolovs still visit Charlevoix.

So city restauranteurs can't say they haven't been warned. The next time a thin little fellow with prematurely greying hair arrives at their doorstep and identifies himself as Harry Smith or George Wilson, it could well be Raymond Sokolov on assignment for the New York Times.

If it Fitz

One of Those Days

By JIM FITZGERALD

It was another one of those days when nothing went right and I knew the world was against me.

For one thing, Michigan State lost another football game.

It has been 20 years since I left that school. It has grown way too big. Its fancy buildings are full of youngsters learning "business administration," whatever that is, while what the world needs now is more plumbers. I resent the expensive brochures which come regularly through the mail, seeking cash from alumni. The football players are nothing more than paid assassins, trading their muscle and speed for a diploma and a chance to pull the brass ring out of the Super Bowl.

But yet, every autumn Saturday I agonize along with old MSU, exulting in its touchdowns and despairing in its fumbles. I can't help it. Why is that, doctor?

After the game came dinner in a fancy restaurant. The waitress took our drink order and became invisible. I had yearned for a drink since MSU fell 2 TD's behind in the 2nd quarter.

"Where is that waitress," I whispered to my wife.

"Don't scream," she said. "People are looking. And it isn't her fault Michigan State has a terrible team."

About a week later, the waitress materialized. I welcomed her back and asked her why she hadn't dropped us a postcard. She smiled and handed me a glass containing whiskey and soda. I had ordered whiskey and water. I started to sob.

The steak wasn't rare enough and the people at the next table were loud-mouthed Notre Dame fanatics. I dropped soft butter on my new suit and the most obnoxious bore in the place was an old schoolmate who wanted to relive the days when he was a basketball star and I had 500 pimples on my nose. It was that kind of a day......

And that's not the worst of it. The worst part had been getting out of the house, five hours earlier. At the last minute our two teenage kids had informed us we couldn't leave because they needed chauffering. Chris had singing rehearsal in the afternoon and a church supper in the evening. Eddie had to go to a shopping center and to a football game. How were they going to get there if their selfish parents took the car and left town?

I told them I didn't care, so goodbye. I was a real grump and I didn't even look back as I drove away. As I explained to my wife, those darn kids expect too much. They're not going to run my life, by God.

As usual, my wife wasn't convinced. Throughout the day she kept muttering little worry-words about the wheel-less plight of her poor little children. Which just made me grumpier. By the end of dinner I had made it clear the whole day had been a pain and the biggest pain of all was caused by those damn kids.

As we left the restaurant, a young boy sped out the door ahead of us. He was racing his parents to their car. They were all laughing and having a great time. The boy was about 13, the same age as our son.

And this laughing boy was doing his racing in a wheelchair. He didn't have any legs.

It was another one of those days when nothing went wrong and I knew the world had been so very kind to me.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

from The Bible

You are the light of the world.—(Matt. 5:14).

Because we live, move and have our being in God the Father we must then live, move and have our being in His light, the Christ light. There is light, the light of Christ and we are part of that light. So open up our minds and make this truth a working premise of our every day. Through the Christ in us declare, we are the light of the world.

Settlers Used Pumpkins In Soup, Stew, Pudding

Some pumpkins are just that–"some punkins."

One hundred pounders are common, children competing in contests manage to grow 160-pound specimens, and a Pennsylvania farmer raised a monster that weighed in at 260 pounds.

In Missouri, a single stray pumpkin seed produced a nightmarish plant, turning a small backyard into a jungle. In half a year, the vines stretched 1,986 feet. The longest single runner measured 75 feet.

The vines overran everything in the yard–grape arbor, fruit tree, and flowers. By the time a November frost killed it, the plant had produced 20 mature pumpkins weighing a total of 300 pounds.

RED CHINAS GROW

Field pumpkins reach their ponderous, golden-orange peak in fall. Vines are heavy with Illinois Beauties, Indiana Cornfields, Bugle Grammas, Quaker Pies, Golden Crushaws, and even Red Chinas.

All the varieties belong to the same species, "Cucurbita pepo," the National Geographic Society says. Though the family resemblance is slight, close relatives are slender green zucchini, cauliflower-shaped white bush scallop, golden summer crookneck, and other summer squash.

Pumpkins originated in Mexico and Central America. Centuries before Columbus reached the New World, Indian tribes were cultivating pumpkins and squash almost everywhere in North America.

COOK FIRST

Captain John Smith wrote that Virginia Indians grew a "fruite like unto a Muske Millon, but lesse and worse." The intrepid leader apparently made the mistake of sampling a raw pumpkin.

American colonists soon found that cooked pumpkin was a tasty, nourishing food. As early as 1630 a versifier wrote: "If fresh meat be wanting to fill up your dish, We have carrots and pumpkins and turnips and fish. We have pumpkins at morning and pumpkins at noon, If it were not for pumpkins we should be undone."

SOUP AND SAUCE

The early settlers made pumpkin soup, stew, pudding, bread, and griddle cakes, as well as pie. The flesh was dried for use in winter and spring or boiled down into a thick sauce. "Punkin sass and roast possum" was a delicacy. Pumpkin seeds were fried, dried, and salted as a treat.

A colonial drinking song proclaimed: "Oh, we can make liquor to sweeten our lips, Of pumpkins, of parsnips, of walnut-tree chips."

PUMPKIN HEAD

Even the shell was used. Early New England blue laws required every man to have his excess hair trimmed around a cap. Sometimes a dried half shell was substituted, and New Englanders were called pumpkin heads. The epithet later came to mean a dolt or stupid fellow.

The term "some pumpkins," for a person or thing of consequence, apparently was coined by New Yorkers in the 1850's when their fancy was taken by monster pumpkins displayed at the Crystal Palace.

Henry Ward Beecher, the preacher and lecturer, introduced the phrase to startled Englishmen when he declared London was "some pumpkins, I tell you."

The London Times soberly explained that this was a "profound Americanism, which is supposed to convey a wholly unutterable approbation and surprise."

Task Force Report

potential for various recreational activities must exist.

2. The economic feasibility of the Memorial will depend on the tourist volume, so optimum accessibility by auto from major urban areas is necessary.

3. A large tract of land must be available or acquirable. The size of the Memorial proposed to be 2,000 to 10,000 acres in size.

With assistance from Michigan State University, a Woodland Indian National Memorial site score sheet was prepared to assist in evaluating several sites which were suggested to the ITCM. Twenty-seven potential sites were quickly evaluated and because of the need for high accessibility, all except those in the northwestern quarter of Lower Michigan were eliminated.

The remaining sites included:

1. Skegemog point east of Traverse City
2. Dead Man's Hill, an overlook of the Jordan River Valley in Antrim County
3. High Rollway, a large area of Manistee River Valley in Wexford County
4. An area of land with several small lakes near Waters, Mich., in Otsego and Crawford Counties
5. The Fisherman's Island site, an area of land with Lake Michigan frontage, close to Charlevoix

(All five sites were visited. Following is the Task Force summary of the Fisherman's Island site which was finally selected.)

"The Fisherman's Island site near Charlevoix appeared much more promising. Dr. Charles Cleland of Michigan State University had previously explored the site and had found ample archaeological evidence to prove the Woodland Indians had lived on the site. An outcropping of chert has been mined for many centuries by the Woodland Indians and was used to provide tools used throughout Michigan.

This site also had good accessibility, was close to Charlevoix for the required services, and had ample undeveloped land available in large parcels.

Hot Lunch

Following is the hot lunch menu at the Elementary School for the coming week.

Thursday, Nov. 4: Spaghetti with hamburg and tomatoes, green beans, pudding.

Friday, Nov. 5: Tomato soup, toasted cheese sandwiches, carrot and celery sticks, fruit.

Monday, Nov. 8: Chili, crackers and cheese, peanut butter sandwiches, apple strudel.

Tuesday, Nov. 9: Beef stew, mashed potatoes, green beans, rolls, pudding.

Wednesday, Nov. 10: Meat loaf, scalloped potatoes, buttered peas, fruit.

C of C's Gala Autumn Ball Is Saturday

You can still buy tickets for the most gala event on the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce's fall calendar as late as Saturday morning, according to C of C manager Tom Merta.

The event is the Autumn Ball at the Belvedere Club Casino overlooking Lake Charlevoix on Saturday night, Nov. 6.

Grey Gables is catering the dinner, which will feature stuffed pork chops. Following will be a short business meeting at which new C of C board members will be introduced.

Then comes dancing until the wee hours to the music of the New Steinsmen, led by Gary Stutzman.

Cocktails start at 7, the meal will be served at 8.

Members of the C of C are urged to return their board of directors election ballots to the chamber office as soon as possible.

Chiefs Dump Rayders

Charlevoix's Red Rayders remained in fourth place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference this week after suffering an 18-0 defeat at the hands of the Cheboygan Chiefs.

It was the last conference game for Charlevoix, which will wind up the season Friday with a non-con match with Onaway at Charlevoix.

Also billed for Friday night are Gaylord at Cheboygan, St. Ignace at Boyne City and Rogers City at Petoskey.

In other action last Friday, league leaders Rogers City and St. Ignace came to an 18-18 stand-off, leaving both teams at 4-0-1 for the season. Easy wins are predicted for both teams in the final round.

Cheboygan scored in the first quarter against Charlevoix, on a 50-yard run by Jim Watkins.

The second quarter was scoreless, but Charlevoix's best chance came in the third when the Rayders took the ball to the one-yard line after kick-off. But the Chiefs recovered a Charlevoix fumble and Rayder drive fizzled.

The Chiefs scored in the last seconds of the quarter on a five-yard run by Ron Fuhr, giving the Chiefs a 12-0 quarter on a five-yard run by Ron Fuhr, giving the Chiefs a 12-0 edge. The Cheboygan team frosted the cake in the fourth with another TD run from the four by Mike Lafrinere.

Mayor Suspends Hanna for Week

Mayor Andrew Essenburg placed City Superintendent Thomas Hanna on a week's suspension Monday night, with pay, to give him time to answer a long list of complaints by the mayor on how Hanna is handling his job.

More than 100 persons jammed the council chambers for the heated meeting, one of the largest crowds since the rip-roaring days of former Mayor Johnny Knight.

Essenburg charged:

–That Hanna has not given him city records (delinquent electric accounts) that he requested.

–That it took Hanna seven months to remove a stop sign that he requested removed.

–That Hanna has not contacted him for the past two months on city business.

–That Hanna hired Norm Empey as city mechanic, although both the mayor and Department Chief Leonard Dubey recommended that he hire Don Meggison.

–That Hanna has allowed city trucks to deteriorate in the absence of a city mechanic.

–That some lights at the airport have been out since last winter.

–That the water tower is in a bad state of repair.

–That Hanna has told city employe Steve Paterka not to take orders from the mayor.

–That upkeep at the cemetery has been a "fiasco."

–That Hanna misled Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Withers into building an addition to the A&W on the U.S. 31 right-of-way, costing the Withers $5,000, and –That Hanna has been opening mail addressed to the mayor and that one letter dealing with inadequacies of the city ambulance was not even brought to his attention.

Hanna, who has the solid backing of the council, attempted to answer some of the charges orally, but said he preferred to answer "in writing, for the record."

Hanna, who was a member of the council before being appointed city superintendent, said: "I have served the community to the best of my ability for almost two and one-half years. I have done nothing to be ashamed of.

"In all honesty," he continued, "this issue is before every resident of the city. Do you want elected representatives to run the city, or do you want it run by political pressure? If it's the latter, you don't have to ask for my resignation; I'll give it to you."

When Hanna left the council chamber after a burst of applause, his secretary, Mrs. Shelby R. (Bunny) Goss, rose and asked who she would take orders from during the coming week.

When Essenburg indicated that he would be running city hall, Mrs. Goss said that she, too, was leaving.

Alderman Roger Westenbroek asked City Attorney Robert Hoffman to prepare an interpretation of the Fourth Class Cities Act relative to the responsibilities of the council and the mayor for presentation at a special council meeting called for Monday night, to hear Hanna's responses to the mayor's accusations.

Essenburg pointed out that, although he recommended the appointment of Hanna as city superintendent last spring, council approval was held up pending the drawing up of a job description, which has never been done.

"Now I have been forced into a position where I feel I must ask for the resignation of the city administrator," Essenburg said.

Essenburg has been at loggerheads with the council on several occasions since taking office last April. He said three former mayors, James Hiller, Pat Hawley and Karl Erber have told him that he is not getting the cooperation he deserves.

Alderman Westenbroek told the audience that "it is no secret what kind of circus we have gone through at this council table the past few months. We have not been productive or progressive. Lately, the climate has been better and I thought we could work together, but I guess not.

In answering some of Essenburg's charges, Hanna said he did interview Meggison for the job as city mechanic, but he felt he couldn't hire him after the pressure exerted by the mayor.

He also said he had apologized to the mayor for not giving him a copy of the letter relative to ambulance licensing. He said he gave the letter to Police Chief Jack Mol for action and didn't even notice to whom it was addressed.

As for the records Essenburg requested, he said he didn't think it right to have copies of delinquent accounts distributed around the office.

Roadblock For Gunman

Charlevoix Police set up a roadblock at the U.S. 31 drawbridge Monday afternoon from 2 until 3:27 p.m. in efforts to apprehend a suspect in the armed robbery of Potter's Bakery in Traverse City earlier in the day.

Police Chief Jack Mol said the suspect was believed to be driving a black-on-blue Chevrolet or Mercury.

The gunman was described as a white male, six feet tall, with long, bleached blond hair. He escaped with $163 from the bakery.

Task Force Tells How Idea For Indian Memorial Began

If anything at all emerged from the public information meeting Thursday at Charlevoix High School relative to the proposed Woodland Indian National Memorial south of Charlevoix it is the fact that such projects don't blossom over night.

Bruce J. Miller of Philadelphia, chairman of the Memorial Task Force, explained that the work of his team is merely the groundwork on "an idea, a concept, a dream."

Before the project is financed by Congress it must go through a bewildering labyrinth of studies, approvals and public hearings which could delay establishment of the Indian park for years.

Miller, who is assistant director, Cooperative Programs, National Park Service, was accompanied to Charlevoix by Lester R. Nichols II, of the Michigan Department of Commerce's Office of Community Planning; Dr. Michael Chubb, associate professor, Department of Geography, Michigan State University; Howard Christensen and Peter Wright of the Dow-Corning Public Relations Department of Midland; Ben Quigno, secretary of the Inter-Tribal Council of Michigan; and Sam Milstein, deputy director-recreation, for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The group met before the general meeting with representatives of the Indian community and the Charlevoix County Planning Commission. Walt Thorsen, chairman of the Planning Commission, and William Mercer, county planning director, sat with the task force at the speaker's table during the two-hour presentation.

Miller told about 400 Charlevoix area residents in the area that the Memorial is an attempt to save something of the Woodland Indian culture which flourished in Michigan for thousands of years.

"Each day, something dies," he said. "Something fades irretrievably away."

He said the Memorial would be one way to "pay homage to these illustrious ancestors" who lived in accord with their environment.

Peter Wright said the idea of a Woodland Indian Memorial was first proposed to him by Ben Quigno in 1968 while Quigno was employed by Dow-Corning in Midland. He said Quigno had been exploring ways to establish such a Memorial for eight years but had been unable to solicit support for the project.

Wright and his co-worker, Howard Christensen, managed to get Dow-Corning interested in the project and the two men were given release-time to work with Quigno to get the ball rolling.

The idea was finally brought before former Secretary of the Interior Stuart Udall, who asked Miller to form a Task Force to investigate the feasibility of such a park and suggest a site.

Miller said the job of the Task Force has been completed and the project is in the hands of the Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton for further study.

Milstein, representing the Department of Natural Resources, said the Fisherman's Island site was selected partly because of state-owned land in the affected area.

He said there was a "tremendous push" about a year ago by residents of the area for the state to acquire more land near Fisherman's Island to prevent subdivision. (The land in question is the Keating Corp. property south of Bells Bay.)

Milstein expressed surprise that there is so much sentiment against the proposed park in light of efforts to preserve wilderness areas such a short time ago.

Dr. Chubb said the Fisherman's Island site was selected because of (1) Artifacts found in the area; (2) Vegetation which in time will resemble vegetation in the days of the Woodland Indians; (3) Accessibility to water, which was a characteristic of the Indian culture; and (4) The fact that the land would lend itself to nature trails and other proposed improvements, yet is close to transportation and community services.

Ben Quigno told the audience that Indians, through their concern for others, have "something to say to America — and even to the world" via the Indian Memorial.

"Once the hemisphere was ours; now we are without resources," he said quietly. "Yet we would live under no other flag on Mother Earth."

Quigno said the Indians are "prevailing upon our country to memorialize our ancestors."

RICHARD CLUTE of Hillman favored the project as a means of saving an area rich in artifacts from early civilizations.

MAYOR Andrew Essenburg said he was opposed to the proposed Woodland Indian Memorial

Tom-Tom Menaces Pow-Wow

The ominous sound of an Indian tom-tom outside the Charlevoix High School gymnasium brought the Task Force presentation on the Woodland Indian National Memorial to an abrupt standstill Thursday night.

"We don't have to take this harassment," one member of the commission commented as the drum grew louder and the speaker at the microphone resumed his seat.

Then it was learned that the ominous drum beat emanated from the High School Marching Band, which was on its way to Kipke Field for rehearsal.

CHAIRMAN Bruce Miller called the proposed memorial park "an idea, a concept, a dream."

BEN QUIGNO discussed the "noble culture" of the Woodland Indians.

DR. MICHAEL Chubb told why Fisherman's Island site was selected: Artifacts, vegetation, water features and potential for interpretation.

PETER Wright, Dow-Corning PR man, was given a free rein to help with the Memorial project.

Board Sets Standards For School Bus Drivers

A policy relating to the physical requirements for school bus and substitute drivers was approved by the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night after it was recommended by the policy committee.

After listing normal requirements, the following ruling regarding vision requirement, was included in the criteria: Excluding all permanent and substitute bus drivers presently employed by the Charlevoix public schools, all permanent and substitute drivers being hired after Nov. 8, 1971, shall possess the use of both eyes with vision equivalent to 20/40 or better with or without glasses regardless of previous experience as a bus driver.

The policy was adopted after it became known that one of its drivers had vision in one eye of only 20/200. Under the new policy he will continue as a driver. However, should he leave the employ of the school, he will not be re-hired.

In other action, Middle School reading and middle school social studies textbooks were added to the list of those being considered for adoption during the 1972-73 school year.

The board, realizing the need for some long-range planning for construction to meet the needs for school additions and modernization, voted to invite representatives of architect's firms for consultation sometime early next year. One will then be hired as school planner.

Pay adjustments for non-certified personnel were also approved. The decision will give two members of the custodial staff an increase of ten cents per hour or $2.25 to $2.35 per hour, and a 13 cent per hour increase ($1.72 to $1.85) for a food service employee. Adjustments for certain other school employes will be considered by Jan. 1.

The board also voted to reinstate field trips on a limited basis during the 1971-72 school year. Each request will be considered on its merits.

A report on the present vocational education program in the school revealed that 59.2 percent of the juniors and seniors in the Charlevoix high school are enrolled in one or more of the 17 vocational offerings. Nine courses are offered in the Charlevoix schools, four in the Petoskey area center and four available through cooperative education. A further breakdown shows 67.3 percent of the seniors and 51.4 juniors are in the program. This is an increase from 6.0 percent in 1965-66.

Harold Bliss Elected to Church Body

Harold Bliss, a member of Christ Episcopal Church, Charlevoix, was elected to the Executive Council of the Diocese of Western Michigan at the 97th annual convention recently in Kalamazoo.

The 16-member Executive Committee helps solve operating problems of the diocese.

Bliss, who moved to Charlevoix last year from the Detroit area, where he was affiliated with Trinity Church in Farmington and Christ Church in Dearborn.

A native of Sault Ste. Marie, he retired last year after 31 years as a purchasing agent for Ford Motor Co.

Boal Set For Return

Police Chief Jack Mol has received word from the state of Nevada that William Boal, wanted for embezzlement in Charlevoix, will be eligible for return to Charlevoix as soon as Nevada authorities are through with him.

The prosecutor's office has sought extradition of Boal to face charges of embezzling funds in excess of $100 from the Weathervane Inn a year ago last summer.

Boal's whereabouts were unknown until he reportedly was picked up in Nevada on a misdemeanor.

GOP Meet

Kathryn Hafstad of the Republican State Central office will address Charlevoix County Republicans Thursday, Nov. 11, at 8 p.m. in the County Building.

Chest May Fall Short

The Charlevoix Community Chest is within 80 percent of its goal of $22,000, according to Chest President John Lachman and Drive Chairman Tom LaBlanc.

Although some collections are still coming in, drive leaders are not optimistic about reaching the goal.

Cage Sign-up

The final sign-up period for participation in Independent Basketball League action this winter will be Thursday, Nov. 11, from 7 until 10 p.m. at the Middle School gymnasium.

COUNCIL MINUTES

October 25, 1971
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Essenburg presiding. Aldermen present: Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Sundberg. Absent: Alderman Klooster.

The Minutes of the October 11, 1971 meeting were approved as presented to the Council in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes book.

Attorney John Michael reported to the Council on the Shaw Henderson litigation. He stated he was very satisfied in the way the hearing went at the Federal Court of Appeals held last week in Cincinnati. A decision will be handed down at a future date.

Motion was made by Alderman Supernaw and supported by Alderman Boss that the Mayor's appointment of John Campbell to fill the unexpired term of George Lusk to the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission be approved. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Alderman Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Sundberg. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Klooster.

The following Resolution was offered by Alderman Supernaw and supported by Alderman Sundberg.

RESOLUTION

At a Regular meeting of the Common Council called to order by Mayor Andrew Essenburg, Jr. on October 25, 1971 at 8:00 p.m. the following resolution was offered:

That the request from Charlord, Inc. for transfer ownership of 1971 12 Months Resort Class C and SDM licensed business with Dance Permit located at Petoskey Avenue, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, Charlevoix County from W.R. Wood, be considered for Approval.

It is the consensus of this legislative body that the application be Recommended for issuance.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Sundberg. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Klooster.

Mayor Essenburg proclaimed Saturday night October 30 as Halloween; "trick or treat" night for the children.

Moved by Alderman Boss, supported by Alderman Sundberg that the City approve the renewal of the licenses of Joe McPhillips as Airport Manager for the year beginning November 1, 1971 and ending October 31, 1972. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Sundberg. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Klooster.

Moved by Alderman Westenbroek, supported by Alderman Boss that the City approve the renewal of the Airport License by the Michigan Department of Aeronautics for the year beginning November 1, 1971 and ending October 31, 1972. The Mayor is hereby authorized to sign application on behalf of the City of Charlevoix. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Sundberg. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Klooster.

A letter was read from Jim Bearss stating his desire to purchase a parset of land adjoining the north side of his Norwood Road property. It was put into committee for consideration.

A letter was read from property owners regarding the need for the May Street Sewer Main extension.

The City Administrator stated that the School had purchased an electric scoreboard and had inquired if the City would like to participate in the cost. The Council requested more time to decide on this matter.

Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Sundberg that a loan of $29,000 be made from the Electric Fund to the Public Improvement Fund. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Sundberg. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Klooster.

Alderman Boss reported on the lack of sanitary conditions at property owned by Shirley Ann Morales on Norwood Road. The City Administrator was requested by Council to contact the Health Department regarding this condition.

Mayor Essenburg inquired as to the status of hiring a mechanic. The City Administrator stated that a comparison of the last four months of operating without a mechanic shows a savings of $2,000., but that two applicants are being scheduled for personal interviews.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $193,799.70 find them correct and recommend they be allowed. Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Sundberg that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Sundberg. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman Klooster.

On Motion the Council adjourned.

Ida A. Heise, City Clerk

DNR Wants to Swap Hunting Rights on Island

Department of Natural Resources officials are seeking approval of a hunting rights exchange on South Fox Island to provide separate, consolidated blocks of lands for private and public hunting during the Nov. 15-Dec. 19 firearm deer season there.

The Natural Resources Commission, at its Nov. 11-12 meeting in Lansing, will be asked to give the green light to the proposed exchange which calls for trading hunting rights between 567 acres of state lands and 650 acres of private property on the wildlife research outpost in northern Lake Michigan.

The exchange would result in a solid block of about 1,197 acres being open to public hunting, covering the northern third of the island. By the same token, it would consolidate private hunting rights on the island into a separate tract of approximately 2,069 acres.

The two blocks of private and public hunting lands would be separated by a straight east-west boundary which would be marked and easy for hunters to pinpoint.

The DNR is printing maps which show the proposed new boundary line between those lands. If the exchange draws commission approval, those maps will be made available free to hunters.

The proposed exchange offers 83 acres of more public hunting lands than are now available on the island.

If it is approved, an isolated 115-acre area at the southernmost tip of the island would be closed to all hunting. Those lands would be placed off limits to eliminate risks which hunters would otherwise have to take if they tried to reach the remote area – by boat or on foot along the beach – from the northern tract open to public hunting. The distance between the northern and southern areas is a hazardous 2.5 miles by boat, point out DNR officials.

Aside from providing better access for both public and private hunting, the recommended exchange would not change the island's liberal deer regulations which were adopted by the Commission in August.

Under those rules, an unlimited number of deer hunters may go afield in the public hunting area. The number allowed on the private hunting block will be determined by its landowner.

Sportsmen signing up to hunt on the island's private tract may also use the northern public hunting area. All other hunters will have to limit their action to the public block of lands.

No all-terrain vehicles will be permitted in the public hunting area.

Regardless of where they plan to hunt on the island, all sportsmen will be required to pick up free permits at the DNR temporary headquarters on South Fox.

The special permits are being called for to promote research aspects of this season's deer hunt on the island.

In both the private and public areas, all hunters may take two deer – bucks or antlerless animals – during the extended Nov. 15-Dec. 19 firearm hunt on the island. Any hunter scoring there will still be eligible to take one other deer on Michigan's mainland.

CHARLEVOIX RED RAYDERS wound up the football season Friday night, defeating Onaway 24-12 in a non-conference finale. The Rayders had two wins and four losses for the season in conference play.

Winter Sports Booklets Are Now Available.

Boyne Country is readying itself for the coming winter sports season.

The Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce is now distributing two new publications, "The Top O'Mich Winter Guest Guide" and a Ski-Snowmobile folder which is a directory of places to eat, sleep, drink and be merry in Boyne Country and the Petoskey area.

A special feature of the directory is a list of 11 snowmobile trails giving in detail the features of each trail.

Both publications are free for the asking by writing The Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 306, Petoskey, Mi 49770.

Nan Casey of The Chamber staff advises that it is best to have reservations when coming to Boyne Country and these can be secured by calling The Petoskey Chamber of Commerce Housing Bureau at 616-347-3968.

Win Ends Rayder Season

Charlevoix won its last game of the season Friday night — a non-conference match with Onaway — 24 to 12.

The game, which didn't figure in Michigan-Huron Shores Conference standings, left the Rayders in fourth place, trailing Rogers City and St. Ignace, tied for first; Cheboygan second; and Petoskey third.

Joe Jones scored the first Charlevoix TD in the opening quarter on a nine-yard run. But Onaway came back with less than two minutes on the clock, evening the score 6-6 on a 67-yard run by Steve Porter.

Charlevoix's next two TD's were scored in the second and third quarters by Tim Carey, the first following a one-yard keeper play and the second on an 11-yard run.

Onaway's Steve Porter scored again in the third, making the score 18 to 12 at the start of the final stanza.

In the fourth period, Larry Potter scored in the opening seconds from the 15-yard line and the balance of the game was a stalemate.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Judge W. Richard Smith:

Patrick M. Scott, 22, Rapid City, was assessed $105 for careless driving and motor vehicle violations.

William P. Behrens, 55, Glenwood, Ill, was assessed $100 for petty larceny.

John Trojanek, East Jordan was assessed $60 for inciting a disturbance. He also was placed on one year's probation and ordered to be off the streets by midnight or earlier, and to refrain from attending school functions during the period of his probation.

Raymond Adams, 20, Boyne City; Lawrence Ordiway, 20, Boyne City; and Cris Rose, 17, Boyne City, each were assessed $35 as minors in possession of alcoholic beverages.

Frank Leist, 37, Boyne City, was assessed $50 on a charge of concealing stolen property.

Douglas Wiser, 17, Charlevoix, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail, with credit for time served, on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor female.

Kevin Dietze, 18, Boyne City, and Rram Schroeder, 18, Boyne City, were assessed $35 each as minors in possession of alcoholic beverages.

Albert Webster, 46, Charlevoix, was found not-guilty by a five-man jury of a charge of assault and battery. Members of the jury were Marlin Sweet, Robert Bradley, Lillian Gregg, Gordon McClellan and Eldon Newman. Both defense and prosecution agreed on the five-man jury.

Charles J. Gregware, 24, Boyne City, was found guilty by a jury of careless driving under a Boyne City ordinance. He was assessed $50. Members of the jury were Gary Loder, Laurie J. Keller, Harold DeYoung, Patricia K. Yats, James H. Bishaw and Juanna Wallace.

MRS. SALLY A. AUSTIN, 225 Belvedere-ave., announces the engagement of her daughter, Sheryl Allyn, to David Bruce Haggar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hagger of Allegan. The 1970 Venetian Queen, Miss Austin lives in East Lansing and plans to enroll at Michigan State University in January. Her fiance is a senior at MSU. A winter wedding is planned, although no date has been set.

News from Ellsworth

Mrs. Anne Osterbaan
Phone 588-2433

Friends and relatives met at the home of Mrs. Hattie Kuiper, who entertained Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Wynsma in honor of their wedding anniversary and Mr. Wynsma's birthday which both were Oct. 30.

The Al Taylor family of Saginaw with her father Edward Klooster were here to spend the weekend and close his house for the winter.

Miss Kathryn Timmer is a patient at room no. 143 at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey

Larry and Bonnie Oosterhouse of Grand Rapids were weekend visitors with her folks, Mr. and Mrs. John Klooster.

Mrs. Maggie Heeres fell at her home Sunday and broke her hip. She is a patient at Little Traverse Hospital.

Mrs. Henry Zwaanstra with two friends from Grand Rapids spent the weekend with their friend Martha Drenth and family.

Drenth Brothers were around the village Saturday scooping up our large crop of fallen leaves. The very strong wind we had Wednesday sent our leaves flying hither and yon.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Van Dellen returned last week from their month's trip to Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ruis left Saturday to spend four days in Au Gres with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Dawson and their two sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Vander Ark and Mrs. Mary Taylor and son went to Cadillac Tuesday evening to meet their son Dan and wife Judy and two daughters. Their daughter Diane and husband Dale McKenzie also joined them there for a family supper. The two granddaughters Carmen and Julie came to Ellsworth to visit their grandparents while Dan and Judy attended the Christian School Teachers convention in Chicago.

Willard and June Vander Ark and two granddaughters left Friday for Holland to bring the children home after spending the night there. Willard and June drove to Chicago where they boarded a plane to Phoenix, Ariz., where they will visit their son Ron and family a few weeks.

Attending the Christian School Teachers convention at Chicago from here were Paul Krause, principal, and teachers Miss Jacqueline Huizinga and Miss Reka Postmus and teacher helpers, Mrs. Martin Rubingh and Mrs. Versile Veldkamp. Miss Huizinga stayed to visit her mother in Chicago and Miss Postma visited relatives in Grand Rapids for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. A.M. Klooster left Friday to spend a couple days with their son Alex and family in Ann Arbor.

Visiting their mother Anne Osterbaan from Thursday noon to Saturday afternoon were Melvin and Esther Witteveen and five children from Holland.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Coltson and children have moved into their new home on the McPherson corner.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Parsons were sitters with "Punky" Parsons at Petoskey over the weekend.

Frank Timmer of Jenison visited with his grandmother, Elsie Timmer, this weekend.

The Wesleyan congregation had potluck dinner with the Sunshine Singers from Owosso, Sunday at the Community Hall.

Paula Stout of Mancelona and Amy Stout and friend Mike Lyons of Royal Oak were weekend visitors with their grandmother, Maude Patterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Boeck and family who rented the Farrell house across the road from the Community School have moved to their home in Charlevoix.

The Gordon Harthorns have moved into the trailer they recently purchased from Roger Lisk on Lake-st.

Couple Wed 50 Years

Open house for Emery and Laura Wilson, who are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary, will be held Saturday, Nov. 13, at the American Legion Hall in Ellsworth from 3 until 8 p.m.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend.

CMU Enrolls 79 Students in County

Seventy-nine students from Charlevoix county are enrolled at Central Michigan University this semester, according to figures from the CMU Registrar's Office.

They are part of CMU's current enrollment of 14,741 students, an increase of 4.5 percent over last fall.

Of the current enrollment, more than 97 percent are from Michigan while 1½ percent are from other states and about one-half of one percent are from foreign countries.

CMU's 14,439 Michigan students come from every county except Keweenaw at the northern extreme of the state

As usual in recent years, the greatest number of CMU students come from eight counties forming a diagonal line from Detroit to Mt. Pleasant. They include Isabella, Midland, Bay, Saginaw, Genesee, Oakland, Macomb and Wayne counties. Students from these counties total 7,212, or about 49 percent of the total enrollment.

Wayne County leads all others as the home of CMU students with 1,542 or 10.5 percent of the total. Oakland County, with 1,438, is second, supplying 9.8 percent of the total.

Out-of-state students total 215 and come from 29 states and Puerto Rico. Non-Michigan students come in greatest numbers from Ohio (35), New York (30), Texas (26) and Illinois (19). Eighty-seven CMU students are from foreign countries.

Judy Potter Is Elected to Housing Board

Judy Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Potter, Route 1, Charlevoix, has been elected by the women residents of Mabel Engle-Lillian Myners Hall to represent them on the Housing Review Board. The function of the board is to recommend new ideas or suggestions regarding the code of living and regulations for the following year.

Judy is a first year student at Davenport College, enrolled in the Data Processing program.

Monday Opener to Cut Deer Harvest

Even if they are blessed with the best of conditions during the Nov. 15-30 firearm season, Michigan's deer hunters will have a hard time matching their 1970 harvest of nearly 69,000 animals, predicts the Department of Natural Resources.

The outlook for a lower kill in 1971 reflects several key factors, including the impact of last year's harsh winter, a cut of nearly 50 percent in the antlerless deer permit quota for the northern Lower Peninsula and this season's Monday deer opener which is expected to hold early hunting pressure below normal.

In the Upper Peninsula, where an estimated 12,380 bucks were taken last fall, DNR wildlife officials are looking for a generally mediocre season because of worsening winter range conditions and the brunt of last winter which have undercut the region's deer herd.

DNR studies indicate that a sizable percentage of yearling bucks are missing from the Upper Peninsula's herd and that's had news for hunters because these 1½-year-old animals account for the bulk of each season's buck kill.

David Arnold, the DNR's deer specialist, pins the region's scarcity of yearling bucks to poor production in the spring of 1970 and the compounding clout of last winter which took a heavy deer toll in the Upper Peninsula.

Results of a DNR survey last spring indicate that 9,000 or more whitetails starved in major yarding areas above the Straits during the winter of 1970-71.

Despite those losses, thousands of additional deer could be victimized by another hard winter this year, reports Arnold. He explains that the Upper Peninsula's winter deer range is continuing to go from bad to worse because of steady forest growth and the timber market's shift away from harvesting trees in swampland areas where the animals yard.

In face of this winter's potential deer waste above the Straits, the Natural Resources Commission approved a conservative take of 6,120 antlerless animals in that part of the state.

Arnold speculates that the Upper Peninsula may not field as many hunters as last year because of this season's Monday opener which could discourage some downstate sportsmen from making the trip above the Straits.

In the northern Lower Peninsula, the pre-season deer picture is slightly better than above the Straits.

Arnold sees this season's deer harvest in northern Lower Michigan falling somewhat short of last year's 27,000 bucks and 13,000 antlerless animals. Part of reason for that is tied to the region's last three severe winters.

That streak of harsh conditions has not caused extensive deer losses on the scale of those in the Upper Peninsula, but it has undermined the health level of northern Lower Michigan's deer herd, reports Arnold. He notes that the physical condition of whitetails in that part of the state is generally not as good as it should be and, on that score, this year's fawn production was below par.

Arnold observes that the herd's winter range is showing some recovery in the southern part of the northern Lower Peninsula, but not enough to produce any significant increase in hunter success. As a matter of fact, the entire region's antlerless deer permit quota was cut about in half this year, with most of the reduction pinpointed at its southern areas.

That move was taken in hopes of building up whitetail numbers in those areas which show a better balance between the deer herd and the carrying capacity of the animals' range, explains Arnold.

THE EIGHTH Grade band, directed by Clarence Odmark, staged a rehearsal Wednesday for the monthly PTO meeting at the Middle School.

CONDUCTOR Gary Slutzman put the Seventh Grade Band through its paces Wednesday night for parents and teachers attending the November PTO meeting at the Middle School.

If you use your thermostat wisely, you can save both Gas and money

For example, at night when you're covered with warm blankets, you don't need as high a thermostat setting as during the day. It's a good idea to lower the thermostat a few degrees while you sleep. Besides being just as comfortable, you'll be saving Gas and money, too.

This is just one of many Gas and money saving ideas you'll find in Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's free booklet, "The Great Escape." By checking and correcting the ways heat escapes from your home, you can make Gas (already one of today's big bargains) an even bigger bargain.

Fill out the coupon, and learn more ways to foil the great escape—and save Gas and money, too. Or pick up a copy of "The Great Escape" at any of our offices. It's free.

Wrestling Practice Starts Wednesday

By STEVE KANTOLA

The Charlevoix High School Wrestling Team will start practicing Wednesday, Nov. 10 at the Middle School gymnasium.

This will be the first year that the team will be considered a varsity sport.

Last year the team participated independently, under the direction of Norman Probert. The team as a whole brought home an over all record of 2 wins and 3 losses.

The most outstanding wrestlers were Joe Jones (a first-year wrestler) with eight wins and no losses and Pat Linsey (a four-year wrestler) with eight wins and one loss. Both Jones and Linsey will be returning this year.

Other outstanding wrestlers returning will be Charlie Borths, Steve Sitzma, Paul Klooster and Jeff Grooms.

Athletic Director, Dale Burge, released the following schedule for the 71-72 wrestling season.

27 Boys Enrolled In Auto Mechanics

Auto mechanics, a new vocational course this year at C.H.S., is being taught by Richard McLenon.

The purpose of the class, according to McLenon, is to acquaint students with the various automotive components, how to operate and repair them. The course provides students with a basic understanding of the automobile, preparing them for an occupation in that field.

Auto mechanics is now being offered to grades 11 and 12 and has an enrollment of 27 boys. It is taught every day in two hour sessions, with two classes a day. Students taking the class board a bus and are transported to what used to be Southgate Garage. The garage is being leased by the school from Mr. Bruce Donaldson.

The class is presently setting up and equiping the workshop.

Another course, small power engines, also taught by McLenon, will soon be using the workshop. This class, although it is offered to all four grades, consists of freshmen and sophomores. It is taught for one hour every day for one semester.

The course is concerned with sources of power and different methods of producing it. The class studies the history of engines and power and ultimately leads up to an introduction of the automobile.

Petoskey Dumps Frosh

By Forest Dipzinski

The Charlevoix Freshman football team lost its final game of the season to Petoskey, 42 to 20.

The game was out of Charlevoix's reach in the first quarter, 14-0. By the half, Charlevoix had closed the gap to 10 points (22-12) and at the end of the third period the Rayders were even closer, 28-20.

But Petoskey scored 14 points in the final period, winning the game by the lopsided margin.

Scoring for Charlevoix were Ron Kewagshken, credited with two TD's, and Ray Whitley who scored on a 69-yard run. The only conversion points came on a pass from Kewagshken to Terry Left.

Best defensive players in the game were Bob Depew, Jim Sladek, Tom Avery and Lindy Allison.

Coach Norm Probert said he was pleased with the game. He said the biggest reason for the Charlevoix defeat was the weather. The game was played during a downpour which affected Rayder passing.

Probert also said two games were scheduled the same week and some of the players were needed for the JV game.

Campus Life Combo At CHS

"The Freeway", a Campus Life musical group played a one hour concert for the students of Charlevoix High School Nov. 3.

The group has recently returned from a tour of southern France as part of an international program.

It consists of six musicians, Connie Clendenan of Marlette, on trumpet and tamoburine; Nancy VanElk of Kalamazoo on organ; Ted Kalman of Lansing, playing lead guitar; Mike James of Lansing, on drums; Dennis Spitters of Kalamazoo on trumpet; and Dan Erlandson of Traverse City, bass guitar.

Chiefs Clobber JV Team

By Jeff Lachman

The Junior-Varsity football team lost another game, this time to the Cheboygan Chiefs. The Chiefs, who outweighed the little Rayders by a wide margin, convincingly took the game 28-0.

Due to a Freshman game the night before, the J.V.'s were a little short in personnel. The coaches tried to salvage a couple of Freshmen for the Thursday night game, but to no avail.

Their inability to organize an effective passing attack was, perhaps, the JV's biggest downfall. Other complications included injuries, sickness, and the lack of discipline which were definite obstacles in the JV's effort.

Coach Norm Probert credited Tom Keie, Brian Van Loo, Ed Buday, and Dan Greene as being the outstanding defensemen.

This Wednesday the little Rayders face Harbor Springs.

Isle Students Send Thanks

The following letter was sent to high school Principal Vane Smith by the Beaver Island students in appreciation for their visit to Charlevoix High School.

Beaver Island
St. James, Mich.

Dear Mr. Smith,

This is to tell you how very much the students from Beaver Island enjoyed the time spent together with you in Charlevoix.

We hope you know how much all of us appreciate your hospitality and many kindnesses to us. We count ourselves fortunate to have such generous and kind friends on the mainland.

Many thanks to you for asking us, for providing overnight lodging and for everything! Congratulations on winning the homecoming game!

Sincerely,

Debaters Win Seven Rounds

By LAURI HEERES

The Charlevoix Debate Team met with success on Saturday, Oct. 30, in Big Rapids.

Members came back with a record of seven wins and two losses and a higher number of speaker points than it has ever received for any pre-season debate.

They went down to Big Rapids with four teams, two affirmative and two negative, with the rest of the class observing.

Lisa Wasoski and Steve Kantola, affirmative, team won three and lost 0. Laurie Engstrom and Debbie Rank, also affirmative, won two and lost one. Vicki Skelton and Jeanne Belfy, negative, won one and lost two. Carolin Swartwout and Lauri Heeres, also negative, won one and lost two.

GIRLS' volleyball teams, coached by Mrs. Marie Osterberg, have turned in an enviable record this season. The girls took first place Saturday in a conference meet in Cheboygan with Gaylord and St. Ignace, returning home with a trophy and ribbons.

CHS Takes Tri-Meet

A tri-meet between Petoskey's, Boyne City's and Charlevoix's girl's volleyball teams was held at Charlevoix High School Nov. 1. Coaches for the girls were Mary Richwine of Petoskey, Joyce Baker of Boyne City, and Marie Osterberg of Charlevoix. The match was opened to the public and many spectators gathered.

From Charlevoix, team one consisted of Donna Warner, Cindy Strohschein, Cindy Kleiber, Lori Herzog, Cheryl Pence, and Tiller Otis with Jane Wimmer as substitute.

Players on the second team were, Linda Sneathen, Kathy Whitley, Jackie Hawkins, Cindy Hawkins, Carol Russell and Kathy Dubey. Barb Goss, Debbie Bartlett, and Laura Custer served as subs.

The Charlevoix teams did extremely well.

Library notes

"The San Francisco Earthquake" by Gordon Thomas and Max Morgan Witts is a new addition to the library shelves.

Here is a completely new account of one of the most dramatic disasters ever to take place in America. The authors use never-before-published eyewitness reports and previously ignored documents of the insurance companies, the military and the Red Cross to tear away the myths surrounding the holocaust.

They expose the real villains and heroes and show how the political powers tried to conceal the amount of damage caused by the earthquake. They reveal that the fire was spread by the inexperienced dynamite squads who tried to contain it and they tell how the military executed people without trial.

The last big earthquake in the United States came in 1906, in San Francisco. No one knows when the next, even more devestating earthquake will come to San Francisco, but it will come. The authors ask unsettling questions. How prepared is the city for the coming catastrophe? Why is there only one fire boat in San Francisco Bay? Why does the subway tunnel through the San Andreas fault? This is a spellbinding book based on expert opinion.

"Cruising Speed" is written by William Buckley, one of the century's most engaging writers. In a day of too much sloppy writing, Buckley's knife-edged prose is a welcome antidote. Ultimately, historians will have to reckon with Buckley's impact upon American thought in the post-World War II era. The book is written in surprisingly large print and makes fast-paced, delightful reading.

"Prince Phillip" is an informal biography by Basil Boothroyd concerning a man who is prominent in the international news media but about whom very little is known. Until he married Britain's queen, Prince Phillip--then a Prince of Greece--was virtually unknown. Until now, not even the British have known much about his background. This book gives the first full account of his life from his family's long-suffering relationship with the Greek people to his present life as the husband of Queen Elizabeth.

Basil Boothroyd spent much time with Prince Phillip. He had access to his files and papers and talked with his sisters, with the men who served on his ships, and with members of his staff. The result is a portrait of a modern prince who knows what he's doing and why.

State Police to Relay School Closing Data

A Michigan system for relaying accurate, timely information on weather-caused school closings will be effective again this winter as a continuing pilot operation to provide further evaluation of it, according to Col. John R. Plants, State Police director.

Plants said experience indicates the system worked very well last year, its first season.

Participants include private, public and parochial schools, Michigan Department of Education, police agencies, radio and TV stations, the federal Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA), the Michigan Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN), and the State Police.

Participation by school districts in voluntary. Those who elect to participate notify a selected LEIN station (police) of the operational status of their schools (Open, Closed, etc.).

The LEIN station will transmit the information to the network headquarters at the State Police in East Lansing.

Those stations will then broadcast the information on the schools in their areas several times between 6 and 8 a.m.

To expedite the collection and processing of school status information, a code system is used as a security measure for identifying school districts and the various classes of operational status. The code will not be publicly used.

Gale Dillingham Wed at Standish

By Marian Martin

Gale Dillingham became the bride of Eric Lee Nickel Oct. 23 at the Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Standish.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Olive Bailey of Beaver Island and Joseph Dillingham of Pinconning.

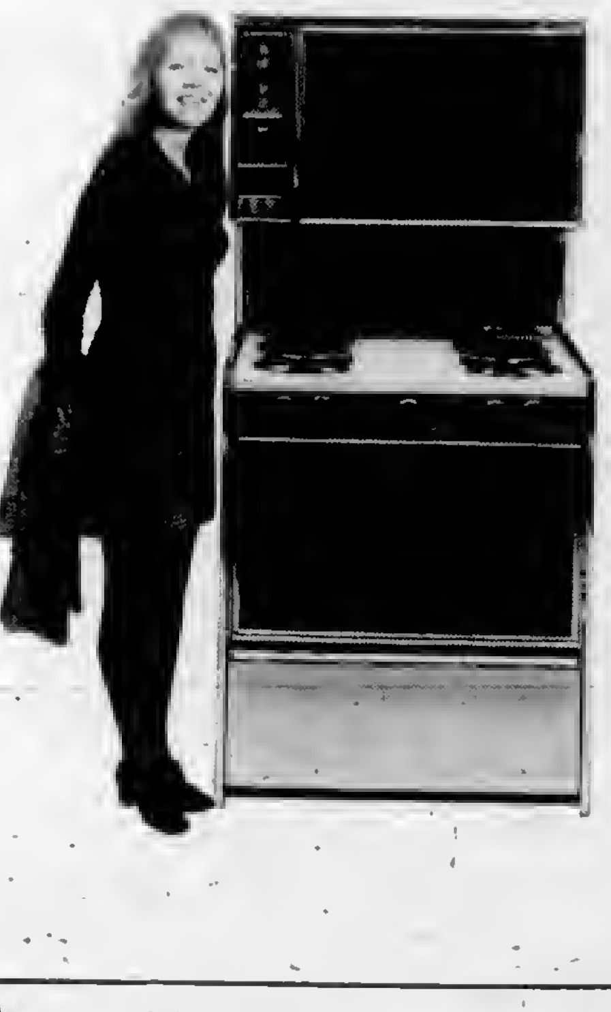
The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nickel of Pinconning.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace and peau-de-soie, with a mandarin neckline and long sleeves. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and pink and white glads.

Francine Nickel and Mary Kay Dybas served as bridesmaid and maid of honor. They wore floor-length gowns of deep purple velvet and carried bouquets of pink glads.

The reception supper was held at the Pinconning Trail House.

The couple will make their home in Pinconning.



No more dirty work with a self-cleaning Gas range.

Just think of it. You'll never have to get down on your hands and knees to scrape and scrub the dirty, greasy insides of your oven again. Because today's modern Gas ranges have self-cleaning ovens.
Forget about baked-on splatters. And rock-like spills.
With a self-cleaning oven all you have to do is turn a knob and the messiest job in your home (oven cleaning) takes care of itself. Giving you time to take care of the more pleasant things in your life.
But a self-cleaning oven is just one good feature in today's modern Gas range.
With Gas you have the advantage of smokeless closed door broiling. Infinite heat control. And best of all, total economy. Because a modern Gas range uses less Gas to do the same job. And a Gas range costs about one-fourth as much to operate as an electric one.
So before the holidays, stop by your dealer or any Michigan Consolidated Gas Company showroom, and buy a new Gas range with a full range of features.
A new Gas range will save you Gas and money too. And remember—oven cleaning is no job for a lady.

DNR Chief Asks OK on Monroe Creek Dam

Text of MacMullan's Statement

(Following is the text of a statement which has been presented in the state Natural Resources Commission by Director Ralph A. MacMullan relative to the proposed Monroe Creek Impoundment. Because of the scope of the project and the impact on the area resulting from the creation of a 1,500-homesite subdivision in Charlevoix County, the Courier is printing MacMullan's statement in its entirety. The Commission is expected to act on MacMullan's recommendations at its meeting in Lansing Nov. 11 and 12.)

BACKGROUND

In November 1968, Messrs. John S. Wreford and Francis D. Shelden (Mr. Wreford is now deceased) requested permission to construct a dam across Monroe Creek (a short 5-mile long feeder stream to the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix) in SE¼, Sec. 5, T32N, R7W, in Charlevoix County. This would create a flooding covering approximately 400 acres. The object of the flooding would be to create an artificial lake around and near which approximately 1,300 (STC) home sites would be developed and sold as a residential community; complete with recreational facilities, open space, streets, and multi-family dwellings. The entire area to be developed covers approximately 2½ square miles and lies about 9 miles south of Charlevoix and 2 miles west of Highway M-66 and the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

The Department holds easements for public access, 50 feet on both sides of about ¾ of a mile of Monroe Creek where it flows through two parcels of land, one of 40 acres and one of 53 acres. These easements lie in the area to be flooded and would have to be acquired by Mr. Shelden. He has offered land in Charlevoix County of higher value in exchange for these state-held easements.

The question now becomes, should the department dispose of its easements with the proposes impoundment and issue a permit to flood the area, or should the project, or at least the creation of the impoundment, be stopped by not relinquishing the state-held easements.

Several issues must be discussed and understood before a proper and defensible position can be taken. In this particular case, there are good reasons for giving approval and good reasons for denying approval. I will state both the positive and negative points.

RECREATIONAL
(Favoring Flooding)

The impoundment would create approximately 400 acres of fishing water. The developer has agreed to provide a public access site to the lake, and a marina is planned in the southeastern corner. Both riparian residents and the public will get far more opportunity to fish than at present on the stream. Both the impoundment and the tailwater (below the dam) will permit this.

In addition to this fishery, the developer has agreed to exchange (in return for the state-held easements) 40 acres in nearby Wilson Township providing stream access to Warner Creek. Warner Creek is a good trout feeder stream, and the 40-acre parcel would be in a well-used deeryard and would be a contiguous addition to the Jordan River State Forest.

In addition to fishing, boating opportunities would be created where none currently exist.

Included in the development plans would be an 18-hole golf course, swimming beaches, playgrounds and recreational areas and horseback riding trails. These, of course, would be for the use of residents of the new community and friends.

The two easements where the public has access to Monroe Creek are difficult to fish because of the boardering tangle of brush. Further, one easement cannot now be reached, except by wading the stream, without trespassing on private land.

RECREATION
(Opposing Flooding)

Although fishing is difficult in the stream section to be flooded (approximately 2 miles), it does provide some trout and salmon fishing, especially near the south in late summer and fall.

Some grouse and woodcock and snowshoe hare hunting is now possible, with landowner permission, in the bottomlands to be flooded, and grouse hunting, in the uplands to be developed, would be lost. The area is not heavily used by deer — unbrowsed ground hemlock being present on many sites. If the area were flooded and developed, stream fishing and all hunting would be eliminated. While there is no public land, some hunting does take place now. Posted land is not now conspicuous.

WATER QUALITY
(Favoring Flooding)

Information compiled by the Charlevoix Planning Commission and by the Sea Grant Program of the University of Michigan indicates that we can expect this part of the Lake Michigan watershed to be developed rapidly and soon. Almost all of the land is privately owned and this means that eventually there will be development, and at present the available land use controls are less than ideal. In the Monroe Creek drainage area there is a lot of varied topography which makes attractive home sites. Indeed, even without flooding, home sites overlooking the stream bottom valley would be very attractive. With or without flooding, the land will be developed although without the flooding, growth would probably be at a much slower rate and possibly with less environmental controls.

The developer proposes to include sewage collection and off-site treatment facilities — no septic tanks permitted.

(Editor's note: The developer has told the Courier that he has received permission to allow septic tanks on the first 150 lots developed.)

The discharge below the dam will be aerated and be from the cold water strata. This will insure good quality trout water below the dam. The impoundment will act as a collection basin and stabilizing influence on water quality in Lake Charlevoix since any silt and nutrients, resulting from the development, will run into the impoundment instead of going directly into the lake.

Vegetation cover will be removed prior to flooding, thereby reducing the amount of organic matter available for decay after flooding. The eutrophication pulse after flooding should not be severe.

About 80 percent of the flooding will be between 20 and 30 feet deep — below the thermocline zone. This cold water will restrict the decay of organic material, and the release of nutrients will be inhibited.

Water flow after the lake is full in between the dam and Lake Charlevoix probably will not be affected, since evaporation losses from the impoundment will not exceed present transportation losses from the basin.

That the area will be developed is virtually certain. As far as water quality goes, it probably is a good bet that a higher quality discharge will exist with a well-planned development than with future slower but unplanned development.

WATER QUALITY
(Opposing Flooding)

Currently Monroe Creek is of high quality as a feeder stream for the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. Filling the lake could temporarily reduce this flow considerably and the water that is released could be enriched relative to the present discharge.

FISH, AQUATIC LIFE
(Favoring Flooding)

Monroe Creek is an excellent trout "feeder" stream. However, its short length limits its total contribution to the fishery. Within a few years following the flooding the impoundment should support a fishery--both trout and warmwater species.

Any loss of spawning or of nursery habitat could be made up, at least in part, by increasing the stocking effort in Lake Charlevoix a relatively small amount. In 1969, Lake Charlevoix was stocked with 31,500 yearling rainbow trout and 38,000 steelheads. In 1970, plantings included 25,000 yearling brown trout and 40,000 rainbows.

The production of invertebrate fish food would be considerably greater in the lake as compared to the stream—especially once the post-flooding equilibrium was attained.

FISH, AQUATIC LIFE
(Opposing Flooding)

Trout production and trout food production in Monroe Creek is high. The loss of production would have to be made up by artifical stocking of desired species in Lake Charlevoix.

WILDLIFE PRODUCTION
(Favoring Flooding)

Some waterfowl could make use of the flooding as a resting area.

WILDLIFE PRODUCTION
(Opposing Flooding)

For all practical purposes, woodcock, snowshoe hare, ruffed grouse, and deer habitat would be greatly reduced or even eliminated from the 2½-square mile area when it is fully developed and occupied. Other species, such as songbirds, could be encouraged by proper landscaping around the home sites. The fully developed area would have to be closed to hunting.

ECONOMIC
(Favoring Flooding)

Without a detailed economic study of this specific area it is not possible to judge the net effect on the economic life of the area. There will be many economic benefits and many direct and indirect costs to both the new taxpayers and those who currently reside in the Charlevoix County area.

The economic considerations involved in the establishment of a new 5,000-person community are complex. Obviously the tax base and the business created in the area will increase dramatically. The property tax considerations must be viewed in light of two possibilities.

If the development is essentially a summer resort "colony," then the homes will be contributing few children to the local school system and the tax advantage to the community would be greater, although the seasonal business activity would be considerably less. A year-round community, on the other hand, would provide more children for the schools which would require large tax revenues but would provide year-round increased business activity.

Second, the future of property taxes as a base for school support in Michigan is in doubt. This also would have some effect. Any development of this size would have a large positive impact on the level of local business activity.

On the other hand, a year-round community of that size would have to be supported by some kind of industry which would have adverse environmental effects which would be costly to control. Further, additional homes mean additional costs for schools, roads, police and fire protection, health care services, sewage treatment facilities, waste disposal facilities, and other governmental services. More than often, in cases like this, there is no net gain to the community and often a net loss.

ECONOMIC
(Opposing Flooding)

See above.

AESTHETIC
(Favoring Flooding)

The property to be developed has a great potential for "beauty." Right now it is a beautiful valley with much topography and vistas. The developer has given every assurance that he will develop a model community---one in which aesthetics play a major role. Green space is well distributed, roads are artistically arranged, and recreational areas are considerable. The area will be managed so as to preserve the natural beauty to the maximum extend possible. Building restrictions would require a set-back from the waterfront of 75 feet to 100 feet, with no disturbance of the shoreline.

Residential lots will have a minimum frontage of 100 feet. The plan of the entire area shows not more than one lot per one acres of the total development. Standard residential lots average 4 to 5 lots per acre of development.

The development will probably be approvable under any reasonable zoning restruction which either the state or local government will impose in the immediate foreseeable future.

While many people do not necessarily agree with the obvious rush to acquire northern resort lands, the facts are clear that the number of people wanting to vacation in northern Michigan in the next 40 or 50 years will most likely double. Predictions such as this are almost always on the conservative side. That this land will be developed is almost certain. Planned development of this nature will probably be more pleasing aesthetically than unplanned building or building under any present zoning regulations.

AESTHETIC
(Opposing Flooding)

It would be desirable to leave the entire watershed untouched. It is now a beautiful area, and has few local residents. This view probably would not be held universally, since beauty is a matter of individual taste. In short, the new lake in itself might be considered as substituting one type of beauty for another. The addition of houses, swimming beaches, marinas, a golf course and condominiums will undoubtedly not add much in the way of beauty even though they are "well planned."

THE BASIC ISSUE

I would like to express some thoughts that relate to the continued and accelerated development of formerly wild lands.

The great upsurge in interest and concern for the quality of our natural environment and indeed, in the very quality of our lives and the lives of those that will inherit the result of our actions, has reached into every corner of our personal lives and into every part of our social, cultural, governmental, and even our religious organizations.

Only a few years ago, our Department was concerned mainly with providing hunting, fish and camping — with the preservation of our natural resources in the most narrow sense. Today we are deeply involved in the entire gamut of environmental concern from the destruction of natural beauty to overpopulation, and from the protection of the Sleeping Bear Dunes to the protection of the tiny Kirtland Warbler.

Only a few years ago, the Department would have been concerned, in a situation like Monroe Creek, only with preventing the loss of public access, with preventing soil erosion and sedimentation, with the protection of grouse, deer, and snowshoe hare habitat, and a few other potentially damaging local effects on specific kinds of natural resources.

This is no longer the case. Now we are concerned about preserving the entire natural environment and indirectly slowing down the deteriorating quality of our lives. The rapidly increasing number of affluent and retired people is causing, among other things, a skyrocketing proliferation of recreational and year-round settlements throughout once-remote northern Michigan. Some of these are well planned and constructed; others are not so well ordered. But ALL of them detract, in many ways, from the qualities that wild land offers people. We are certain that the people of Michigan want us to assume leadership in this new broader environmental concern.

As Columnist Sidney Harris pointed out, when a relatively few of us had automobiles, they were a pleasure; now they have become polluting, enslaving, impoverishing monsters. When there were a few summer homes, living therein was relaxing. Now with lakeside cottages within handshaking distance of each other, we have brought urban crowds to the north and some of the relaxation has gone — to put it charitably.

More than that, the adverse effects of human intrusion on many fish and wildlife species range from subtle to dramatic.

I firmly believe that government should not encourage this constant "growth-to-death" that we are witnessing. We can't stop it altogether, even with relatively strict land use zoning laws, but when we can stop it or where we can properly control it, we should. We should not make it easy to foul things up or over-develop or over-saturate our wild land with people. Likewise, government should not encourage continued rapid increase in human population. Indeed, government should encourage smaller families to arrest the most serious threat to the quality of man's life.

Closely allied to these "aesthetic" considerations is the constant drain on our resources created by the two- and three-home family, or two-or three-car family. This acquisition of material things, and the resulting drain on our resources and on our available energy, and the strain that their production puts on our natural recycling system, are growing by leaps and bounds.

The question becomes, should the government throw all kinds of roadblocks in the path of these growing environmental strains? I believe government should, and where it cannot, it should seek to control them, to channel them into less harmful directions.

RECOMMENDATION

The usual procedure for submitting issues to the Commission for its consideration and action is for the concerned division chief, or chiefs, to make a recommendation to the Director who, after reviewing the proposal and after making any necessary changes, endorses the memorandum and relays it to the Commission.

In this case I have had the benefit of counsel from so many parts of the Department that I feel a memorandum directly from the Director to the Commission is in order.

Further, the decisions on which I based this recommendation are fully my own. I do, however, have staff support.

I have reviewed carefully all of these reasons, as we see them, for approving this development and all of the reasons for denying the application. My staff has argues both ways on this issue — debated the points to bring out all of the considerations.

I recommend that a permit to flood the area be issued. I make this, knowing that the Department will be accused of having dollar-oriented blinders on; of electing to take the easy way out; of adopting a "give in to this one but hold the line on the next" attitude; of not putting our actions where our "environmental mouths" are; of not being concerned with what happens to that priceless commodity, wild land.

However, an objective look at these issues outlined here should convince most people of the correctness of my decision.

If the area to be developed had been in the public trust, my decision would have been easy — hold on to it in its present state and do everything to lessen the impact of the hordes on it. However, it is (for all practical purposes) in private ownership and the correct approach now is to control its development in such a way as to provide benefits to the public and a fair and just treatment to the present owners.

It should be clearly understood that we do not intend to consider this decision to be a precedent for other apparently similar cases. We are certain that similar situations will arise. Each one should and will be considered on its own merit.

The specific required recommendations in this case are the approval of the application by the developers to exchange 40 acres of nearby land in Wilson Township for the state-owned easements for public fishing, and rights incident thereto, that lie within the basin to be flooded and the issuance of a permit to construct the dam across Monroe Creek.

The exchange application, dated June 21, 1971, was brought before the Commission at the July 1971 meeting but was tabled pending additional study and deliberation. I recommend that it now be reactivated and placed before the Commission. It is attached to this memorandum.

In approving the land exchange and the dam permit I have taken the following agreements by the developers into consideration. That:

1. The owner has agreed to provide means for public access to the impoundment on Monroe Creek by designating a public access site as a part of the total development reserved for these purposes and to be services by a part of the road network play for this planned community.

2. The building restrictions for the subdivision would require a setback from the water's edge of from 75-100 feet (Green Belt Protection) with a requirement for preservation of the natural environment at each building site, particularly in this setback zone, to preserve the outdoor environment to the fullest extent possible.

3. To avoid nutrient problems in the impoundment and downstream waters, the developer proposes to construct a sewage and waste water collection system and off-site treatment works to serve the entire Monroe Creek Development.

4. Erosion control and sediment losses be reduced to a minimum by developing sections of the total project, one at a time, with completion of final grading, shaping and servicing of roads after construction of sanitary sewer and storm water drainage facilities, in such a manner that a minimum of the total area would be left exposed to severe weather conditions at any one time. Sediment basins will be maintained downstream from construction activities to prevent damage to the aquatic environment.

5. The discharge control from the impoundment system will provide means for the discharge of optimum temperature and oxygen to the downstream channel to enhance fisheries values. Filling the impoundment will be done on a regulated basis to maintain adequate flow for the aquatic environment.

6. The interior of the impoundment will be stripped of all woody vegetation prior to inundation to prevent an unusually high oxygen demand load on the impounded waters.

Two Key Issues Await Answers

Two issues which will have lasting effects on the future of Charlevoix as a resort community are in the mill this week.

Thursday in Lansing, Director Ralph A. MacMullan will recommend to the Natural Resources Commission that permission be granted to Francis D. Sheldon to construct a dam across Monroe Creek south of Ironton.

The dam will create a 400-acre artificial lake, around which Shelden proposes a 1,500-homesite development.

In time, the development could mean creation of a community in Charlevoix County bigger than either Charlevoix, Boyne City or East Jordan.

The implications of such a project are so vast and so far reaching that the Courier is presenting the full text of the statement MacMullan will make to the commission.

Although the director abhors the rapid disappearance of so much of Michigan's wild land and insists that government should not encourage "growth to death," he none-the-less recommends construction of the dam and endorses the resort development which goes with it.

It should be pointed out that the commission is in a position to stop the project, because it involves the trade of state-held fishing easements along Monroe Creek for other property in Wilson Township.

Whether or not you favor the Monroe Creek impoundment, we are confident MacMullan and other members of the commission would like to hear your views before the Thursday and Friday meetings.

The second issue is the creation of an 8,000-acre Woodland Indian Memorial south of Charlevoix.

A public information meeting on the project last Thursday in Charlevoix left many questions unanswered.

Although the memorial would help preserve wild land along the Lake Michigan shore, many residents are fearful that a park of the size and scope of the National Indian Memorial would attract such hordes of visitors to the area that the land would be better left in private ownership.

Fortunately, the wheels of government turn slowly. The National Woodland Indian Memorial is still a long way from becoming a reality. Hopefully, the state and federal agencies involved will see fit to save that land which is of archeological, historical and cultural significance without destroying the wilderness characteristics of the area.

We believe the Woodland Indian Memorial is essentially a fine idea. But we are afraid the planners are thinking too big for Charlevoix County.

Claims Oil Men Fight Imports

Nov. 3, 1971

Mr. Bob Clock
The Courier

Dear Bob:

I was interested that some man from Shell oil was giving a talk in your area about the need to explore for oil.

This worry about our exhausting our oil supplies is inconsistent with the foct that the oil industry insists on rigid import quotas that keep out cheaper oil.

A very recently published book by Jerry Cohen, legal counsel for the Senate Anti-Monopoly Subcommittee, says that this import quota makes the average car owner pay 35.00 a month extra for gas and for the homeowner heating with oil, an extra 58.80 a year.

This is possible because national elections cost so much and the oil companies have the money to finance the candidates that will vote as they wish. According to an Internal Revenue Service ruling three oil men headed by the Board Chairman of Texaco, contributed 500,000 to the expenses of Eisenhowers' farm while he was in office and while oil import quotas were being considered. The name of the book is "America, Inc." by Mintz & Cohen. It's quite a book.

Thank you,
Martha Drake

THE FIRST measurable snow of the season fell on Charlevoix Nov. 6, blanketing East Park to a depth of about two inches. Charlevoix, as usual, escaped the brunt of the storm, which dumped more than four inches on Petoskey and eight inches in the Gaylord area.

OPEN HOUSE will be held at the Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Co. office on Bridge-st. Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. in honor of Arthur E. Emmons who is celebrating 25 years with the firm.

Art Emmons Marks 25 Years With Firm

Open house will be held at the Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Co. offices on Bridge-st. Friday, Nov. 12 from 9 until 5 p.m. in honor of Arthur E. Emmons who is marking his 25th year with the firm.

Emmons, 53, joined the firm in 1946, two years after the business was purchased by Mary Feindt.

He has held the positions of assistant surveyor and draftsman and presently is in charge of the Abstract and Title Insurance Department.

A native of Muskegon, Emmons graduated from Pellston High School and worked for the Kroger Co. in Charlevoix before serving with the Army during World War II in Europe Africa.

He was married to the former Helen Light in Norwood in 1954.

The Emmons have two children, Debbie, 17, and Mark, 15, both students at Charlevoix High School.

New Electric Firm Opens in Charlevoix

A new electrical firm—B & D Electric Service—has opened for business on Ferry-ave.

Proprietor is Denver Jackson, formerly associated with Browe Electric in Petoskey.

Jackson has constructed a 72 by 40 square-foot building across from the former Foster Boat Works and will specialize in electrical contracting and electrical repairs.

A native of Indianapolis, Ind., Jackson studied electricity at Arsenal Technical High School in Indianapolis and completed a course in electricity at the Boyne Electrical Institute in Chicago.

He also studied automation and automatic industrial controls at the University of Illinois.

Jackson has worked for the Keck Electrical Corp. and was general shop foreman for the Joliet Equipment Co. at Joliet, Ill. He also did maintenance work for the Ceco Corp. at Lamont, Ill., and worked for the International Nickle Corp.'s steel tubing division at Fairbury, Ill.

Jackson and his wife, the former Betty Browe, have three children, Terri, 18; Toni, 13; Karen, 10.

Mrs. Jackson plans to open a book exchange in the office portion of the new building in the near future.

Obituary

Greeley

Funeral for Charles S. Greeley, 51, a former local resident who died unexpectedly Oct. 6, in Rochester, N.Y., will be held Wednesday at the Walter Kroll in Rochester. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery at Rochester.

Born in Norwood township July 12, 1920, Mr. Greeley was graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1938. During World War II, he served with the U.S. Army, spending a total of 18 months overseas and during the Korean War served 13 months overseas. He returned here and, for the past eight years, has resided in Rochester.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Kenneth B. (Florence) Forbes of Charlevoix; a son, Timothy, serving with the U.S. Navy; two daughters, and a brother, Jerry Ypma of Fairfield, Calif.

Air Quality Board Mulls Medusa Emission Data

The Charlevoix Township Air Quality Board held four meetings this year to deal with specific complaints against Medusa Portland Cement Co. and alleged violations of the Charlevoix Township Air Quality Code, according to supervisor Oscar Stroud.

Among the complaints dealt with, were temporary kiln precipitator outages, a cement silo dust collector failure, dust from the quarry and in plant roads, dusting during ship loading and wind erosion from spoil piles.

At the Sept. 28, meeting, board member Cal Gould expressed the opinion that during a period from Aug. 12 to Aug. 25 excessive kiln stack emission was observed.

Board Chairman Stroud ordered the stack monitor charts for this period be submitted to Dr. T. Sweeney, registered professional engineer, and consultant to Charlevoix Township, for examination and interpretation.

Dr. Sweeney submitted his report on Oct. 29 with the following conclusions and recommendations.

"The kiln emissions appeared to substantially satisfy the requirements of the Air Quality Control Code for Charlevoix Township during the period of Aug. 12 to Aug. 25, 1971.

"Short duration excursions of the emission level above code limitation may have occurred during the period. Because of the manner of operation of the recorder, it is impossible to determine whether the code was in fact exceeded.

"During the period Aug. 2, 6, 9 and 13, a total of 2 hours and 17 minutes during the two weeks, the kiln was operated but the precipitator was not. These were periods of kiln start-up which are allowed under the code. No precipitator section was down for maintenance or repair during the two-week period."

The board requested and obtained from Lee E. Jager, chief of the Air Pollution Section, Michigan Department of Public Health, last year's complete readings of the sampling stations located in and around the Charlevoix Township.

In a telephone discussion with Jager, he stated:

"There is no measurable change in the air quality of the Charlevoix area. The air is as clear as it has been for many years."

The latest date of the air sample stations were studied by the air quality board and substantiate the statement by Jager.

The Air Quality Board has ordered Medusa to reduce certain dust emissions in the following areas of operation:

1. Quarry Roads - Require oiling during dry periods in the summer time.
2. Spoil Piles - Certain settled areas of the piles must be planted to avoid wind erosion.
3. Boat Loading - Dust emission during boat loading must be reduced.

Fred W. Cohrs, Medusa plant manager and member of the Air Quality Board, reported a number of improvements have been made on the most critical items and work is in progress in others.

Cohrs also reported that the electrostatic precipitator had operated trouble-free throughout the year.

Condominium Taking Shape On Round Lake

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Wharf condominiums on the shore of Round Lake below Belvedere-ave. took place Friday morning and construction is underway.

Architect Jack Begrow said the first 11 units should be ready for occupancy by next May. The entire complex will have 24 units.

"The style of the architecture will pick up the Earl Young theme that Charlevoix has loved for so many years," Begrow said in a press statement.

He said that many people are hoping that the Charlevoix condominium program will bring back the era Charlevoix used to know with grand residential hotels and casinos.

Taking part in the groundbreaking ceremonies with Begrow were Mayor Andrew Essenburg and Viktor Weyand of Traverse City, vice president and general manager of Timberlee Hills, the owner.

Also on hand was Tom Shaw of Cheboygan, general contractor.

The Wharf occupies 287 feet of lake frontage so each apartment owner will be able to keep his boat right in front of his apartment.

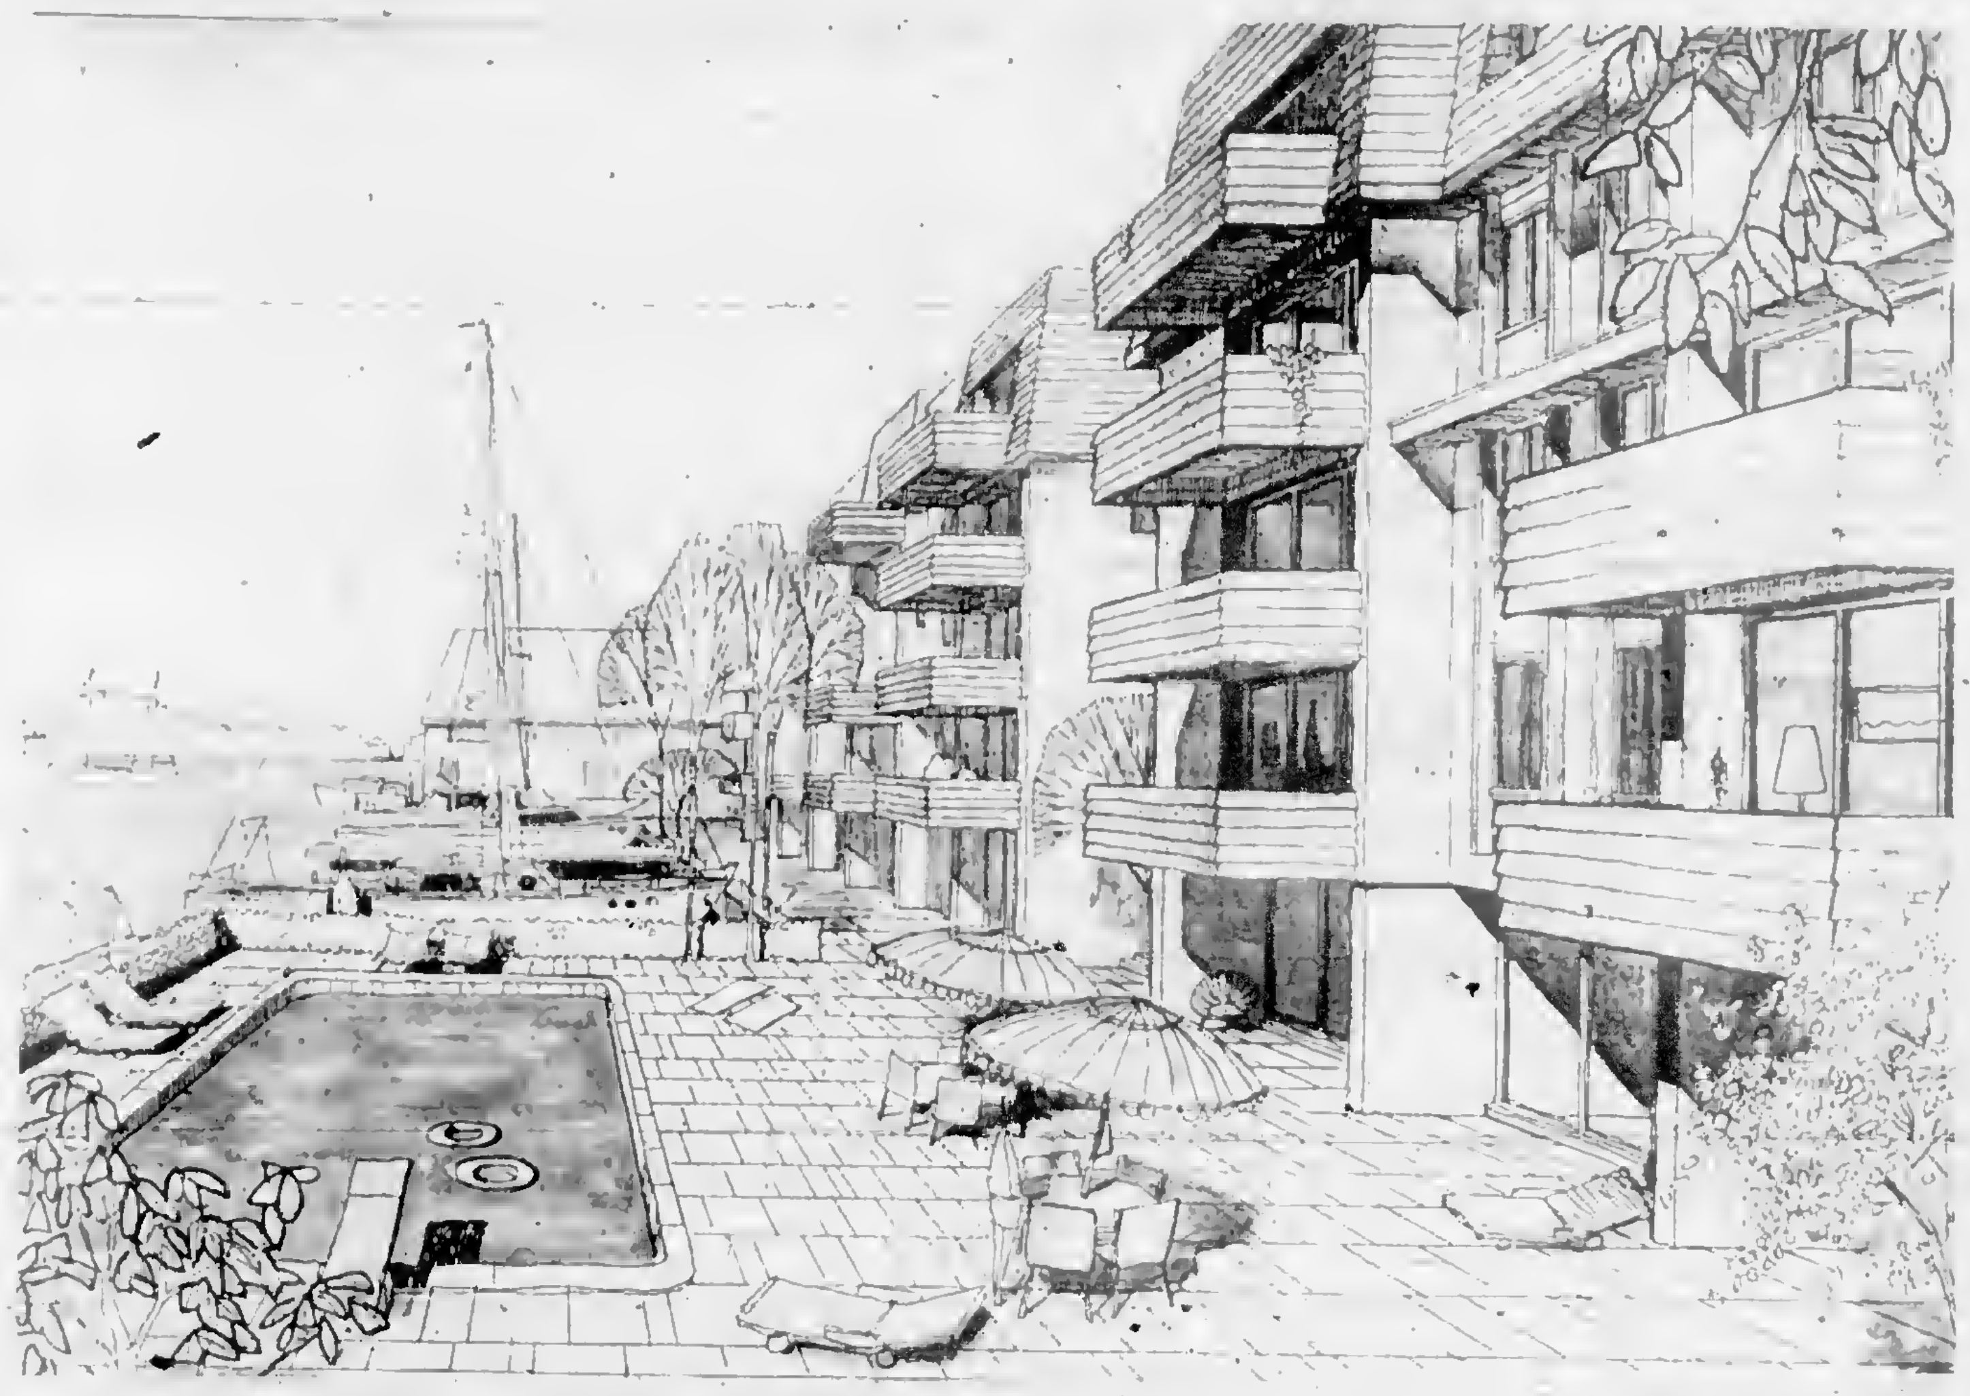
Located at the dock level will be sauna baths and a heated pool, sun terrace and some shops. Each apartment will be fully air-conditioned and each will be carpeted to the owners' specifications.

Because the Wharf Condominiums provide a view of the harbor, each apartment will have a large balcony facing the lake.

Units range in size from one to three bedrooms and in price from $35,000 to $63,000. Seven of the apartments have already been sold to owners from Ann Arbor, Detroit, Chicago, and Berlin, Germany.

"As far as I know all condominiums built in northern Michigan have been sold by their completion date," Begrow said.

Sales will be handled by Ski and Shore Properties, co-exclusively with Streel Tree Properties, Inc., in Traverse City, with representation in Detroit and soon in Chicago.



THE WHARF CONDOMINIUMS are now under construction on the shore of Round Lake, near the intersection of Bridge-st. and Belvedere-ave. The first 11 units are expected to be ready for occupancy by next May, according to Architect Jack Begrow. The site of the building is the former city water works.

Dam Vote Delayed

The Natural Resources Commission has postponed for one month a decision on the granting of a permit to Frank Shelden of Ann Arbor for construction of a dam across Monroe Creek south of Ironton.

The proposed dam would create a 400-acre lake, the focal point of a proposed 1,500-homesite development.

A. Gene Gazlay, assistant director of the DNR, told the Courier Monday that the commissioners voted unanimously at their meeting in Lansing Nov. 10 and 11 to table action on the dam permit until the December meeting.

"The commissioners feel they have additional questions and would like at least a month to get answers," Gazlay said.

He pointed out that such cases are decided on their individual merits, the Monroe Creek dam permit would be establishing a precedent of sorts.

The delay was asked specifically by Commissioners Carl T. Johnson, Hillary Snell and Harry Whitely, although Commissioner Matt Laitala concurred.

Commissioner Gus Scholle attended the meeting, but became ill and left before the Monroe Creek dam permit was discussed.

Also postponed was a decision on the swap of state-held fishing easements on Monroe Creek for property on another trout stream on Wilson Township owned by Shelden

Dr. Ralph MacMullan, director of the DNR, has recommended that the dam permit be granted and the property exchanged on grounds that it is better to control the development of wilderness land when development becomes inevitable.

In a lengthy statement published in last week's Courier, Dr. MacMullan said if the property were owned by the state it would be kept in its natural state.

ROBERT WISE of Charlevoix, new chairman of the Charlevoix County GOP, is congratulated by Katharine Hafstad, former chairman of the Emmet County Republican party, after his election last Thursday night. Wise, formerly finance chairman, succeeds Oscar Stroud who has retired. A member of the State Central Committee, Mrs. Hafstad discussed GOP problems at the November meeting of Charlevoix Republicans.

Herrington Buys Texaco Station

Michael Herrington has purchased the Texaco service station of S. Bridge-st. from Al Smith.

A native of Charlevoix, Herrington graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1961 and spent four years with the Air Force as an automotive mechanic.

While serving overseas, he met and married his German-born wife, Evelyn. They have one son, Corey, 2.

Before buying the Texaco station, Herrington was caretaker at the Loeb Farm.

Herrington is sponsoring a buck contest during the current hunting season, with a trophy going to the hunter who nails the largest buck, based on weight, rack and points.

MIKE HERRINGTON, who has purchased the Texaco station on south Bridge-st. from Al Smith, is offering a trophy for the largest buck weighed at the station, based on weight, rack spread and points.

Joe Jones Elected To Conference Team

Joe Jones, a member of the Charlevoix Red Rayder football squad, has been elected to the 1971 Michigan-Huron Shores All Opponent Team, Defensive Unit.

A linebacker, Jones stands six feet tall and weighs 220 pounds. He is a senior at Charlevoix High School.

Charlevoix also placed three players on the honorable mention team: Bill Carey, end for the offense; Tim Carey, back for the offense; and Bob Cudd, end for the defense.

A senior, Tom Carey stands six-feet, three-inches and weighs 185 pounds. Tim Carey also is a senior, stands six-feet and weighs 185 pounds. Senior Bob Cudd stands five-feet, 11-inches and weighs 165 pounds.

Elected with Jones to the All-Opponent team were, offensive: Rick Powers, St. Ignace, end; Ralph Santini, Rogers City, end; Dave Mulka, Rogers City, guard; Richard Otto, Petoskey, guard; Tony Idalski, Rogers City, tackle; Cliff Kitchen, Cheboygan, tackle; Rod Bellmore, Rogers City, center; Jack Fairbanks, Rogers City, quarterback; Terry Socia, Rogers City, back; Gary Urman, Petoskey, back; Mike Winston, St. Ignace, back; Mark Herzog, Cheboygan, back; and Ed Lester, St. Ignace, back.

Elected to the defensive unit were: Larry Hentkowski, Rogers City, end; Rick Powers, St. Ignace, end; Tony Idalski, Rogers City, line; Rocky Woods, Cheboygan, line; Tim Huskey, St. Ignace, line; Tom Huskey, St. Ignace, line; Dave Mulka, Rogers City, line; Jack Fairbanks, Rogers City, linebacker; Joe Jones, Charlevoix, linebacker; Al Newville, Boyne City, linebacker; Ed Lester, St. Ignace, safety; and Mike Lafrinere, Cheboygan, safety.

McSauba Rates Higher

Tow rates for the 1971-72 ski season at Mt. McSauba have been increased, according to manager Chuck Meier.

Meier said the increase is necessary in order to pay for improvements made during the past year and to meet higher operating costs.

Season tickets will go on sale at the Charlevoix County State Bank and the First State Bank on Dec. 1. They also will be available at the ski lodge when skiing starts.

Meier said skiers will save money on season tickets if they pay in full at the time of purchase.

Buoy Pick-Up Is Underway

The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew has started its annual fall pick-up of lighted buoys in the northern Great Lakes, according to Lt. Cmdr. Berl Williams.

The cutter will bring in 38 buoys from Sleeping Bear Dune to the St. Marys River, Williams said.

Last week, men from the cutter relocated two buoys which had drifted from their moorings in high winds.

TAKING part in ground breaking ceremonies for The Wharf condominiums on the shore of Round Lake Nov. 12 were (from left) architect Jack Begrow, Viktor Weyand of Traverse City, vice president and general manager of Timberlee Hills, and Mayor Andrew Essenburg. Tom Shaw of Cheboygan is general contractor. The first 11 units will be ready for occupancy by May.

Blood Bank to Cover All County Residents

Effective Dec. 1, all residents of Charlevoix County and members of their immediate families, regardless of where they reside, will be covered by the Red Cross Blood Program, according to Jason Snyder of East Jordan, executive secretary of the Charlevoix County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"Charlevoix County is now one of 41 counties participating in the Lansing Regional Red Cross Blood Program," Snyder said. "All residents are entitled to have their total blood needs met through this program."

He emphasized that all residents and members of their families are covered, whether or not they have been donors.

However he added that the needs can be met only if blood is donated on a continuing basis.

"If a resident is hospitalized within any one of 41 counties, coverage is automatic," he said. "The 78 hospitals of this region receive their total blood supply from the Red Cross Center in Lansing.

Charlevoix Hospital will be supplied through the Little Traverse Hospital Blood Bank.

"If hospitalized outside the region, replacements of blood actually used is effected by notifying the recipient's local Red Cross chapter.

Snyder said hospitals will charge a service fee for administering the blood transfusion.

Dhaseleer Gets Buck

The first deer kill of the 1971 season in the Charlevoix area was reported to the Courier Monday morning.

John Dhaseleer reported that he shot a five-point buck about three miles south of the city at 8:30 a.m. He said the animal weighed 132 pounds.

He said he met the buck walking toward him in a swamp.

About the same time, a second buck was killed by Dick Smith in the same area.

SP/4 Drew Wins Praise as Gunner

SP/4 Larry Drew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Drew of Loeb-rd., has received the following letter of commendation from his commanding officer, Capt. John W. Killeen:

"I would like to take this opportunity to commend you on the fine work you have done serving as assistant gunner of the 1st Howitzer Section with Brave Battery, 1st Battalion, 92nd Artillery.

"Your performance since being assigned to Bravo Battery has been an outstanding example to the entire battery. You have revealed extensive knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of all the cannoneer positions, especially assistant gunner. In the latter position you have excelled through diligence in breech, maintenance and speed in firing. Consequently, much of your actions rapidly gained your respect from the members of the entire battery. I am proud to have had you in Brave Battery.

"Your commendable performance and respectful dedication has facilitated the smooth accomplishment of our mission and reflects great credit upon yourself, this unit and the United States Army."

"A copy of this letter will be placed in the permanent portion of your 201 file."

SP/4 Drew has recently been reassigned to the Nha Trang area of Vietnam where he is serving as guard for Brig. Gen. Armstrong.

No more dirty work with a self-cleaning Gas range.

Just think of it. You'll never have to get down on your hands and knees to scrape and scrub the dirty, greasy insides of your oven again. Because today's modern Gas ranges have self-cleaning ovens.

Forget about baked-on splatters. And rock-like spills.

With a self-cleaning oven all you have to do is turn a knob and the messiest job in your home (oven cleaning) takes care of itself. Giving you time to take care of the more pleasant things in your life.

But a self-cleaning oven is just one good feature in today's modern Gas range.

With Gas you have the advantage of smokeless closed door broiling. Infinite heat control. And best of all, total economy. Because a modern Gas range uses less Gas to do the same job. And a Gas range costs about one-fourth as much to operate as an electric one.

So before the holidays, stop by your dealer or any Michigan Consolidated Gas Company showroom, and buy a new Gas range with a full range of features.

A new Gas range will save you Gas and money too. And remember—oven cleaning is no-job for a lady.

Local deer hunters who have departed for the Upper Peninsula during the past week include Arlo Crites and Glen Rose who left Tuesday for their camp near Foster City.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Scott and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Swanson are spending two weeks hunting also in the Foster City area.

Members of the Charlevoix Hunting Club at their lodge on Witch Lake include Bruce Henley, Ted Ager, Joe Liston, Ken Cellner, Wayne Bietel, Warren Shapton of Lansing, Kenneth Ager of Flint and Keith Nickerson of Petoskey.

Robert Winchester, Dr. Robert Martin, Dr. Robert Tollas, Dr. Robert Anderson and Richard Fochtman left on Saturday to spend one week at their cabin in Dickinson County near Ralph.

Leaving Sunday for the Rogers City area were Charles Heise and Edward Thorsen of East Jordan.

Charles Bellinger and Frank Novotny plan to leave this coming Friday to hunt near Raco for the balance of the deer season.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Harwood and two children of Flint spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rabach.

Mrs. James Howard has returned to her Muskegon home after spending five weeks here visiting her sister, Mrs. Howard Herriman and family.

Mrs. Robert Withers, Mrs. Sue Martin and daughter Frances and Mrs. Marie Sendenberg, who joined them at St. Ignace, were in Newberry last Saturday to attend the wedding of their nephew Joseph LaBlance, son of former residents Mr. and Mrs. Emerald LaBlance, to Catherine Jago. The wedding was held at St. Gregory's Catholic Church in Newberry. After a wedding trip the couple will make their home at the Canadian Soo.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Shapton departed last week for their winter home at Jensen Beach, Fla. Their son Ralph of Royal Oak drove them south and returned by air.

Members of the Rod and Gun Club Auxiliary held their regular monthly potluck dinner at the Club house on Monday evening Nov. 8 for members and guests. Mrs. Frank Zednicek, president, presided at the short business meeting at which plans were made for their annual Christmas party.

Mrs. Robert Oliver and daughter Kelly of Kingsford are visiting her mother, Mrs. Les Payne, and Mr. Payne who is a patient at the local hospital.

Harley Koons and a party of friends from Detroit arrived Friday to spend the first week of deer hunting in the area. They are staying at the Bob Egler cottage at Pine Point.

Mrs. Patricia A. Cease was admitted as a surgical patient at Lockwood-MacDonald Hospital in Petoskey last week.

Miss Alice Strickland left Saturday to join a group of friends deer hunting in the Engadine area of the U.P.

Mrs. Wayne Beitel is visiting in Novato, Calif., with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S.B. Hughes.

Donald Ward, student at Ferris State College, Big Rapids, spent the last weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Ward jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Bring have returned to their winter home at Lakeland, Fla., after spending the summer at their Ironton cottage.

Mrs. Richard Hull is spending several weeks visiting with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ketchman and family at Morgan City, La.

Mr. and Mrs. George Zelker left last Saturday to spend the winter in Palmetto, Fla.

Arlo Crites recently returned from a vacation trip which he spent with his brothers, Roy of Walled Lake and Pearl of Albion. The trio visited for the first time the place of their father's birth near Buckhannon, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Ward-sr. departed last Friday to spend the winter months in Florida. Enroute they spent several days visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goldberg, and two daughters in Grand Rapids and with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Ward and family in Birmingham.

To Marry In December

By ANNE OSTERBAAN

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bolhuis of Ellsworth announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Ardith Ann, to Jack Tornga, son of Mr and Mrs. Jake Tornga of rural Charlevoix. The couple will wed Dec. 10.

Mrs. Dinwiddie Heads Hospital Guild Volunteers

Mrs. Darrell Dinwiddie has been named chairman of volunteer services for the Women's Guild of Charlevoix Hospital, Mrs. Jack Rader, president of the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Hospital, has announced.

Volunteers are being sought for Monday and Wednesday. Anyone wishing to participate in the program, one of the services offered by the guild, is asked to call Mrs. Dinwiddie.

At the same meeting a committee to plan decorations at the hospital during the forthcoming holidays was named by Mrs. Rader. They are Mrs. James Gallagher, Mrs. Gordon Freedman, Mrs. James Driggett, Mrs. Robert Neff, Frances Milner and Mrs. Clifford Riley. Others will be named to assist with the project scheduled to begin Dec. 7. Anyone wishing to help may call Mrs. Rader.

At the same meeting, Mrs. Riley, chairman of the layette committee, reported that her committee would begin working on the project in the near future.

Mrs. Rader suggests that anyone wishing to do something for a patient at the hospital may now pay for a day's use of a television for a modest fee. Inquiries may be made at the admittance desk.

Mrs. Rader reported on the district association of hospital auxiliaries held in Traverse City; Mrs. Harry Gebeau advised that contributions in honor of or in memory of someone may be made by calling her and a card will be sent and Mrs. Dale Glass reported that the Guild had provided favors for patients tray at Hallowe'en.

Marolyn Kay Bishaw Married in Petoskey

By Beth Geneit

The Assembly of God Church in Petoskey was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Marolyn Kay Bishaw and John L. Massey of Petoskey on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 30.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Shirley Bishaw. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Marion Massey of Boyne Falls.

The Rev. John Paget officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of 50 guests. Lois Smaltz of Petoskey played the traditional music program and wedding march.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white organza fashioned with an empire waist and chiffon sleeves. A miniature crown secured her veil and she carried a bouquet of white and yellow mums.

Mrs. Edward Heise jr., was her sister's only attendant and was attired in an empire styled gown of royal blue velvet bodice and a lighter blue skirt. She wore a matching velvet bow in her hair and carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations.

Joseph Etcher of Boyne City, brother-in-law of the bride, assisted the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were James Bishaw and Mr. Etcher.

A reception followed in the Fellowship Hall of the church. Assisting were the bride's sisters, Joyce Bishaw, and Mrs. Etcher of Boyne City, Mrs. Jean Massey and Mrs. Eloise McGeorge of Boyne Falls. After a brief wedding trip the couple will make their home at Boyne Falls.

The bride attended the Charlevoix High School.

Harold DeYoung Claims Bride in California Rites

Linda Lee Shill of Fremont, Calif., became the bride of Harold Terrence DeYoung of Redwood City, Calif., in ceremonies Nov. 6 at the Centerville Presbyterian Church in Fremont, the Rev. Deane F. Babbitt officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Shill of Fremont. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold DeYoung of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a high-necked gown of ivory satin trimmed in lace. Her lace-trimmed train fell from a bow at the back of the high waistline. She carried a bouquet of ivory carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath and greenery and wore a keepsake engagement ring of her grandmother's.

The bride's sister, JoAnn Shill of Fremont, was maid of honor. She wore a chiffon dress of orange with long, full sleeves. The high-necked dress was trimmed with ivory lace with orange satin ribbon woven through. They carried a bouquet of orange and rust carnations and yellow daisies bound with a yellow ribbon.

Bridesmaid was Mrs. Louis Fanfa of Fremont and Jennifer Seymour, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

Chris Jungermann of Fremont was best man and Louis Fanfa of Fremont and Gene Crow of El Sebrante ushers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Shill wore an Empire-styled gown of burnt orange linen with a matching high-belted coat. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

Mr. and Mrs. DeYoung were unable to attend the ceremony.

Parents of the bride hosted a wedding reception at the Colonial Room in Fremont.

After a wedding trip to Squaw Valley, the DeYoungs are living at the Hayward Apartments in Fremont.

The bride is a graduate of Washington High School and Chabot College. She works as a dental receptionist.

The bridegroom graduated from Charlevoix High School and North Central Michigan College. He has spent four years in the Air Force and presently is a claims examiner for Hartford Insurance.

Mrs. J. Marek Is Honored at Baby Shower

Mrs. John Marek of Ironton was honored at a pink and blue shower Nov. 4, hosted by Sue Staley at her home on Prospect-st.

Games were played and prizes won by Mrs. Robert Geer and Mrs. James Luther.

Gifts were opened from a decorated bassinet and refreshments were served.

Guests attending were Mrs. Geer, Mrs. Luther, Mrs. Nicholas DeYoung, Mrs. Gary Parsell, Mrs. Gerald Selph, Mrs. Rolland Hayes, Mrs. Nancy Kirkham, Mrs. Clare Staley and Miss Julie Selph.

THE BASKETBALL season is fast approaching. Here Charlevoix High School custodian Ilo Helms sands gym floor in preparation for the first game of the season against Rogers City Nov. 26.

4 Selected For Honors Band

Try-outs for the 1971 Honors Band were held at Charlevoix High School Nov. 8. Two hundred and ten band students from 20 area schools auditioned for the ninety-four piece band.

Each student played before a judge and a committee of area band directors selected the best musicians.

Representatives from Charlevoix are: Jeanne Belfy - first chair oboe; Sara Sweet - fourth chair alto saxaphone, Lisa Wasoski - first chair bass clarinet; and Ron Winchester - second chair bass.

This year's Honors Band will be directed by Mr. Gerald Bartlett.

The band will present a concert to the public on Dec. 5 at Charlevoix High School.

Projects Planned By Clubs

By MAUREEN PELTIER

FHA, the Future Homemakers of America, has big plans for the 71-72 school year.

The club, headed by President Margaret Borths, has only had one meeting so far this year. Members discussed plans for taking a trip to the State Hospital in Traverse City, making toys for underprivileged children at Christmas time and putting a Christmas tree up in the High School patio.

Other officers of the club are Pam Watkins, secretary; Debbie Marme, treasurer; and Debbie Bascom, historian.

The Spanish club is also headed for another big year at CHS. This club had a party November 2 at Jim Sundberg's house. At this gathering future club functions were discussed. In between eating tacos, the members decided to have bi-weekly meetings after school on Tuesday nights. In a recent record raffle, the club made $12.00. They are also planning a bake sale Nov. 24. Officers of the club are Peg Carey, president; Nina Lundteigen, treasurer; Paula Merritt, secretary; Karla Erber, vice-president; and Janet Begrow, historian.

The Latin Club has gotten off to something of a slow start this year. President Jeanne Belfy has plans to get it moving, though, including a Christmas party, a bake sale in the near future and perhaps a dance.

A repeat of last year's sledding party is being considered, and of course, plans for the annual Roman Banquet are underway.

The next meeting of the club will be Nov. 17, with all members asked to attend. Officers of Latin club include Sara Sweet, vice-president; Peg Berg, secretary; Susie Pettis, treasurer; and Debbie Rank, historian.

The team and their coach, Mrs. Marie Osterberg, participated Nov. 6 at Cheboygan.

The Volleyball Team received ribbons along with their trophy. The girls were: Donna Warner, Lorie Herzog, Cindy Klieber, Jane Wimmer, Caroll Russell, Linda Sneathan, Cathy Whitely, Tiller Otis, Cheryl Pence and Cindy Strocheism.

First Varsity Game Set for Nov. 26

By Jeff Lachman

The Varsity basketball players began their pre-season workouts last Monday.

Several players are returning from last year's varsity team. Many more players have moved up to the varsity from the junior varsity.

With all the experienced players returning from last years' team, the Rayders should be a top contender in the conference this year.

The basketball schedule for the Rayders is as follows:

Let your furnace breathe again.

Replace the filter at least once each heating season and clean it once each month if needed. You'll save Gas and money.

Replacing or cleaning the filter in your Gas warm air furnace is just a small job. But it can make a big difference. Because a clogged filter makes your furnace work harder and use more Gas. And that costs you more money.

This is just one of many Gas and money-saving ideas you'll find in Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's free booklet, "The Great Escape." By checking and correcting the ways heat escapes from your home, you can make Gas (already one of today's big bargains) an even bigger bargain.

Fill out the coupon, and learn more ways to foil the great escape—and save Gas and money, too. Or pick up a copy of "The Great Escape" at any of our offices. It's free.

Distaff Athletes Bring Honors to City

Charlevoix gals are a force to be reckoned with when it comes to athletics.

Last summer, the County Bank girls' softball team won the state finals in Coldwater — the first time any Charlevoix team has won a state-first in anything.

Then last week, Charlevoix's girl volleyball players returned from Cheboygan with the first-place trophy in the Michigan-Huron Shores competition.

Members of the championship team are Carol Russell, Kathy Whitley, Tiller Otis, Lori Herzog, Donna Warner (captain), Linda Sneathen, Cindy Kleiber, Jane Wimmer, Cindy Strohschein and Cheryl Pence. They are coached by Mrs. Marie Osterberg.

This winter, Charlevoix girls will compete in league basketball action and come spring there will be track and field events for the distaff athletes.

So Charlevoix can look for more honors from its womenfolk in the not-too-distant future.

Why Not Federal Land For Indian Memorial?

Nov. 13, 1971
R-1, Charlevoix

Dear Bob:

Since I am directly affected by the proposed Woodland Indian Memorial Park, I would like to make a few comments concerning the Task Force Report and the meeting held by the Task Force on Nov. 4.

It was apparent that the Task Force came to Charlevoix more interested in selling the planned park, rather than explaining it.

The Task Force stated at the meeting "that the Charlevoix site was selected because it scored highest in their evaluation of the proposed sites." The Task Force Report indicated that of 30 proposed sites, a physical evaluation was made of only five sites. It would be interesting to find out why a physical evaluation was not made of the other 25 sites, especially since at least two of these sites are located on federal land.

Statements made by members of the Task Force pertaining to questions asked about whether or not "New Town" will have the same status as an Indian Reservation and if it would contain motels, restaurants and other businesses were quite different from what is proposed by the Task Force Report.

It appears that the Task Force has somewhat exaggerated the importance and age of the archaeological sites.

There is no doubt that Indians have lived in this area for many years. There are tens of thousands of places that Indians have lived in this state. However, the oldest and more numerous sites will be found in the southern part of the state.

The Task Force Report states "The most unique site is a chert quarry and workshop site located one mile north of Norwood on the Lake Michigan shore. Here is a deposit of Devonian chert which was the single source of supply of this vital material for the pre-historic inhabitants of Northwestern Michigan. We know that the deposit was quarried as early as 8000 B.C. and was used extensively until the arrival of Europeans."

Chert is a common form of quartz that the glaciers deposited throughout the state. It can be picked up along our beaches, in our gravel pits and on top of the ground.

Chert tools made from chert that did not come from the Norwood deposit have been found in the Charlevoix area.

The chert at the Norwood location occurs in a limestone outcrop that extends approximately 17 feet above Lake Michigan. The chert deposit in the limestone is located close to water level and extends out under the water surface.

Geologists have established that the water level of Lake Michigan 4,000 years ago was 25 feet higher than at present and 15 feet higher 3,000 years ago. The chert deposit must have been covered by water for at least 2,000 years.

The federal government owns nearly three million acres of forestland in Michigan. I feel that since the federal government took the land from the Indians in the first place, then it should be willing to give a generous amount of federally-owned land to the Indians for a memorial, instead of trying to grab the land of individuals.

Thank you,
G.E. Ohmer

Q. What effect does Judge Roth's decision concerning busing of school children in Pontiac have to do with us? I am getting sick and tired of all the fuss being made about this and other race problems. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. B., Cheboygan

A. Michigan people have had more than their share of emotional issues in the past few years - civil rights, open housing, parochiaid, abortion and deer herd control.

But none has been any more controversial than that of forced busing of children to achieve racial balance in schools.

It is one of those issues in which anyone - especially a legislator - who takes one side or the other is almost immediately termed a "bigot" by proponents of the other side.

White parents who, although they have no objection to black children attending school with their own, want their children educated in the schools in the neighborhood they chose to live in, are invariably tabbed "racists."

It doesn't matter that the rights of their own children are taken away by court order and given to other children to salve the cries of the latters' parents that they don't want their children attending a school in which majority of the children are of their own race.

No reasonable person wants any one segment of our school population to have less of an educational opportunity than any other segment. But forced busing is not the only way to achieve equal educational opportunity.

If money used to force-bus children miles from their homes were used to good purpose, educational opportunities of all children would be equal very soon.

The most frustrating part of the federal courts' determination to use forced busing to solve the problem of inequality of education is that it throws democracy out the window.

To satisfy the demands of the minority, the courts often forget the rights of the majority.

The latest nationwide Gallup poll shows that 76 percent of the American people oppose forced busing to achieve integration of schools. They aren't opposed to integration itself - they are opposed to the method by which the rights of the majority are taken away and given to the minority.

It is interesting to note that even a majority of Negroes questioned by Gallup expressed opposition to forced busing. Gallup said 47 percent of Blacks polled opposed it and 45 percent favored it, with no opinion expressed by eight percent.

In response to heavy demands from a frustrated public that doesn't know how to cope with the federal courts, the Legislature took action last week by overwhelming votes of both Houses to start the ball rolling to change the constitution by specifically outlawing forced busing of children because of their race.

As expected, legislaturs now are being smeared by pro-busing forces.

A good example of the speciousness of their arguments is a column by a Detroit liberal writer, who lambasted the Legislature for taking action in response to public demand - and in the next breath saying the Legislatures' failures to "answer the constitutional questions" is what forced federal courts to "do all the legislating these days."

Calls Wage, Price Freeze 'Facism'

Editor,
The Charlevoix Courier

I have been waiting anxiously for several weeks for you to come forth with a really worthwhile editorial concerning present world affairs. Especially an editorial explaining President Nixon's trips to Peking and Moscow; Kissinger's preliminary journeys to Red China; Red Tito's planned visit to Washington; Red Kosygin's sojourn with protege Pierre Trudeau; and the Brezhnev-Sadat (both Reds) talks. Most of your readers would be interested in your opinion I am sure. Then perhaps you could rationalize (your thinking please - not NBC's or CBS's), the sell out of Nationalist China by the United States and the lesser nations in the United Nations. Or perhaps the sell out by our rulers of all of China including Vietnam and South Korea. Perhaps I am asking too much? Want something easier? Try the busing issue that 75 percent of all Americans of All races are opposed to. If even this is too much, I am sure you would have some sage comments on such simple subjects as the drug epidemic, immorality, and the growing lack of respect for their elders (especially parents) among the young.

You should be alarmed about the dangers to your "democracy" as most Americans are alarmed about the dangers of their Constitutional Republic in the light of President Nixon's formal introduction of Fascism with price and wage controls. of Course you know (because you attended our seminar over a year ago) that Fascism is an economic system, not a political system. But, for the above parenthetical reason, you also know that Fascism is only possible under an oligarchy (dictatorship) and therefore this is in direct opposition to your "democracy" and my Republic. Why are you so quiet about these things? It takes a really big man to admit that he was wrong and that perhaps a "foreigner" such as Rep. Richard Friske really does understand the meaning of Americanism. That Friske is right when he says there is an international Satanic conspiracy of a group of men who want to rule the world. That these men intend to rule slaves, not peers and further that these men consider themselves to be the political, economic and intellectual elite. Using the above statement as a guide, Mr. Editor, measure the happenings of recent days and see if things don't begin to make sense. And if they don't, I for one would be interested in your explaination. Don't use the usual editorial device of name calling as an answer to my questions. Please do your best with your position of influence in our community to assist your fellow Americans in understanding todays state, national, and world events with rationality, honesty, and logic.

Lastly, you and any of your readers are very welcome to attend one of our study sessions that will help you to know the truth. Please contact me soon and avail yourself of this opportunity for the hour is very late.

Sincerely,
Malcolm W. Dale

(Editor's note: Recent issues of the Courier have commented editorially on President Nixon's proposed visits to Moscow and Peiping and Red China's admission to the United Nations. Nov. 3 both moves could be steps toward world peace. The Courier also has commented editorially on busing to achieve racial integration in the classroom, Oct. 13, Set. 22 and Aug. 18 we're against it because schools exist to teach, not to bus. We would prefer a student exchange program with the inner-cities, whereby youngsters from the ghettos would spend the entire school year in out-state communities. We also have commented on President Nixon's price-wage freeze, Aug. 25 we don't view it as a step toward Fascism but as a necessary move to control skyrocketing inflation. Where have you been, Mr. Dale?)

Clockwise

Brookside

By BOB CLOCK

I stopped at Brookside Cemetery last week enroute home from my weekly round of newspaper deliveries in East Jordan and Ellsworth and I was surprised at how many old and valued friends have taken up residence there in the six short years the Clocks have lived in Charlevoix.

Any visit to a cemetery is a sober reminder that life, after all, is a very fleeting thing, something to be savored for a few short years at best.

But a visit to Brookside is something akin to stopping to chat with old friends in pleasant surroundings.

I was surprised, although I shouldn't have been, to find the grave of Laura Courier who died this year at the age of 70. It is hard to imagine Laura up at Brookside, when rightfully she should be down at Schroeder's Drug Store, sipping hot coffee and discussing the affairs of the day with Edith Balch and Joan Carey.

Although Laura reveled in hard work and was the guiding light behind Brown Motors for many years, she also savored the little things of life, like coffee and small talk. She loved living in Charlevoix and wouldn't have traded her apartment above the garage for a penthouse in Paris.

Nearby are the graves of Fred and Nellie Tyler, who share a single tombstone and an American Legion flag holder.

Nellie Tyler! What a gracious little lady she was. One of her prized possessions was a chair made of white pine from Beaver Island which was once owned by Charles Strang, editor of the Courier and a brother of King Strang.

A week before she died in 1966, Nellie donated the chair to the Beaver Island Museum. The angina pains were getting worse with every passing day and she wanted to make sure her cherished chair was in good hands when she left.

After Nellie died Fred grew a beard. His main diversion was walking downtown every afternoon stopping at Joe Williams' Cigar Store (Joe's gone too, now) for a dish of ice cream, or at the Sugar Bowl for a cup of coffee and a piece of pie. Sometimes he'd stop at the Topside for a glass of beer.

Then, with the measured pace of an old man, he would walk down to Pine River Channel and spend a minute contemplating the majesty of Lake Michigan before returning to his home on Alice-st.

Fred, 86, died this year and has joined Nellie at Brookside—two of the kindest people I have ever known.

"Clark C. Coulter—Michigan—Major Field Artillery—World War I—Aug. 18, 1889-March 15, 1969."

That's the way Clark Coulter's marker reads up at Brookside. I never knew he was a veteran of World War I. When I first met him he had retired from his law practice and was a brisk, affable man with reddish-grey hair and a ruddy complexion.

He drove down to the post office every morning in his jeep to pick up the mail and swap stories with other postal patrons in the lobby. He was one of the few people I knew who could afford to leave Charlevoix for warmer climates in the winter—but didn't. Charlevoix was the only place he considered home.

Then there's George E. Driggett—"1900-1968."

It's hard to imagine George won't be back from Milwaukee next summer to host the annual Arm of Honor golf tournament for his alma mater—Eastern Michigan University.

A high school coach who nurtured a boundless exuberance for life, George loved Charlevoix next to sports and managed to spend every summer here.

Now He's "home" for good.

"Franklin C. Sears--1894-1971." Frank lived in Traverse City but visited Charlevoix whenever he had a hankering to talk about the good old days when he piloted a passenger boat from Charlevoix to East Jordan and Boyne City. He usually found willing listeners at the Courier office.

There are are others—so many others—whom I didn't know but whose names are indelibly inscribed in the history of Charlevoix.

Pioneer merchant Archibald Buttars, who died in 1926 at age 88.

Dr. Robert Bruce Armstrong who tended to the aches and pains of Charlevoixs for so many years.

Shoeman P. D. Campbell who loved Charlevoix so much he wrote a book about the town.

A. J. Usher, editor and publisher of the Courier.

They are all up there in Brookside with the Meeches, the Bedfords, the Dutchers, the Chews, the Hairs, the Swintons, the Weeds, the Crouters, the Bridges and the Nicholls—names that are as much a part of Charlevoix as Round Lake and Pine River Channel.

As I was saying, it's a pity we only celebrate Memorial Day once a year.

Love, Honor and Grease

By JIM FITZGERALD

The boys at the car wash are making out with my sex symbol. But I don't care. Just so long as they don't sue me for any social diseases they might catch.

A Delaware professor, Dr. George Basalla, gained national publicity recently when he declared that fast cars are replacing women as sex symbols.

Dr. Basalla, who has done extensive research with plenty of pit stops, says men generate "a highly emotional and erotic relationship" with their cars. The doctor reads sexual connotations into such terms as "hot rod, Body by Fisher and bosoms of the bumper."

The Sunday ritual of washing and waxing the car also has sexual significance, he says, representing "the male caressing his mechanical mistress with balsam and oils." (That sounds so sexy, maybe the boys at the car wash should pay me.)

I've never cared much for cars. In 21 years of driving, I've owned only five. As long as the car I now own gets me where I'm going in reasonable comfort, I see no reason to trade for a new one. Some of my fondest enemies are car salesmen. They have long regarded me as un-American, even subversive. Now, thanks to Dr. Basalla, they probably think I'm queer, too.

How come I'm not having a hot affair with my Oldsmobile? I never pet it or even fondle the bosom of the bumper. The awful truth is, I don't have any more affection for my car than I do for my lawn mower.

If I were looking for a mechanical mistress, I'd probably start making suggestive moves toward the refrigerator. But really, anything with moving parts turns me off. If I ever go steady with an appliance, it will probably be a can opener.

I have never understood why men fall in love with cars. I used to think the Indianapolis 500 race, 'round and 'round they go, was the all-time dumbest sports event. But then someone invented drag racing. Grown men spend all day Sunday roaring down a short stretch of blacktop, competing to see who can make the most noise and waste the most rubber. Incredible.

I know a man who was so romantically attached to his car he could not bear to part with it, even when it began falling apart. Instead of selling the parts for junk, he sent for a priest and buried the car in his backyard.

Bucket seats and stick shifts prove Dr. Basalla is right. Healthy young Joe Crankshaft will insist on buckets so he can sit zoomy, like Mario Andretti. And Joe wants that stick hard beside him, so he can grab the power and thrust it forward, wham, the second the light turns green. Which means Joe's girl can't cuddle up to him unless she straddles metal and risks embarrassing involvement if not serious injury.

Now I ask you. When a young man prefers hard steel to soft flesh, this country can stop worrying about the population explosion. But there are greater worries. To each his own, but I am not raising my son to marry a Chevrolet. Not even if he can get Ralph Nader to give the bride away.

Don't tell my wife I said so, but there is still something about a girl, even when the warranty runs out.

Hunters Kill Peace, Quiet In North

Sen. Philip Hart is introducing anti-hand-gun legislation, and in many areas we find evidence of a movement to hasten the day when all guns will be confiscated. The strongest argument for this kind of legislation will be the gangsters, poachers and trespasser who mask under a hunting coat and a red cap as "sportsmen" when they do not know the meaning of the word.

For eighteen years, and since our retirement to this beautiful vacation land, we have lived in constant fear of morons who steal our fish, kill game from a public road with high powered guns, then flee before anyone can do anything about it. All this is done within a few yards of our home.

About 11 o'clock Nov. 7, eight days before deer season opens, a deer was killed under an apple tree within 200 yards of the Dr. and Mrs. Harold E. Kohn residence, our closest neighbor, and such poaching happens every year in this area. These incidents are reported to authorities, but this well organized gang with walkie talkies continues to shoot the game; then one man gets out to find it and drag it to the road in the dark while the car speeds away leaving no evidence of a violation. Then at a safe time, invited by walkie talkie, the car returns, and within minutes is loaded with the deer and disappears agin.

Deer shining on the Quarter Line-rd. (also known as "Camp Charlevoix-rd.") is done at all hours of the night in and out of season. The doe law is such a sacred thing with sportsmen, yet these gangsters kill fawns and does alike.

We came to this secluded wooded area to find peace and tranquility but now its been anything but that. Could you blame us if we joined Sen. Hart and other legislators who are pressing for anti-gun legislation?

Could you blame us if we warn other prospective buyers of farm land, or resort property, who hope to discover peace of mind here in the North, that they cannot expect to find it in our area?

Regretfully,
Oscar J. Grossmann

Oilmen Battle Cold On Alaska's N. Slope

It takes determination to drill for black gold on alaska's vast North Slope.

When working outdoors, oilmen frequently check each other for signs of frostbite. They sometimes fight 60-mile-an-hour winds that combine with -28 degrees F. cold to create a chill value of -101 degrees. In such conditions, exposed flesh freezes in less than 30 seconds, and deep breathing can painfully frost the lungs.

The rewards seem worth the risks. Proven reserves underlying the permafrost of Alaska's north equal about a third of the combined reserves of all other oil-producing states.

BILLIONS OF BARRELS

Guesses as to the extent of the mineral wealth, which spreads between the Brooks Range and the Arctic Ocean, have ranged as high as 100 billion barrels, but 10 billion may come closer to the mark.

"Either way, this distant and deceptive land has emerged as the brightest jewel in the Arctic crown that rims the top of the world," wrote William S. Ellis in the October National Geographic.

Most of the oil activity centers around Prudhoe Bay, on the Beaufort Sea. This area, about 200 miles southeast of Barrow, where the crude lies at depths of nearly 10,000 feet, represents only a small patch on the North Slope expanse of 76,000 square miles.

AWESOME WILDERNESS

Over this immensity of tundra, the silence is sometimes broken by nothing louder than the fragile squeaks of lemmings. Even at Prudhoe Bay, amid the industrial bustle, the awesome presence of the wilderness is felt.

The Brooks Range alone, with its splendor and its wildlife, is possibly the last part of the United States still truly virgin wilderness. Vast herds of caribou migrate from there onto the North slope. Foxes, wolves, grizzlies, moose, and Dall sheep make their home in the range.

FEELINGS RUN HIGH

"Because of widespread sentiment to protect the Brooke Range and the North Slope against man-inflicted damage, sides have been drawn for a highly charged confrontation over an environmental issue," Mr. Ellis reports. "Prospectors find they are striking oil and ecologists in almost equal concentrations."

The controversy centers on a proposed pipeline to move the oil from Prudhoe Bay to the ice-free port of Valdez, on Prince William Sound on the south side of Alaska.

ACTIVITY SLOWS

Some segments of the 800-mile line would be buried, others elevated. It would cross 350 streams and rivers and require tremendous quantities of materials. For example, gravel for the pipeline bed and a nearby road would total perhaps as much as 80 million cubic yards, enough to bury a football field to a depth of seven miles.

Because of uncertainty about the pipeline, activity on the slope has tapered off. The total work force there now numbers fewer than 300, compared to about 5,000 a couple of years ago.

But what hasn't changed are the ways of working--wrestling the whirling, driving, clanking, muddy, steam-belching tools of the oilmen in weather cold enough to freeze antifreeze.

C of C Ball Nets $115

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce realized a profit of $115 on the Autumn Ball Nov. 6 at the Belvedere Casino, Manager Tom Merta told the Board of Directors at its monthly meeting Nov. 9.

It was decided to hold the next Autumn Ball the second week of October, before chilly weather sets in.

In other business the Chamber:

–Changed Merta's title from secretary-manager to executive director.

–Learned that membership has reached 70 percent.

–Adopted a recommendation by Ralph Hess that the board of directors each contact five non-investors for participation in the chamber.

–Learned that a duplicating machine has been ordered, which will make possible a quarterly newsletter to members.

CHARLEVOIX Community Chest coffers are $1,300 richer, thanks to the generosity of Medusa Portland Cement Co. Tom LaBlance, left, drive chairman, looks on as Medusa office manager Clem Wagner presents check to John Lachman, chest president. Employe donations bring the total Medusa gift to about $2,300.

Chest Chiefs Renew Appeal for Funds

With Charlevoix's Community Chest drive at $17,219 in cash and pledges received, John C. Lachman, chest president, is appealing to those who may have been missed in the residential drive.

"Our house-to-house canvassers, directed by Virginia Hoffmann and Sally Lignell, have done a fine job this fall. Many people were missed, however, despite repeated call-backs by the workers. We need every gift we can get to meet our rock-bottom goal of $22,028 for the 1972 programs of our member agencies."

Lachman urges those who have not been contacted to leave their contributions with Charles Themm, at the First State Bank, or Gordon Wellman, at the Charlevoix County State Bank, or Tom LaBlance, at the LaBlance Agency. Donors will be given receipts for their tax-deductible contributions.

"If it's inconvenient to bring your donation in, you can just phone Tom LaBlance at 547-2954 and he will arrange to have it picked up," Lachman said.

The Professional and Summer Business solicitations have been completed but Lachman and campaign chairman LaBlance are following up contacts in the Industrial, Commercial and Outlying Areas divisions of the drive.

"It's going to be a cliff-hanger this year, but if those who haven't been called on - and those who feel they'd like to give a bit more - will just come forward we'll either make our goal or come mighty close to it," Lachman concluded.

School Bands Plan Concert Next Tuesday

The music department of Charlevoix Public Schools will present its annual fall concert Tuesday, Nov. 23, at 8 p.m. in the High School gymnasium.

Taking part will be the Eighth Grade band, the newly formed stage band, directed by Gary Stutzman, and the concert and symphony bands, directed by C. A. Odmark.

The 90-minute program will mark the first concert appearance of the High School bands the premiere performance of the stage band.

Tickets may be purchased from any band member.

Mrs. Fosmore died unexpectedly at her home in Charlevoix, Nov. 10.

The former Mamie Sorenson was born in Racine, Wisc., May 5, 1900, and was married to Klaus S. Anderson in 1927. He was with the U.S. Coast Guard and they lived in several Great Lakes ports before settling in Charlevoix in 1941.

Mr. Anderson died in 1954. In 1961 Mrs. Anderson was married to Dewey Fosmore. He died in 1970.

Mrs. Fosmore was a member of the United Methodist Church and was an accomplished musician.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Donald (Lo Anne) Brown and Mrs. James (Viola) Pettis of Charlevoix; six grandchildren; and two brothers, Andrew D. Sorenson of Quincey, Ill., and John P. Sorenson of Jacksonville, Ill.

Krulik

Services for James F. Krulik, 79, who died unexpectedly Friday at his home at 412 Prospect-ave., were held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Monday. The Rev. Gordon Mitchinson officiated. Burial was in the Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix Feb. 8, 1892, Mr. Krulik attended Charlevoix schools and, during World War 1, served with the U.S. Army. A meat cutter by trade, he had been employed at Neff's Grocery until his retirement and since then had worked part-time. Prior to that he had been with the A & P Company for many years.

On Oct. 2, 1928, he was married to the former Betty Grey at Petoskey. He was a member of the First Congregational Church and the Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Janet L. Krulik of East Lansing and two sisters, Mrs. Hilda Hines of Detroit and Mrs. Lillian Evans of Milltown, N.J.

More Than 200 Jam City Hall To Hear Hanna Answer Mayor

More than 200 Charlevoix residents jammed the city hall Monday night to hear City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna answer 13 charges leveled by Mayor Andrew Essenburg two weeks ago relative to the way Hanna is handling his job.

The overflow crowd was too large for the council chamber on the second floor, so the session was moved to the community room on the ground floor, which was scarcely large enough to accommodate the standing-room-only audience---the largest in the history of the Charlevoix City Council.

When Hanna ended his presentation, the audience broke into a sustained round of applause.

In ensuing action:

--City Attorney Robert Hoffman read a legal opinion by Ann Arbor Attorney Louis C. Andrews jr. to the effect that "it is not possible to operate a true city manager form of government within the limitations and restrictions imposed by the Fourth Class City Act."

--Mayor Essenburg expressed regret that his rupture with Hanna had to be made public and endorsed a recommendation by Alderman Roger Westenbroek, that steps be taken immediately to establish a charter commission to update Charlevoix's city government, and:

–Tabled for further consideration an ordinance proposed by Alderman Robert Gill which would set up machinery which would enable the council to oust the mayor and other elected city officials.

Following is a summary of Hanna's answers to the mayor's charges:

1. No appointment was ever made of Mr. Hanna for City Administrator by Mayor Essenburg.

Hanna said the mayor recommended his appointment as city administrator, city assessor and city engineer at the May 17 meeting, but that action was postponed by the council until a job description could be drawn-up.

2. After one-and-one-half years, Mr. Hanna is not aware

Administrator Wins Vote of Confidence of his duties as city administrator:

Hanna says that the fact that requested a job description does not mean that he was unaware of what the duties entailed. He said such a job description had been discussed many times by the council "to insure the continuity in good government that Charlevoix has enjoyed in the past."

3. Mr. Hanna opens mail addressed to Mayor Essenburg without permission:

Hanna said for expedience, all mail is opened for him and placed on his desk in order of importance, except letters marked "personal" or "confidential." "There has never been any attempt to open and or withhold mail from the mayor or any other city official." He added that one letter to Essenburg from the Health Department relative to licensing of the ambulance was opened by mistake. He said it was strange that he was not sent a copy of the letter, when a copy was sent to radio station WJML. He also said action on the license might have been delayed for as long as two weeks if the letter had not been opened by mistake.

4. Mr. Hanna refused to have city records available for Mayor Essenburg's perusual.

Hanna said the mayor asked for copies of the "delinquent account list" which is prepared weekly. He said he told the mayor that in the past three years, the city had written off a total of only $472 in bad accounts and the mayor agreed this was an impressive record. Hanna said he believes delinquent accounts are confidential and "that no elected official should be in appraisal of the status of individual accounts." I further contend that, in the best interest of the city, the mayor and council should be concerned only with the total dollar amount of bad accounts and then only if this amount exceeds normal percentages.

5. Upon Mayor Essenburg's request to have a stop sign removed, seven months time elapse before removal was accomplished.

Hanna said the mayor asked to have the stop sign removed at the corner of Elm and Central and asked Hanna to give him the sign so he could wrap it up and mail it to Joyce Hosmer. Since the corner did not have a high-accident record, Hanna said he allowed Police Chief Jack Mol time to get acquainted with his new duties before referring the matter to him. After a study, the stop sign was removed and other changes made at the corner.

6. Mr. Hanna refuses to keep Mayor Essenburg informed of City operations although expressly requested to do so:

Hanna said the mayor told him after his election that he preferred the role of good-will ambassador for the city and said operation of the city would be up to the city administrator and the city attorney. Later, he said he was told by a councilman that he should try to communicate more with the mayor, since the mayor was unhappy with the flow of information. Hanna said the mayor "has undergone a change in his preferred role" and he has

MORE THAN 200 persons turned out Monday night at the City Hall to hear City Administrator Thomas G. Hanna answer charges leveled two weeks ago by Mayor Andrew Essenburg.

Boal Asks Examination On Embezzlement Charge

Forty pounds thinner and sporting a full, bushy moustache, Bill Boal, 43, former bookkeeper at the Weathervane Inn, demanded examination on a charge of embezzlement when he appeared before District Judge W. Richard Smith Monday.

Boal was returned to Charlevoix over the weekend from Las Vegas, Nev. by Police Chief Jack Mol and Sheriff Philo Sumner on a writ of extradition. He had been arrested in Las Vegas on a misdemeanor.

He is accused of taking "funds in excess of $100" from the Weathervane 16 months ago. Boal reportedly left to make a bank deposit following the big Venetian Festival weekend and never returned. His car was found later at the Traverse City airport.

Prosecutor Harvey Varnum said the total loss to the Weathervane came to about $9,000.

At his arraignment, Boal asked to have a court-appointed attorney represent him.

Judge Smith set the preliminary examination for Monday, Nov. 29, at 1:30 p.m., however he said Boal and his attorney could have more time if they need it. The alternate date is Thursday, Dec. 2.

Boal told the judge that he has no money, but that he is expecting some in about 30 days.

Judge Smith set cash bond at $10,000, which was not posted.

Computer Necessitates Changes in Report Cards

Changes in the report card system for grades 9 through 12 have been announced by Vane Smith, Charlevoix High School principal.

"Because the school is using a computer to record grades, the length of the marking period has been extended to nine weeks and teacher comments have been eliminated, Smith said.

The following grading scale also has been adopted:

A - excellent; B - above average; C - average; D - below average; E - failure; I - incomplete; S - satisfactory; and U-unsatisfactory.

"Generally speaking, 'S' and 'U' will indicate to the parent courses where we feel students should not be included in the normal grading scale (A-E)," Smith said.

He said such grades normally would be assigned students so new to the district that teachers have not had sufficient time to evaluate their work properly or low-achieving students and special education students whom the school feels should be removed from the normal grading scale.

Citizenship will be graded by numbers: 1-superior; 2-above average; 3-average; 4-below average and 5-poor.

Smith said parents should feel free to contact the respective teachers, of the building principal, if additional information is needed.

Report cards for the first marking period will be sent home Wednesday, Nov. 24.

Lignell Clan To Congregate

Dr. and Mrs. John Lignell will host a family dinner for 30 members of the Lignell family at the Weathervane Inn on Thanksgiving Day.

Attending the family reunion will be Dr. and Mrs. Rudolph Lignell of Southfield, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lignell of Ann Arbor, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lignell of St. Clair Shores, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stromberg of Livonia, Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Stromberg of Northville, Judge and Mrs. Steg Lignell of Dowagiac, Ken Lignell of Chicago, Rev. and Mrs. Robert Lignell of Grand Rapids, Mrs. John Lignell of Grand Rapids, and members of their families.

Women Hurt in Accident

Mrs. Gary (Rose Marie) Adams, 20, of R-3, Charlevoix, remains in critical condition at Munson Hospital in Traverse City of head injuries suffered Saturday afternoon in a head-on collision at the corner of Pincherry-rd. and Stolt-rd.

Also injured in the accident was Mrs. Gary (Patricia) Reedy, 29, a passenger in a car driven by her husband. Mrs. Reedy was admitted to Charlevoix Hospital suffering from a head laceration, possible concussion, lacerations and bruises.

Her husband complained of chest pains and sought his own medical attention.

Mrs. Adams, was taken to Lockwood - MacDonald Hospital and later was transferred to Munson. She was alone in her car, traveling south on Pincherry-rd.

Gals' Sports Will Continue

The exercise and sports program for Charlevoix women has been extended through Dec. 8, according to coordinator Mrs. Ted Lass.

Christian Scientists Plan Rites Nov. 25

Thanksgiving Day services will be attended by Christian Scientists throughout the area.

The service at the Christian Science Society, Charlevoix, which is open to the public, is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 25, at 11 a.m.

A distinctive aspect of the annual Christian Science Thanksgiving service is the individual expression of gratitude by members of the congregation. No collection is taken.

"To those leaning on the sustaining infinite, today is big with blessings," one of the citations to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states.

The service, which will be conducted by Mrs. Ida Welsheimer, the First Reader, and Norman Brumm, the Second Reader, also includes this passage from the Bible: "All things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God."

Local members are inviting friends and neighbors to attend.

Lutheran Thanksgiving

Bethany Evangelical Lutheran Church, 1407 S. Bridge-st., will conduct a special Thanksgiving service Wednesday, Nov. 25, at 8 p.m., the Rev. Duane E. Imig officiating.

Rev. Imig will draw his message from Deuteronomy 8 which deals with God's warning to his people to "gratefully remember the Lord" after their arrival in the promised land.

"Sing to the Lord of Harvest" by J.S.B. Monsell will be sung by the Sunday School Choir, directed by Mrs. J. Bell and Mrs. C. Imig. The choir will be accompanied by Mrs. R. Elzinga on the organ.

All members of the community are invited to attend.

Meet Cancelled

The Charlevoix Band Boosters' scheduled meeting for Wednesday, Nov. 24, has been cancelled because of the Thanksgiving holiday. No new date has been set.

THE 30-FOOT totem pole which once stood near the entrance to Camp Charlevoix has been moved to the Greensky Hill Indian Church. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Smith are in the process of selling the Lake Charlevoix camp, which they have operated for more than 30 years. The buyer has not been disclosed.

THE SKYLINE is changing south of Charlevoix. Builder Steve LaBlance has two commercial buildings and a four-unit office structure under construction on U.S. 31. The buildings will be under cover this week and ready for occupancy in the spring.

Monroe Creek Petitions Need More Signatures

Petitions are circulating in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City in an effort to block approval of the Monroe Creek Impoundment by the Natural Resources Commission at its meeting in Lansing Dec. 2 and 3.

Developer Frank D. Shelden plans to dam Monroe Creek in South Arm Township, creating a 400-acre artificial lake. The lake is the focal point of a proposed subdivision with from 1,300 to 1,500 homesites.

The project also includes the trade of state-held fishing easements on Monroe Creek for other fishing easements in Wilson Township.

At the November meeting, DNR commissioners tabled action until the December meeting, until several questions were answered.

A petition seeking to halt the project is available for signing at the Courier office. It reads:

"Convinced that Francis D. Shelden's plan for a 1,300-lot subdivision and 440-acre impoundment in the Monroe Creek Valley will (1) Lower the quality of life for a great many more people than it will benefit, (2) Unnecessarily destroy environmental values we all cherish, (3) Ruin the rare and precious ecology of Monroe Creek, (4) Place an additional and non-essential demand on finite natural resources, (5) Conflict with plans being developed by Gov. Milliken's Special Commission on Land Use, and (6) Place additional economic hardships on the majority of local property owners.

We, the undersigned, hereby petition the Natural Resources Commission to veto the Department of Natural Resources' request that the state of Michigan grant Mr. Shelden a dam construction permit and allow him to obtain the two public access easements he is seeking.

Mrs. Ted Browe jr., 7 Kids are Moving To Australian Wilds

Mrs. Ted Browe jr., and her seven children plan to leave Charlevoix sometime after the first of the year for Woomera, Australia, where her husband has been assigned to an Air Force radar site.

Browe already is in Australia and is looking for a house for his family.

Woomera is located in South Australia, west of Lake Torrens, in a desolate region known as the "outback."

Some of the Browe's closest neighbors will be Australian aborigines, who have advanced little beyond the caveman stage of civilization.

Mrs. Browe and the children moved to Charlevoix this fall after spending nine years at Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

Making the trip to Australia with Mrs. Browe will be Debra, 15, and Ronald, 13, students in Charlevoix public schools, and William, 12; Norman, 11; Teresa, 8; Janine, 7; and Mary, 3, all of whom attend St. Mary's School.

They expect to remain in Australia two years.

Co. Zoners Named By Commissioners

The County Board of Commissioners has appointed nine residents to the newly organized County Zoning Commission.

Serving three-year terms will be Steve LaBlance, Charlevoix; Bill Ohle, Boyne City-Horton Bay; and Francis Lilak, East Jordan.

Named to two-year terms were John Kujawski, Boyne City; Tom Wieland, Charlevoix-Norwood; and John Bulck, Walloon Lake.

Wolt Thorsen, East Jordan; Don Berlage, Charlevoix; and Art Steinbrecher, Boyne City, will serve one-year terms.

The Zoning Commission will meet shortly to formulate bylaws, outline meeting procedures, elect officers and initiate a zoning program, according to County Planning Director Bill Mercer.

"As time goes by, these members will be called upon to formulate the major zoning suggestions for Board of Commissioners' consideration," Mercer said.

CITY MINUTES

November 8, 1971
8:00 P.M.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Essenburg presiding. Aldermen present: Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Klooster. Absent: None.

The minutes of the October 25, 1971 meeting were approved as presented to the Council in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes book.

Mayor Essenburg announced that he felt forced into the position of asking for the resignation of City Administrator Hanna and proceeded to read his thirteen complaints.

Mayor Essenburg then asked Mr. Hanna if he wished to answer the charges at this time or to prepare his rebuttle and answer in one week.

Mr. Hanna said he would answer each charge in writing for the record but would like to go over some of them for clarification. A question was raised as to why Mr. Don Meggison was not hired to fill the position of city mechanic. Mr. Hanna stated that he was being considered but because of political pressures exerted by the Mayor he felt it would not be in the best interest of either Mr. Meggison or the other city employees to hire him. When this was completed Mr. Hanna stated that he had served the community to the best of his ability for the past two and one-half years and had done nothing for which he was ashamed; and that the real issue involved the citizens of Charlevoix. "Do you want a government of elected and appointed officials working as a team or one governed by political pressures? If your choice is the latter, you won't have to ask for my resignation."

Mayor Essenburg then suspended Mr. Hanna for a period of one week with pay. A Special Meeting is to be held Monday, November 22, 1971 at 8:00 p.m. for the purpose of hearing Mr. Hanna's rebuttal.

Alderman Westenbroek asked the City Attorney for an opinion on the duties of the City Mayor and the City Administrator namely; Act on page 23 (90) paragraph 87.3 and page 33 (142) paragraph 88.17 found in the Incorporation and General Powers of Cities and Villages, pertaining to removal from office Ordinance and any other pertinent information. He suggested that Mr. Hoftman use the facilities of the Municipal League and the State Attorney.

Attorney Hoftman promised to have something in writing for the Council by November 22, 1971.

The Mayor asked for a five minute recess.

The Mayor and Council returned and continued with the Agenda.

A letter was read from the Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate Board of Education stating they have selected Charlevoix as the site for their administrative facility, as offered by the City of Charlevoix on Mercer Blvd., pending approval of the sale of bonds.

A motion was made by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Sundberg that post approval be given to the City of Charlevoix for the filing of the objection by the City for the U.S. Corp of Engineers permit No. NCECO-O71 41 13, as requested by James S. Scott, on the basis of the proposed bulkhead projecting beyond the existing shoreline. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Klooster. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Correspondence was read from Bill Mercer, Planning Coordinator regarding a meeting to be held December 6, 1971 in the County building.

A letter was read from Steven L. Dykema regarding the Shaw-Henderson litigation.

The question of snowmobiles crossing private property was discussed. Alderman Westenbroek suggested that complaints be passed on to the Police for enforcement of the ordinance.

Mayor Essenburg expressed his desire of Codification of the Ordinances. It is hoped by the Council that it can be included in the 1972 budget.

Several members of the Council expressed their regrets to see City-government deteriorate as it had at this meeting.

Alderman Gill expressed his appreciation for Mr. Hanna's efforts and the tremendous job he has done. He mentioned Mr. Hanna having attained his state license as City Assessor and hoped that people were aware that this is not the way business is generally conducted in Council meetings.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $52,758.95 find them correct and recommend they be allowed. Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Sundberg that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Klooster. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The request of Jerry Drost, for previously platted lots 44 and the south half of 45 of Eatons Addition to be split according to his sketch, was put into committee for further study.

On motion the Council adjourned.

Ida A. Heise, City Clerk

BOARD OF APPEALS
November 8, 1971
10:25 p.m.

The Board of Appeals met on the above date and time with Mayor Essenburg presiding. Present: Aldermen Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, Gill, and Klooster.

The request of Jacob Brock for construction of a garage was put into committee for further study.

The request of Robert Smith for construction of a garage was put into committee for further study.

On motion the Board of Appeals adjourned.
Ida A. Heise, City Clerk

Marsha S. McCall, Donald Exelby Wed

Marsha Sue McColl of Plymouth, Mich., became the bride of Donald C. Exelby of Dearborn in ceremonies Nov. 20 at Littlefield United Presbyterian Church in Dearborn, the Rev. Harry Geissinger and the Rev. Samuel Weir officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. McCall of Plymouth and Charlevoix. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Donold J. Exelby of Dearborn.

The bride's father is golf pro at the Belvedere Golf Course and her mother is the former Phyllis Coatto of Charlevoix.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white wool crepe street-length dress with a matching, long-sleeved, double-breasted jacket. White baby's breath was entwined in the curls of her upswept hair and she carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis, varigated ivy and draceana leaves.

Maid of honor was Mary Jane Exelby, sister of the bridegroom. She wore a street-length dark green dress with long sleeves, a scoop neckline and a gently flowing skirt. Her bouquet was a colonial arrangement of yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Robert McCall jr., brother of the bride, was best man.

A dinner for the immediate family was held at Dearborn Inn following the wedding.

After a wedding trip to the East, the couple will live in Grand Rapids.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority. She has been employed by Newsweek magazine in Detroit.

The bridegroom is a graduate of West Point and the University of Michigan Law School. He presently is an attorney with the Grand Rapids law firm of Cholette, Perkins and Buchanan.

Thanksgiving Service Is Planned

Christ Episcopal Church plans a special Thanksgiving service Thursday, Nov. 25, at 11 a.m., according to the Rev. Hewitt V. Johnston, vicar.

Sorority Initiates Members

Five new members were initiated into the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority at a dinner meeting held at the Weathervane Inn Nov. 22.

Final plans for the event were made at a recent meeting of the group hosted by the president, Mrs. James Bell. Mrs. Vernon Mathews, jr., and Mrs. Tracy Curtis were co-hostesses. Before gathering at the Bell home the group met at the Charlevoix Jewelers to hear Mrs. Walter Rutford speak on the subject of jewelry.

At the business session that followed at the Bell home, plans for the initiation were completed, names for secret pals were drawn and refreshments served.

Sgt. Thompson Is in Vietnam

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Donaldson and Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Puffpaff have returned from a five-day business meeting in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Eleven members attended the bi-monthly meeting of the Rebekah Lodge Tuesday evening, Nov. 9., at the Legion Post Home with Noble Grand Helen Boker in charge of the meeting. Several get-well cards were signed by members. Officers for 1972 were nominated for the election to be held in December. The 'silent auction' held at the meeting proved to be very successful. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Helen Baker and Mrs. Eva Ostrum. At the meeting to be held Nov. 23 the re-organization of the Lodge will be held - and new time and dates for meeting will be set. Hostesses for this meeting will be Mrs. Lola Olney and Mrs. Alma Swanson.

Miss Kathy Egler and her roommate Miss Kathy Pinkowski, students at MSU in East Lansing, spent the weekend at the Robert Egler home. Also visiting was Miss Lynn Charlet of Farmington.

Mrs. Shelby Goss and son David returned recently from a several days visit in Hillsdale with Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor.

Mrs. Lester (Myrtle) Gallagher was honored Monday afternoon, Nov. 9, at a surprise birthday anniversary party given by her daughter, Mrs. Jack Bradley. Guests attending were Mrs. Gerold Left sr., Mrs. James W. Gallagher, Mrs. L.N. Ditlefsen, Mrs. Rachel Law, Mrs. J.C. McDonald and Mrs. Ivan Phillips. 'Over River, Through Woods'

It's 400 Million Miles To Grannie's for Turkey

Must Michigan motorists will be staying close to home—and close to danger—this Thanksgiving holiday as Automobile Club of Michigan studies show that approximately 75 percent of holiday weekend traffic fatalities occur within 25 miles of home.

"Since Thanksgiving traditionally is a family-type holiday, most of the nearly two million cars that will be on state roads will be making short trips to family or friends' houses with maximum opportunity and temptation to overindulge in alcohol," states Auto Club General Manager Fred Rehm.

"Despite the fact that motorists travel 50 percent fewer miles over the Thanksgiving weekend than on the three major summer holidays, traffic deaths normally are as high or even exceed summer holiday totals," Rehm points out.

During the last five Thanksgiving holidays, a total of 185 traffic deaths were recorded. This compares to 184 on Memorial Day, 149 over the Fourth of July and 191 during Labor Day for the same five-year period.

"The majority of these auto deaths happen near home as motorists apparently are lulled into a feeling of false security and become less alert in familiar surroundings," says Rehm.

In all, Michigan motorists are expected to travel about 400 million miles between 6 p.m. Wednesday (Nov. 24) and midnight Sunday (Nov. 28), the official hours for the holiday.

Auto Club advises a round trip of 200 miles as the maximum one-day travel distance for any family. For the motorist who starts at 8 a.m. and expects to arrive home by dark, this will allow four hours to drive 200 miles round trip by freeway plus six hours at destination. On non-freeway roads, the same 200 miles requires between five and six hours.

Motorists planning longer trips should leave Wednesday and return home Thursday, according to Auto Club.

Motorists planning trips through Detroit Thanksgiving Day should avoid two downtown areas due to a parade and a football game.

The J.L. Hudson Parade, which starts at 9 a.m. on Thanksgiving Day and concludes about 11 a.m. should draw more than 300,000 persons to the Woodward-ave. area. The Detroit Lions football game with Kansas City is a sellout, with more than 53,000 persons expected for the noon kickoff.

Heaviest Detroit traffic is expected between 11 a.m. and noon when spectators leaving the parade route and arriving football fans are expected to meet.

Weather permitting, winter sports enthusiasts can choose from 17 ski lodges which may open Thanksgiving. Nine of the facilities are in West Michigan.

Hoosier State

It is not known how the name Hoosier began to be used as a nickname for Indiana. It may have come from the old Saxon word "hoozer," meaning "hill dweller."

Now You Can Buy Car Plates by Mail

Michigan motorists may now purchase 1972 passenger car license plate tabs by mail for the first time, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Prepared applications have been mailed to Michigan's more than five million passenger car and motorcycle owners," states Auto Club Licensing Manager Joseph Ratke. "These forms can be mailed back to the Department of State immediately with orders to be filled after Nov. 15.

"These tabs also will be available at 51 Auto Club offices and Department of State branches starting Monday," Ratke says. "They are being issued in place of new plates. One tab will be issued and it should be fastened to lower right corner of the rear plate."

Deadline for tabs being ordered by mail is Dec. 31. The deadline for having 1972 tabs on passenger cars and motorcycles is March 31.

Between 10 and 20 percent of the tab orders are expected to be filled by mail. However, these sales aren't expected to reduce long lines that occur the final week of sales in March when approximately one in seven vehicle owners buy 1972 tabs.

"The mailing probably will make lines smaller on the first day of sales," Ratke points out.

Ratke reminds passenger car or motorcycle owners to check closely the renewal application mailed to them. Missing information should be completed, wrong information should be lined out with the corrections made and the certification on the reverse side should be completed and signed.

Besides the completed application, licenses to be renewed by mail should include:

-A check or money order payable to State of Michigan for exact amount of license fee.

-Checks or money orders should be signed by vehicle owner.

-If vehicle is not insured, add a separate certified check or money order for $45, which goes to the Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund.

-Applications and remittance are to be mailed to Secretary of State, P.O. Box 1000, Lansing, Michigan, 48904.

To obtain a license tab at Auto Club or Department of State offices, passenger car or motorcycle owners should bring proof of ownership (title or Department of State prepared application), and if insured, bring proof of public liability and property damage insurance.

Department of State offices will accept a check or money order for exact amount of license fee only. Uninsured motorists must have a separate certified check for $45 to cover Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund. No personal checks will be accepted for this fee.

Auto Club offices will accept a personal check made out to Automobile Club of Michigan for entire amount.

The $1 fee formerly paid by insured vehicle owners for the Motor Vehicle Fund isn't in effect this year.

County Buys $1,225 Worth Of Yule Seals

Christmas seal contributions from Charlevoix County residents at the end of the first four weeks of the current drive reached $1,225 – 30.3 percent of the $3,980 contributed last year.

Statewide; contributions have passed the half-million mark, according to John R. Pettibone, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association.

Funds contributed during the annual Christmas seal drive help support numerous programs at the local, state and national levels, Pettibone said.

The programs include research, activities necessary for the continued control of tuberculosis, new approaches to help smokers kick the habit, anti-pollution projects and seminars on respiratory diseases for medical personnel.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Picard of Charlevoix and Mrs. Elizabeth Bleasdale of Manchester, England.

Saints Plan Retreat at Gaylord Chalet

The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is sponsoring its annual Young Adult Retreat Dec. 4 and 5 at the Chalet in Gaylord.

Dr. G. M. Bell, president of the Lansing District, will be guests minister.

The program, which includes discussions, lectures and recreation, has been planned by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Olson of East Jordan, district Young Adult leaders.

Toys, Dolls Needed

The Friendship Center in Petoskey is repairing toys and making doll dresses for the Salvation Army's annual Christmas Toy Project.

Old toys and dolls should be dropped off at the Friendship Center, [illegible] East Lake-st. as soon as possible so they can be readied for distribution to needy area youngsters at Christmas.

Freeze Is Still On, Local Office Reports

Joanne Carpenter from the Charlevoix County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office reports that the Cost-of-Living Council announced on Oct. 28 that the wage-price-rent freeze regulations which made the 90-day program a freeze will be modified to make the system more effective.

Donald Rumsfeld, director of the council, stated that there will be no automatic ending of the present freeze rules on wages, prices and rents. They will be changed only by the introduction of new regulations, thus preventing a gap that would occur if present rules were allowed to end before new ones had been instituted.

Rumsfeld noted that, as stated in the Presidents Executive Order of Oct. 15, the provisions of the economic stabilization program which have been in force since Aug. 15 will continue until they are specifically modified by the Pay Board, Price Commission, or the Cost-of-Living Council.

However, changes will occur only through explicit action taken by competent authority. It is anticipated that initial modifications to the freeze rules will be announced prior to or soon after Nov. 13.

The Oct. 15 Executive Order states, in part:

"Pending action under this Order, and except as otherwise provided in section 202 of the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970, as amended, prices, rents, wages, and salaries are stabilized effective as of Aug. 16, 1971, at levels not greater than the highest of those pertaining to a substantial volume of actual transactions by each individual, business, firm or other entity of any kind during the 30-day period ending Aug. 14, 1971, for like and similar services or commodities.

"If no transactions occurred during that period the ceiling will be the highest price, rent, salary, or wage in the nearest preceeding 30-day period in which transactions did occur.

"No person shall charge, assess, or receive, directly or indirectly, pay or agree to pay, in any transaction, wages or salaries in any form, or to use any means to obtain payment of wages and salaries in any form, higher than those permitted hereunder, whether by retroactive increase or otherwise."

"As further information is received we will know what changes have occurred, if any, and will be glad to help with what information we have," Mrs. Carpenter said. "we also, will be glad to help any person or firm to report any violations of the Executive Order or to have any part not understood explained to them."

Philip Myner is deer hunting in the Upper Peninsula and Mrs. Myner is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Myner at the Soo.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Peterson were honored at an open house this past weekend at their home in East Jordan, hosted by their children for their parents' 50th wedding anniversary. Several local friends and old classmates from our community attended, as Mrs. Peterson will be remembered as Eva Brown who spent her childhood here and attended our local school. The Petersons have the congratulations and best wishes of all their local friends.

Mrs. Mark Cross has returned home after spending three weeks with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Selissen in Two Harbors, Minn.

Several members of the Weekly Club met Friday afternoon the Mrs. Pauline Canfield and her sister, Mrs. Ada Alderson.

William Cooper, Ron Anderson, Howard Woodbury, Tom Harrison jr. and Ralph Brock have all filled their deer hunting licenses the first week of the hunting season.

No more dirty work with a self-cleaning Gas range.

Just think of it. You'll never have to get down on your hands and knees to scrape and scrub the dirty, greasy insides of your oven again.
Because today's modern Gas ranges have self-cleaning ovens.
Forget about baked-on splatters. And rock-like spills.
With a self-cleaning oven all you have to do is turn a knob and the messiest job in your home (oven cleaning) takes care of itself. Giving you time to take care of the more pleasant things in your life.
But a self-cleaning oven is just one good feature in today's modern Gas range.
With Gas you have the advantage of smokeless closed door broiling. Infinite heat control. And best of all, total economy. Because a modern Gas range uses less Gas to do the same job. And a Gas range costs about one-fourth as much to operate as an electric one.
So before the holidays, stop by your dealer or any Michigan Consolidated Gas Company showroom, and buy a new Gas range with a full range of features.
A new Gas range will save you Gas and money too. And remember—oven cleaning is no job for a lady.

6 Jobs Unfilled

Six jobs created by the Emergency Employment Act remain to be filled in Charlevoix County, according to Planning Director Bill Mercer.

The Charlevoix School District still needs a custodian and a secretary, the City of East Jordan is looking for a patrolman trainee and a secretary; the Twin Valley School District needs a custodian-bus driver, and the Village of Boyne Falls is looking for a maintenance man.

Mercer says 21 of the 27 jobs created by the funds were filled by Nov. 15.

"This represents an input of approximately $9,000 into the county's economy every month," Mercer reports. "The long-range repercussions of this 'new money' will be felt for a long while."

Thanksgiving

... a time to reaffirm our faith in freedom and our determination to preserve and cherish it. A Holiday to enjoy the warm traditions of our Heritage... a day to count the blessings of abundance and opportunity that our great land holds for us. Also to express Our Thanks for the loyalty and confidence you have placed in us as a friend and patron. Truly... we have much to be thankful for, mostly the chance to serve you. May your Thanksgiving be joyful and festive.

THE NEWEST building on Bridge-st. is this attractice Alpine-styled structure located on the site of the former Erber Used Car lot. The owner is Clare Staley, proprietor of Staley Hardware Co., located several doors south.

CHARLEVOIX Township's boat launching ramp on Lakeshore-dr. took a severe beating from wind-whipped waves over the weekend. Rip-rap has been piled on either side of the ramp in an attempt to stabilize the bank.

CHEVROLET Division is adding a four-door sedan to its Caprice series, Robert D. Lund, general sales manager, has announced. The new model offers added luxury to the buyer who prefers the rigid construction and lower price of a pillar body sedan. Brocade and vinyl seat trim, a special grille and distinctive wheel covers distinguish the Caprice, which is selling 64 percent ahead of last year's pace.

Fort Wayne a Museum

— Area Men Know It Well —

Detroit's historic Fort Wayne, where hundreds of Charlevoix area men have been inducted into the armed forces, has been conveyed by the General Services Administration to the City of Detroit for historical purposes, according to John W. Chapman jr., regional administrator.

The Ft. Wayne Military Reservation is also where GI's-to-be underwent their pre-induction physical examinations – whether or not they were actually inducted.

The transfer includes almost 31 acres of land and 40 buildings, which will be used in conjunction with the operation of the original existing fort and the Fort Wayne Military Museum.

The property was declared excess to the needs of the Department of Defense and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the Department of the Interior approved the use of the property for historical purposes.

Located on the banks of the Detroit River, the weathered fort was constructed in the 1840's. The stone walls still have gun slits facing the Canadian shore, although relations with Canada have been amicable since long before the fort was built.

Mrs. Otis Hosts Legion Auxiliary

By Beth Geneit

Eleven members of American Legion Auxiliary Post No. 226 held their monthly meeting at the Post Home Thursday evening Nov. 11. Hostess for the evening was Mrs. Howard Otis. The meeting was called to order by President Mrs. Josephine Bindi.

Committee reports were given on a number of projects. Community Service reported $5 sent to the Memorial Fund of the local Methodist Church in memory of the late Charles Greeley. Americanism Committee reported $5 sent to the annual Teachers Seminar to be held at Valley Forge, Pa. in the summer of 1972. Rehabilitation Committee reported on the list of gifts purchased and sent to Battle Creek Workshop being held this month in Battle Creek. The cost of the gifts totaled $60.

A letter was received requesting money, assistance and ideas for local Community Christmas Project. Twenty dollars was voted to be sent. Thanksgiving fruit baskets for all patients at Grandvue Medical Center were planned. All volunteer help will be appreciated in filling the baskets on Monday afternoon Nov. 22. A discussion was held regarding the two banquets to be served by the local unit to the Boat Regetta members to be held in July 1972. Members were requested to save Betty Crocker coupons for a new project.

The membership committee reported that the local unit lacks seventeen members to fill their National quota. All wives, mothers, sisters, daughters and granddaughters of veterans are urged to join the local Unit No. 226.

All members are reminded of the District meeting to be held at 1 p.m. in Alpena on Dec. 12. A Christmas potluck dessert lunch is to be held the evening of Dec. 9 at the Post Home. An exchange of gifts will be made.

Due to the Masonic - Odd Fellow cribbage contest to be held during January, February and March the Auxiliary will meet at private homes. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Plum on Eaton-ave..

Hot Lunch

Following is the hot lunch menu for the Elementary School for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. There will be no school this Thursday and Friday because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Monday, Nov. 29: Spaghetti with hamburg and tomatoes, green beans, applesauce and rolls.

Tuesday, Nov. 30: Meat loaf, scalloped potatoes, tossed salad and peaches.

Wednesday, Dec. 1: Pizza, vegetable and pears.

Bread, butter and milk are served with all meals.

Judy Potter Is Hostess At Davenport

Judy Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Potter, R-1, Charlevoix, has been appointed as an Official Davenport College Hostess for the 1971-72 year.

The hostesses are on call to conduct tours of the campus to groups of guests coming in, including parents, counselors, high school students and others, showing them classrooms, dormitories, and even serving lunch if the occasion calls for it.

The hostesses can be seen almost anywhere during open house. They are easily recognized as they show guests around campus by their white gloves, name tags and bright smiles.

Miss Potter is a first term student in the Data Processing program at Davenport College.

Sunday guests with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Boss were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schrier and Patty of Pellston. On Nov. 16, guests there were Mrs. Gary Boss and family and Mrs. Brian Webber and family of Howell.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Swanson are in Foster City in the Upper Peninsula where they are doing some deer hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Britton and family spent the past weekend in Detroit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Boss visited relatives in Grand Rapids and Lansing Nov. 15 and 16.

Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Mrs. Hiram Potter has moved to her new mobile home on Marion Center-rd.

Her son, Junior Potter of Marlette, visited her the past weekend and did some deer hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Warner of Muskegon were Friday night guests with his cousins the Larry Warners. The other Warners in this area also enjoyed the evening visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bottema left last week for their winter home in Arizona.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Howe of St. Clair Shores are visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Wieland.

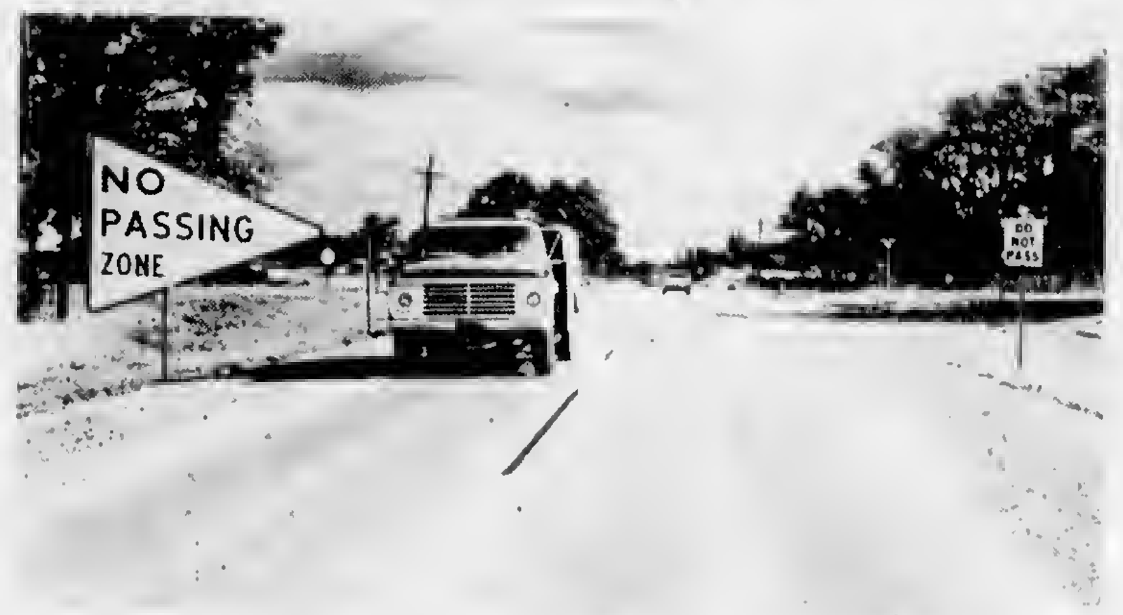
THERE AREN'T 76 trombones in the Seventh Grade Band, but what the band lacks in numbers it makes up for in exuberance.



THE MICHIGAN Department of State Highways has started erecting new banner-shaped "No Passing Zone" signs (above left) along all such areas on state highways. The unusual feature is the location of the signs on the left side of the highway, opposite the traditional rectangular signs (above left) which warn: "Do Not Pass." The banner signs, which were tried out on M-66 several years ago. The one above has been enlarged out of proportion for emphasis. (Department of State Highways photo)

New 'No Passing' Signs Going Up Across State

Pennant-shaped "No Passing Zone" signs are now being erected in no-passing zones on all state highways except freeways, the State Highway Commission reports.

Unlike standard highway signs, they will be erected on the left, instead of the right, side of highways.

Approximately three feet high and four feet wide, the yellow signs with black letters will stand five feet above road level. They will provide motorists with additional warning of no-passing zones and supplement present warning signs on the right side of highways at the beginning of all such zones. Zones also are marked with yellow center lines.

More than 8,000 of the pennant-shaped signs are scheduled to be erected by next summer. Placement of the signs already is underway in the Upper Peninsula and will continue into lower Michigan during the winter and spring.

County road commissions in Michigan's 83 counties also are required to erect the same type of sign in no-passing zones on county roads.

Librarians, Aides Meet At Boyne High

Three students librarians and their advisors attended a joint meeting of the Michigan Association of School Librarians and the Student Library Assistants organization in Boyne City recently.

Attending from Charlevoix were librarians Mrs. Joy Mudge and Mrs. Maxine Bergmann and students Margaret Borths, Shannon Ratigan and Kundra Long.

Attending from East Jordan were librarian Mrs. Martha Annear and students Joyce Coblentz, Sandy Chew, Kathy Daugherty, Carole Cummens, Vicki Sweet, Joeda Cherry, Chris Swoboda, Barb Nemeces and Char Tisron.

Don Hicks, Boyne City librarian and his students and Student Librarian President Merlin Snyder of Northport led the participants in a get-acquainted mixer, followed by dinner and a film program.

Both librarians and students held short business meetings before adjournment.

Library Notes

This is the season when everyone starts taking a closer look at the way things look indoors rather than outdoors. It's approaching holiday time, and holiday time means decorating and entertaining.

"A Handbook of Dried Arrangements & Decorations" is a simplified introduction to drying plants and flowers. This illustrated book is for beginners on dried arrangements–a decorative art which has become extremely popular recently. The author, Mabel Squires, explains how to deal with shells, coral, dried gourds, cones and pods, dried plants and flowers combined in original designs. Of particular interest is the author's use of corn husks in making flower arrangements.

"Fun With Naturecraft" is a small volume which tells how to make toys and useful articles, party favors and lasting decorative creations from nuts, pine needles, feathers, seeds and many other things which can be collected near home. Materials for making these attractive and useful craft objects are provided free by Mother Nature! Even small children will be able to make most of these things, and the process of gathering the materials themselves can be the beginning of an awareness of the fascination of nature study.

"The Driftwood Book" will appeal to anyone who is interested in an ingenious modern arranging trend. Driftwood offers one of the most beautiful and challenging of all natural materials. This book is a newly revised and considerably enlarged edition of a standard guide to driftwood design and arrangement.

"The Better Homes & Gardens Flower Arranging Book" is useful for every day and special occasions. There are 115 color illustrations with a step-by-step text on how to make flower arranging easy.

"Fruit and Vegetable Arrangements" is a book devoted exclusively to decorations featuring fruits and vegetables combined with flowers, foliage and driftwood. There is step-by-step advice on selecting materials and combining them to achieve pleasing results, with instructions on how to dry, frost and shellac the fruits and vegetables. The book contains 101 original black and white photographs.

As a final suggestion, the library has a large file of home decorating magazines, particularly Christmas issues filled with decorating ideas, recipes and arts and craft materials.

Co. Bonds Bought By Allstate

Allstate Insurance companies have invested more than $180,000 in bonds in Charlevoix County, according to Regional Manager Donal C. Bolton.

Charlevoix County investments are part of more than $47 million in bonds held by Allstate in 38 counties in Michigan, Bolton pointed out.

Local Allstate investments have involved Charlevoix and Antrim City schools, said Bolton.

Other Allstate investments have helped build university housing, parks, sewer and water systems, municipal parking structures, and airport improvements.

"It is Allstate policy to support the growth and development of areas in which we do business by investing in local communities and industries," said Bolton. "We are a corporate citizen in each of the communities in which our offices are located. Like all citizens, we will share in continued growth and prosperity."

Harvest Sale A Success At Ellsworth

By Anne Osterbaan

The ways and means committee of the Ebenezer Christian School reports that the recent harvest sale was a success.

Donations auctioned included dresses, aprons, nightwear, rugs, mittens, handkerchiefs, canned vegetables and fruit, dolls, pillow cases, electrical appliances, gravel and cement and tickets to the school's annual dinner in January.

Conducting the auction were Paul Doctor, Art DeVries, George Drenth, Roger Rozema, Bill Boss and Bill Wynsma who worked in teams from 8 until 11 p.m. Wayne Daining, Don Heeres, John Elzinga and Melvin Essenburg collected money and made change.

Lunch was served after the sale ended.

Medusa Billings, Profits Zoom as Demand Grows

The Medusa Portland Cement Co. reports sharply increased billings and profits for the third quarter of the year, ending Sept. 30.

Billings to customers, less discounts, came to $34,815,000, compared to $26,307,000 for the same period last year — an increase of 32 percent.

Income before taxes on income was $6,016,000, compared to $2,597,000 last year — an increase of 132 percent.

Net income was $3,696,000, compared to $2,025,000 in 1970 — an increase of 83 percent — and profits per share of common stock came to $1.72, compared to $1 last year, an increase of 72 percent.

Figures for nine months and the year ending Sept. 30 show a similar trend.

"For the nine months, profits per share are 50 percent ahead of the same period last years, and actually exceed profit for the full year 1970," President Robert W. Fort and Chairman Ellery Sedgwick jr. reported to stockholders.

"Outlook for the full year continues good, assuming a normal start of winter weather," they continued.

"President Nixon's program to control inflation has focused attention on the need to prevent the continued erosion of our economic strength and progress, and deserves the support of all Americans. It is too early to assess the full impact of Phase II on our 1972 results. However, if the regulations permit modest price increases commensurate with cost increases, and if volume increases as presently expected, operating results should be favorable," the officers said.

The company presently is installing a dust collector at its Dixon, Ill., plant.

Fred Cohrs, manager of the Charlevoix plant, reports that the construction of a second kiln at Charlevoix is a distinct possibility in the near future, if the demand for cement continues to grow.

He says the plant was designed for two or three kilns, although only one was included in the initial construction.

Computerized Report Cards New at CHS

By Jeanne Wilcox

Nov. 11 marked the end of the first marking period. When the report cards come home this week you may notice a few changes.

This is the first time Charlevoix schools have used a quarter system, which means nine-week rather than six-week periods.

Another change is the computerization of the report cards. This automatically sets the marks down on the card. So if you notice a difference in the report cards, you'll know the kids didn't change them.

This time it was the school!

Girls Study Furnishings On Field Trip

By Denise Wagner

Charlevoix's Interior Decorating class, along with Mrs. Clarence Odmark, traveled to Petoskey, Nov. 4, to visit Gately's House Furnishings and Homestead Furnishings.

At Gately's, on Bay View-rd., the girls saw a filmstrip on the different types of furniture and were shown the different styles of couches, end tables, bedroom furniture and kitchen tables along with cabinets.

At the Homestead Shop on East Howard-st. the girls sat in chairs, couches, and admired such things as mirrors, end tables and lamps.

Last Game Nostalgic Night for Bandsmen

By MURPHY WALLACE

Friday, Nov. 5, was the last football game of the 1971 season.

It was parent's night and all parents of varsity football players were admitted free to the game and introduced during the pre-game ceremonies.

All Seniors who participated in varsity football this year were introduced.

For the CHS marching band it was a special evening also. It was the last time the Seniors in the band performed before the home crowd on the home field.

It was a time of nostalgia for everyone. There will be no more Wednesday night practices. Bandsmen will no longer hear piercing whistles or execute the wrong commands.

Despite all the complaints about marching practices, few failed to show up for them. There was good participation by everyone, and it brought about a feeling of togetherness among band members.

Posters have been taped to the walls of the band room signifying the spirit and enthusiasm the marching band. Pictures have been drawn depicting members of the band and even the director.

The band received a big ego boost this fall when it was invited to march in the parade and play a pre-game show for Alma College's homecoming. The band did such an outstanding job that it was invited back next Spring to the Alma Highland Fling Festival.

The marching band is directed by Gary Stutzman.

Scouts To Sell Popcorn

Boy Scout Troop 11 will conduct its annual popcorn sale Monday, Nov. 29, between the hours of 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. in Charlevoix.

The troops buys popcorn in 50-lb. bags and Scouts package it in two and five-lb. plastic bags for resale.

Parents of the boys furnish transportation to the different neighbors. Scouts work in pairs making house to house calls.

Proceeds will go toward the purchase of new tents for camping trips.

So far this year, the Scouts have had two overnight camping trips and are looking forward to visiting Beaver Island this winter for their annual "arctic campout."

Clothing Drive Set This Week At St. Marys

The Bishop's Thanksgiving Clothing Drive will be held at St. Mary's Church on Nov. 26 and 27.

Donations of clothing will be accepted at the church both days, for redistribution to needy residents of foreign countries.

In addition to heavy winter clothing, sponsors of the drive are asking for donations of light-weight summer wear for storm victims in Pakistan, India and other countries where it is needed.

Donated clothing should be clean and in good repair.

Art Program Grows

By STEVE KANTOLA

The Art Department at Charlevoix High School has grown considerably over the past two years. This expansion is a result of greater interest shown by students and the community.

William Murray, art director at the high school, hopes to get more community involvement by having student activities brought before the public.

For example, the department's works were displayed this past summer in the Waterfront Fair. The class also held an art exhibit this past spring. Murray hopes to have two exhibits this year and to again participate in the Waterfront Fair.

Murray has his students working in a variety of mediums. Art I students are currently working in repoussage, a technique of tooling metal. Designs are tooled into sheets of copper and then painted to give the desired effect.

The more advanced students are in different phases of art studies. Several students are painting with mediums such as; acrylics, water colors and oriental water colors.

Others are presently working on clay sculptures. Over all the advanced department is exploring a wide variety of mediums, never before available at Charlevoix High School.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS ON TIRES

The Board of County Road Commissioners, Charlevoix County, will receive bids and quotations until 10:00 AM Monday, December 13, 1971 at their offices at 1051 E. Division, Boyne City, Michigan for supplying their requirements of truck and passenger tires and tubes for the calendsr year 1972.

Previous years requirements of the above items may be obtained from the office of the commission.

Tires furnished must be 100 level or better and the manufacturer's name shall be specified in the bid.

The bid shall be in the form of a discount to apply to the prevailing Net State Price at the time of delivery.

Total discount shall be expressed in a single precentage figure.

Net State Price list shall be included.

A New price list shall be furnished by the successful bidder upon any price change.

All bids to be sealed and plainly marked as to contents.

The Board reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids and to waive irregularities in bidding.

DNR Must Turn Down Monroe Creek Project

In a way, it's a shame the state saw fit to change the name of the old Conservation Department to the Department of Natural Resources.

The old name at least gave the populace a feeling probably a mistaken one, that it had an advocate in Lansing ever ready to speak out in defense of wild land and wild creatures.

The new Department of Natural Resources, unfortunately, doesn't appear so interested in the conservation of our natural resources as it does the exploitation of them.

A case in point is the recommendation by Dr. Ralph MacMullan, director of the DNR, that land developer Frank Shelden be allowed to construct a dam across Monroe Creek, creating an artificial 400-acre lake and paving the way for platting of a 1,500-homesite development--the most ambitious subdivision of its kind ever to be proposed in northwestern Michigan.

The DNR Commission reviewed the proposal and Dr. MacMullan's recommendation at its November meeting, but fortunately postponed a decision until the Dec. 2 and 3 session.

There is still time to let the commission know how you feel about the damming of Monroe Creek prior to the meeting.

MacMullan's statement, which appeared in its entirety in the Nov. 10 Courier, does a magnificent job of summing up the advantages and disadvantages of the project. To our way of thinking, the disadvantages so far out-weigh the advantages that there appears to be little question that the dam permit and the exchange of fishing easements should be denied.

However, Dr. MacMullan does an about face in his recommendation and suggests that both the permit and the land exchange be approved on grounds that it is better to control environmental strains, "channel them into less harmful directions," than to block them.

If the commission follows Dr. MacMullan's recommendation another huge and irreplaceable swatch of Charlevoix County's diminishing supply of wild land will be gone forever.

Fortunately, in the case of Monroe Creek, the DNR is in a position to block development before it starts, since it involves considerable alteration of the landscape, along with the exchange of state-held fishing easements on Monroe Creek for others in Wilson Township. Another time, the DNR might not be so fortunate.

All the commissioners have to do is assert their prerogative as keepers of the public trust, turn down the dam permit and refuse to swap Monroe Creek fishing easements with anyone.

What then?

Shelden told the Courier several weeks ago that he would probably fight any negative decision on his Monroe Creek project in the courts. If he loses, he will shelve his grandiose scheme, subdivide the land into 10-acre parcels and sell it off piecemeal.

We believe such a subdivision would be far preferable to the creation of a resort community of 6,000 souls, living cheek-by-jowl with one another on the shores of an artificial lake, the bottom of which would be carpeted with an accumulation of organic matter deposited over thousands of years.

Although we don't pretend to be experts in any of the pertinent sciences, it does not seem possible that the meager flow of water in Monroe Creek will be sufficient to keep the water in the proposed 400-acre lake fresh and moving.

Nor does it seem possible that the depth of the proposed lake (20 to 30 feet over 80 percent of it) will prevent rapid deterioration of the silt bottom during warm weather, resulting in polluted run-off into the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

We are confident that the DNR commissioners will live up to their responsibilities to the people of Michigan--and the year-'round residents of Charlevoix County--by casting a unanimous "no" vote against the Monroe Creek Impoundment.

Dam Recommendation Stuns Summer Resident

Gentlemen:

Thanks for printing Director MacMullan's statement on the proposed Monroe Creek Dam.

Enclosed is a copy of a telegram I sent to the Commission today.

Sincerely,
Erwin E. Schulze

Natural Resources Commission
State of Michigan
Lansing, Michigan

Have just completed reading the text of Director MacMullan's recommendation to you, I am shocked and appalled by his conclusion and strongly urge the Commission to reject it.

I suspect that when all the facts are known, the basis of that conclusion will be even more tenuous than it appears at first reading. From that reading, it is obvious that the entire MacMullan argument rests on the proposition that it might have economic benefit to the area, that the land is going to be developed anyway and that the Commission should control its use.

With respect to economic development, I believe the facts would show that the only economic benefit is that of the developer. Left alone, I doubt that you would have a real estate expert in his wildest dreams suggest that the valley would support a town of 5,000.

And finally, I do not believe the Commission has the legal authority to impose and control use after damming has occurred. In other words, the basis of MacMullan's recommendation is solely in areas in which he is not an expert. He dispenses with all the ecological and environmental points of opposition with what he admits to be unpersuasive arguments.

For example, he argues that some people might prefer artificiality to nature. This is undoubtedly true but to suggest that the Commission on Natural Resources should feel that way is astounding. In the area of his expertise, the Director admits the existence of opposing viewpoints and in each case renders judgment against conservation, against nature, against clean water, and votes in favor of development and the inevitability of growth. I simply can't understand it. At the very least, it is unseemly for one in his position.

Among the points which leap out at you from the pages of the Charlevoix Courier are these:

(1) It will eliminate a natural recreational stream and create a man-made lake.

(2) It will reduce the flow of fresh clear water into Lake Charlevoix and substitute a reduced flow of polluted water. As to this point, he states that the development will have sewage collection and off-site treatment facilities--no septic tanks permitted. Does MacMullan have any idea of the costs of such systems and the ability of the developers to provide same? In fact, the Courier reports that MacMullan's statement is false.

(3) It will eliminate natural existing fishing and hunting areas.

In summary, the developer wants you to permit him to dam Monroe Creek so that he can get an enhancement in the value of his property and a corresponding diminution in the value of all property in surrounding Charlevoix County.

As noted above, I seriously doubt the legal capacity of the Commission to impose and enforce the conditions recommended by the Director. Once Monroe Creek is dammed, the people of Charlevoix County will have to live with that fact forever.

MacMullan's conditions remind me very much of Ex-Governor Romney's assurance that Medusa would be a good neighbor to Charlevoix, an economic blessing and the cleanest plant of its kind in the country without any objectionable characteristics. I trust that the Commission is aware of the farcical nature of Romney's suggestion as compared with the facts as they have developed.

Please don't be precipitous and approve a proposal having such far-reaching implications for Charlevoix and Northern Michigan without better reasons and more careful analysis than that proposed by Director MacMullan.

Q. What is being done, if anything, to assure that some of the registration fee that we pay when we register our snowmobiles will be used to develop much needed trails in northern and upper Michigan? Mr. T. H., Alpena

A. As you are probably aware, the Legislature will act on a new Snowmobile Bill very shortly. The House and Senate have both passed this Bill, but in different versions.

As the original sponsor of the Snowmobile Act of 1968, I had drafted as part of my Bill, language which would have earmarked a portion of the registration fee for snowmobile trail development. This portion was amended out at that time. Last week I added language to the House-passed Snowmobile Bill which appropriated $200,000 to be used for this purpose. The Bill now goes to the House and hopefully they will accept my amendment. I am reasonably certain they will.

Now the question further arises - "How is money being spent?" The money will go the Department of Natural Resources, and I have asked them to develop a comprehensive program, to be approved by the Legislature, on exactly how and where these funds will be spent. $200,000 will build many, many miles of trails. It is my idea that each and every county that has enough snow will be able to participate in these funds. I am also hoping that many local communities will volunteer their services to assist the Department, which would enable the $200,000 to go much further.

I have asked the Department to go lightly on the use of money for equipment, although I am certain that some equipment will need to be purchased, so that more of the funds can be used for perhaps warming shelters and toilet facilities. But, I do want the vast majority of the money spent to develop many miles of trails

We also must realize that once trails are developed, it will take additional funds to keep them maintained over a period of years. Because the legislative process is so slow, there is a possibility that funds may not be able to be spent until after this snowmobiling year. Should you have any suggestions or questions, now is the time to contact my office.

Please address your questions and comments to Sen. Robert Davis, State Capitol, Lansing, MI 48902.

Let Us Pray

By Bob Clock

One of the biggest space gobblers in the nation's daily press is the issue of prayer in the classroom. It occupies the news columns whenever irate mothers picket schools where prayers are offered or schools where prayers are not offered, depending on the piety of the neighborhood.

Then when the issue goes into court, more space is given in the editorial columns, which, inevitably have something to say about the "separation of church and state."

When the court hands down a ruling one way or the other, there is more news coverage and more editorial thunder.

Prayer in the classroom is the one single topic that receives equal time in both the pulpit and pub and I am beginning to wonder if the issue will ever be resolved.

The founding fathers had an idea that politics and religion make poor bedfellows and the laid down the lofty "separation" doctrine, which, in its strictest interpretation, would prohibit children who attend parochial schools from riding on public school buses.

It was the same "separation" doctrine that kept a Catholic out of the White House for the first 185 years of our history, since the Constitution specifically bars from the presidency anyone who owes allegiance to any foreign "power or potentate."

"And who is the Pope if he isn't a foreign potentate?" the separatists declared.

Well, John Kennedy was elected President and he turned out to be one of the strictest "separatists" ever to hold the reins of government. He probably was a lot tougher than he needed to be, since he knew Protestant America was laying for just one slip by its first Catholic President.

But Kennedy never slipped. He even looked unfavorably upon low-interest, government-backed bonds for parochial schools.

Of course, prayer in the classroom ties in with the whole issue of "separation." The school is an agency of the state, and as such has no business dabbling in religious rituals, or so the separatists say.

Yet every school child who is required to recite the Pledge of Allegiance is, in effect, offering a prayer, particularly since the words "under God" were incorporated into the pledge by President Eisenhower: "...one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Anyone want to take on the Pledge of Allegiance and have it booted out, too? I doubt it.

Another problem is the teacher. Many of our older teachers have made prayer a regular part of the school day, a device, if you will, which permits the class to participate in a common, unifying experience in a sober, reflective atmosphere. Whether or not it does the little heathens any good is something else again.

Another problem is the school board. In Charlevoix, each and every school board meeting opens with an invocation by one of the pastors in the school district. If school board members are allowed to pray publicly on school property, should the same privilege be denied to their young charges? Of course it shouldn't.

There was a time when Clockwise might have had some harsh words about prayer in the classroom, since I have always been a firm believer in the "separation" doctrine and still am.

But as a parent with two kids already in school and more on the way, I simply can't follow the hard line on classroom prayers. If my children have teachers who believe in classroom prayers, let 'em pray; next year they will probably be assigned to raging atheists who wouldn't hestitate to take the Lord's name in vain at a Sunday school picnic.

With any luck at all they grow up to be well-rounded young ladies, capable of reaching their own decisions on the propriety of prayer in the classroom. But they won't have to rush to any hasty conclusions. The issue certainly will be alive and well when they are dottering grandmothers.

Lucky Licky

Cats are dumb, useless and aggravating. So my mourning was phony when Licky was killed.

Oh, I felt bad because the kids felt bad. It was sad when my daughter tearfully told how she'd just found Licky dead by the side of the road. I put my arm around her and assured her I shared her sorrow.

"That's alright, Dad," she said, "I know you didn't kill her."

She knew I was innocent because I had been out of town the weekend the dumb cat disappeared. Otherwise, I would have been a prime suspect and she would have called the cops on me. I had threatened to kill Licky dozens of times in the past two years and, just for kicks, I often kicked her.

Licky had been missing two weeks before the corpse was found. During those days of uncertainty I had tried to keep my celebrating to a minimum out of respect for the feelings of my family. They kept assuring each other the cat would return; it always did. They kept wandering around the neighborhood making strange noises: "Here kitty-kitty-Licky-Licky-kitty-kitty-Licky-Licky..."

Just in case the dumb cat was still alive, I wanted to have the house painted to make it harder for her to find. The kids didn't think that was funny. And they were outraged the day they overheard me joyfully singing "One down and one to go." I was referring to Licky's sister, Chubs. We have always been a two cat family but now I was half way to happiness.

Anyway, once my daughter had discovered dead Licky, my son sped to investigate the corpse. I think he tried artificial resuscitation, despite rigor mortis. When he was finally convinced the dumb cat was dead, he didn't bawl like his sister. But he disappeared into his room and didn't come out for a long time.

I am not an insensitive father. Now that I was certain the dumb cat was gone for good, I put on a splendid show. I thought sad thoughts, about how I'd lost $30 shooting pool the day before, to make my eyes teary. I volunteered to arrange a decent burial. I suggested we all wear black armbands and, in memoriam, drink our milk from saucers for two weeks.

So Saturday evening we all returned home from a football game and I was the first to see what was sitting on the porch. "There's a ghost on the porch," I groaned. It was Licky. The dumb cat wasn't dead after all. My wife and kids were uproariously happy. I disappeared into my barroom and didn't come out for a long time.

This resurrection proves my point: If you've seen one cat, you've seen them all. My kids have slept with Licky for two years but they still looked at a strange cat and said yes, boo hoo, that's Licky.

"Don't you feel dumb, mourning for a cat you never knew?" I asked my daughter.

"It was someone's pet, so it didn't hurt to cry for it," she said,

Yeah. But what am I, the world's greatest cat hater, doing arranging the last rites for a cat I never even kicked before?

There was one last hope. "Considering your past mistakes, how can you be certain that his cat is actually Licky?" I asked my daughter.

"I know because, look, she is licking the wax out of my ear," she said.

Just in case you wondered how the dumb cat got its name.

Question: My neighbor insists that in cold weather it's easier driving the colder it gets! J.L.S., Dearborn

ANSWER: Your neighbor must be one of those guys that always remembers to keep a high anti-freeze level in the engine, checks his battery, brakes, lights, tires, and windshield wipers before that first big freeze. He also probably drops a stout rope or tow chain in his trunk, some battery crossover cables, and a small sack of sand – just in case he meets up with some other guys who leave it all to Providence and those better prepared.

The Safe Winter Driving League says driving conditions are better when it is very cold – once you get going.

Near freezing weather makes ice and snow more slick, contributes to skids and loss of control. At 10 degrees and lower, crunchy snow and cold dry ice offer more traction - but don't take chances with either condition. Get your car ready for the cold weather - holiday season now.

Question: I read that the Michigan Legislature passed a law that we can't drink more than 10 percent alcohol. What have we got - "creeping prohibition"? S.D.O., Cadillac

ANSWER: What the Legislature really passed was a more realistic law about drunk driving. It lowered the legal designation of "driving under the influence" to a blood alcohol percentage of one tenth of one percent. Most states have this level now. Canada has .08 percent. This scientifically tested level does not indicate the borders of sobriety. It shows when you have for sure given the keys to Ethyl (alcohol). You can be in trouble on less.

The U.S. Department of Transportation has designated this condition as the most significant basic cause of traffic deaths. For this we can all concede a little something.

Question: Can I arrange ahead of time to get my car inspected by the state police? I don't want to wait and get caught on a check lane. D.P.S., Dowagiac

ANSWER: Yes. Call your nearest State Police Post and they will tell you when and where their team will be in your local area. When you get there, be sure to tell the officer in charge you want to volunteer your vehicle for inspection, otherwise he might wave you on. Don't wait too long. Call now.

Question: I got this letter that says my driver's license is revoked for failure to appear for a re-exam. I didn't get any notice to appear for the re-exam! L.T., Flint.

ANSWER: The Driver and Vehicle Services administration reports that they have your original notice stamped, "Moved, left no address." The boys need to know these little things if they are to keep you up to date.

A new re-exam will be scheduled for you and you will be notified at your present address, but it will take maybe four to six weeks, so stay put.

Death Daisy Hailed As Successor to DDT

Watch out, bugs! There may be a Death Daisy blooming in your future.

That's the hope of ecologists, conservationists, politicians, scientists, and others concerned over manmade insecticides.

They are worried by the way some- such as DDT-enter the food chain and build up dangerous concentrations, seriously threatening fish, birds, animals, and even man. Many think a safe and powerful substitute is found in the Death Daisy, already a renowned killer of insects.

Its real name is pyrethrum, and it is a cousin of the flashy chrysanthemum. One type is the florists' painted lady, (Chrysanthemum cocineum), according to the National Geographic Society.

DAISY LOOK-ALIKE

Pyrethrums strongly resemble daisies--thickly growing flowers about knee high with white petals and yellow centers. Other types may have petals that are lilac, deep rose, or other red shades.

In the fields, they are apparently harmless, some insects feed on them with relish. But the flowers, picked and dried, are lethal.

Their toxic power is tremendous. It appears to knock down and kill insects instantly. However, except possibly in high concentrations found only in laboratories, it is harmless to man and warm blooded animals.

Once it is sprayed, the killing power of pyrethrum lasts only about 24 to 48 hours. Many conservationists hail pyrethrum for this quality, pointing out there is no chance for animals to absorb the poison in increasing quantities until a deadly level is reached.

It loses its toxic wallop too quickly for use in agriculture, though experiments are underway to make longer-lasting pyrethrum. Most household insect sprays in aerosol cans are based on pyrethrum, with the poisonous effect beefed up by synergistic chemicals.

HAND-PICKED POISON

Pyrethrum usually must be hand-picked, and it has been raised with varying success in California, Kenya, South America, and recently New Guinea. But it has gradually surrendered much of its world market to more easily produced man-made insecticides.

No one knows when man discovered pyrethrum's power, though it may be the world's oldest insecticide--after the fly swatter.

Pyrethrum was mentioned 1,900 years ago in "Chou Li," the government record of China's first century dynasty.

Marco Polo may have brought it East with him. About 400 years ago, in what is now Iran, the flowers were being grown, dried, and crushed to produce "Persian powder," a famous and treasured insecticide of the late Middle Ages.

Balkan farmers started to grow it in the early 1800's, and the production of "Dalmatian flowers" accounted for most of the pyrethrum until 60 years ago.

Infrequent but much appreciated supplies made life in the trenches a bit more bearable for World War I doughboys. It packed the main punch in the bug bombs GIs carried with them into the jungles of World War II.

Hanna's Answers

attempted to call him on various occasions. However, he admitted communications have broken down in the past few weeks.

7. Mayor Essenburg requested that the city hire a mechanic; first request have been made five months ago. No action taken.

Hanna said after the resignation of the former city mechanic, the job was posted as required by the union contract, but no one applied. Since there seemed to be little mechanical work required, Hanna decided to analyze the situation to see if the city really needed a mechanic. In the meantime, the job was advertised in the Courier and the Petoskey News-Review and six applicants applied, including Don Meggison. While he (Hanna) was still appraising the need for a mechanic, the mayor called him to his home and demanded that he hire Meggison. "He was not content with this now (the study), having undergone a drastic change in his position—drastic enough for him to inform me that he had four aces that he could play, and that if put in a position to play them, he would play not one but all four, and that should he do this, I would not be strong enough financially, mentally, morally or physically to bear up under the stress applied. He went further to explain that this would bring humiliation to my children in school and that he would take steps to impair my work record in an effort to deny me future employment." On Oct. 25, with the concurrence of Leonard Dubey, Hanna hired Norm Empey as city mechanic.

8. City trucks and equipment are in a state of disrepair, the fire truck having faulty brakes.

Hanna said the fire truck brakes failed once, on June 14. The trouble was reported immediately and steps were taken to correct the problem. There has been no reoccurence. He said a new master cylinder was ordered, by Charlevoix Oil Co. but the wrong one was sent. The new cylinder has arrived and replacement will be made during the annual inspection, due this week.

9. Certain airport light have been out since last winter.

Hanna said some lights were damaged by snow plows, but that they were repaired after parts were received May 17, 1971.

10. Water tower in need of repair:

Hanna said money was budgeted this year and that contracts have been signed so that work can begin.

11. Mr. Hanna has informed department heads not to act on any orders from Mayor Essenburg.

"This item is true . . . . It is a basic criteria that any organization should have a chain of command, and the quickest way to demoralize any working group is to develop an atmosphere in which the employe does not know to whom he is responsible."

12. The city cemetery is in the worst state of upkeep and maintenance at the present time than can be remembered in the last 25 years.

Hanna said the cemetery was in poor condition for the Memorial Day service, because groundskeepers didn't have the grass cut in the area to be used for the program. He said there also was some initial confusion over cemetery upkeep under the new union contract.

13. A & W problem.

Hanna admitted that a building permit was issued by him in violation of the zoning ordinance. He said the building now stands in accordance with that building permit. He further said that the owners started construction 10 feet east of the present location, an error which cost Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Withers $5,000 to correct.

After stressing that he has attempted to cooperate with the mayor, Hanna said: "To seek personal victories at a time such as this can only result in defeat for Charlevoix the Beautiful."

The council gave Hanna a unanimous vote of confidence.

In other business the council:

--Received word from Shirley Morales of Chicago, owner of the Bachelor's Quarters on Norwood-rd., that she has no objection to razing of the building. She expressed concern over where the present inhabitants would go and urged the city to give them time to remove their personal possessions.

Obituaries

Miller

Funeral for Mrs. Marion B. (Charlotte) Miller, 79, will be held Wednesday, Nov. 24, at 3 p.m. at the Winchester Funeral Home, the Rev. Elmer Faust of the United Methodist Church officiating. Cremation will follow.

Mrs. Miller died Nov. 22 at Charlevoix Hospital where she had been a patient one week.

The former Charlotte L. Miller was born June 29, 1892, in Charlevoix County and was graduated from Boyne City High School in 1911. She left the area in 1914.

She was married Dec. 25, 1926, to Marion B. Miller at Houston, Texas. He died in 1968.

Mrs. Miller was an insurance executive most of her life, working as office manager for the Security Insurance Co. at Lansing, Chicago and Detroit. She retired to Charlevoix in 1961.

She was a member of the United Methodist Church.

She is survived by two brothers, William E. Miller of Charlevoix and Leo B. Miller of Farmington; and a sister, Mary M. Bruce of Charlevoix.

Iverson

Funeral for Mrs. Dennis Iverson, 22, who died Saturday from injuries received in a crash of a private plane on Nov. 12 at Norfolk, Va., was held Monday at Norfolk.

The body will be taken to Chippewa Falls, Wisc., for burial.

Mrs. Iverson, the former Mary Zeitler, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Zeitler, former Charlevoix residents, who live at 5231 Lima Place, Orlando, Fla., since his retirement from the U.S. Navy.

Mrs. Iverson was a passenger in a small private plane piloted by her husband who was killed in the crash. He was a native of Chippewa Falls and was stationed at Norfolk with the U.S. Navy at the time of the crash.

Besides her parents, Mrs. Iverson is survived by several brothers and sisters.

Her aunt, Mrs. Vernon (Jean Zeitler) LaFreniere of St. James, Beaver Island, left Saturday for Norfolk to attend the services.

Who says the hunting is no good? Meat cutter John Smith at Neff's Quality Foods and Dick Edwards at Edwards' IGA report that Charlevoix area hunters are having a good year. As of Thursday, each reported five or six whitetails for butchering, keeping the meat departments busy. Because of state and federal regulations on keeping venison separate from other meats, deer season does create something of a storage problem.

Karl Erber likes to think about the "Good Old Days" when his father used to bury four or five bushels of rock-hard russet apples in the potato patch on their farm near Advance every fall. In the spring, when all of the other apples in the cellar were gone, dad would dig up the russets which would be mellow and sweet but still crunchy after a winter in the soil. Karl wonders where all the russets have gone. He hasn't seen any in years.

A footnote from a staff member of Charlevoix Hospital on one of the recent blackouts: Dr. John Lignell had retired for the night when he received an emergency call from the hospital. Dr. John flicked on the light switch only to discover that the power was off. He hastily dressed in the dark and hurried for the stairway. But in the post midnight gloom he missed it, tumbling down to the first floor. Undaunted, the doctor picked himself up, drove to the hospital and tended to two emergency cases before putting his medical know-how to work on his own aching anatomy.

Yule Lights Going Up

Charlevoix's Christmas lights will go up this week, according to the City Superintendent's office.

City crews began stringing the lights Monday, but were called off the job to repair a water main leak near the hospital.

But the job should be completed by the weekend in time to welcome holiday shoppers.

This week's Courier is being delivered to all residents in the Charlevoix-East Jordan-Ellsworth area – a handy Christmas shopping guide for the entire family.

THANKSGIVING had old-world overtones at the Paul Osterberg residence on Dixon-ave. last week, with home-made ravioli sharing the limelight with turkey and cranberries. Above, Mrs. Arthur Frankini of Iron Mountain (left) shows her daughters, Mrs. Marie Osterberg and Mrs. Rita Sica of Cuyhoga Falls, Ohio, how to make the delicious little meat and pasta "pillows", served with tomato sauce.

Welfare Burden In County Second Lowest in State

Only one other county in Michigan—Livingston—has a smaller public assistance burden than Charlevoix County, Social Services Director Richard Tillen revealed this week.

A fiscal report for the year ending June 30, shows Charlevoix County paying only $15.80 per inhabitant to finance public assistance programs, compared to a state average of $46.38.

The figures range from $14.81 in Livingston County to $97.02 in Lake County.

Michigan's most populous county, Wayne, paid $70.36 per inhabitant for public assistance. Emmet paid $29.66 and Antrim $32.69.

Charlevoix County's low position on the public assistance scale is "possibly commendable, possibly not," Tillen said.

He pointed out that his workers go out of their way to help find jobs for welfare recipients, thereby removing them from public assistance rolls.

"However, such figures could indicate that we're punitive, but I don't think we are," Tillen added.

Charlevoix County also ranked second-from-last in the proportion of residents receiving public assistance monies. Only 26 persons per thousand are receiving welfare funds in the county, the same as Macomb County and only one more than Livingston County.

Lake County, on the other hand, has 153 residents per 1,000 on the PA rolls.

Tillen's office administers 10 public assistance programs financed by county and state funds.

As of June 30, 386 persons in the county were receiving assistance of some kind, compared to 332 one year ago.

The programs are: Surplus Commodities, County Hospitalization, Direct Relief, Medical Care Facility, Old Age Assistance, Aid to the Blind, Aid to Disabled, Aid to Dependent Children, Medical Assistance and Child Welfare.

The County Board of Commissioners has earmarked $50,000 for the Social Services Department in 1972, compared to $45,000 this year, $44,000 last year and $74,000 in 1969.

Honors Band to Present Concert Sunday Afternoon

The best high school musicians in northern Michigan will converge on Charlevoix this weekend for two days of rehearsals prior to the Honors Band Concert, scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 5, in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

Band Director Clarence Odmark says the concert promises to be a "fine musical experience" for all music lovers in the Charlevoix area.

The band will be composed of 94 of the top high school musicians in 20 northern Michigan high schools and will be sponsored by District II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association (MSBOA).

The student musicians earned seats with the band through competitive auditions, Odmark said.

Guest conductor will be Gerald Bartlett of East Lansing High School, a former president of the MSBOA and recognized as one of the leading high school band directors in the state, according to Odmark.

He has conducted all-state groups at Interlochen and has served as conductor of the High School Summer Band Program at Central Michigan University.

The young musicians will be housed in Charlevoix homes Saturday night and will attend worship services Sunday morning before the concert.

Odmark says there will be a nominal charge for the concert, which will be open to the public.

Playing with the Honors Band from Charlevoix will be Jeanne Belfy, senior oboist; Lisa Wasoski, senior bass clarinetist; Sara Sweet, senior alto saxophonist; and Ronald Winchester, freshman bassist.

Other students will come from Boyne City, East Jordan, Gaylord, Inland Lakes, Benzie Central, Rogers City, Bellaire, Petoskey, Traverse City, Cheboygan, Crawford-AuSable (Grayling), Kalkaska, Northport, Suttons Bay, Mancelona, Kingsley, Glen Lake, Central Lake and Johannesburg-Lewiston.

Nate Cummings Elected To Mount Sinai Board

Nathan Cummings, businessman, art collector and philanthropist, has been elected to the board of the Mount Sinai Medical Center, it has been announced by Gustave L. Levy, chairman of the board.

A summer resident of Lake Charlevoix, Cummings has also become a trustee of the Mount Sinai School of Medicine of the City University of New York.

NATHAN CUMMINGS

As honorary chairman of Consolidated Foods Corporation and chairman of Associated Products with combined annual sales measured in billions of dollars, Cummings is one of the nation's foremost merchants of goods and services.

A native of St. John, New Brunswick, whose formal education ended when he was 15, Cummings' earliest business experience came from working as a salesman in his father's shoe store on St. Catherine's Street in Montreal: in the evenings, he trimmed the windows.

After some years in sales, including a period "on the road", Cummings first became self-employed in 1934 when he purchased a biscuit and candy business. Some five years later, he acquired the C.D. Kenny Co. of Baltimore, which formed the base for Consolidated Foods.

Recently, Cummings celebrated his 75th birthday by announcing before a large group of guests from the worlds of business and the arts that he was making a gift of $5 million to Mount Sinai. This was the most recent of many such beneficences including the Ruth Cummings Research

FIRE of undetermined origin leveled the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ruhlman Saturday evening. The Ruhlmans and their seven children escaped without injury. The home was located on Bracey-rd. in the Lake Charlevoix peninsula.

Ruhlman Family Escapes As Flames Level Home

Just one year ago on the Saturday after Thanksgiving, the Robert Ruhlman family of East Jordan moved into their new home on Bracey-rd. on the peninsula between Lake Charlevoix and the South Arm.

Last Saturday the Ruhlmans, their six children and Filipino exchange student George Santiago moved out—the victims of a devastating fire which leveled their hillside home.

Although the Ruhlmans lost all of their possessions, they are thankful no one was hurt and they have good friends like the Jim Shepards who gave them lodging after the fire.

Mrs. Ruhlman said the blaze occurred during an REA power blackout about 6:50 p.m. Saturday. She said the lights had been out for about one hour when the family noticed a glimmer of light coming from the attic.

She said her husband, who works at the East Jordan Iron Works, attempted to put out the fire while she notified the East Jordan Fire Department.

"The Fire Department arrived within 15 minutes, but, by that time the entire roof was ablaze," Mrs. Ruhlman said.

At one point she said it appeared as though firemen had the blaze under control, but seconds later the entire building was blazing again.

The Ruhlmans are baffled as to what caused the fire, which apparently started in the unoccupied attic, on the opposite side of the building from the furnace and chimney. Since power was out, she thinks it is unlikely that it was an electrical fire. Furthermore, it started about 10 feet from the closest electrical wiring.

Mrs. Ruhlman said the loss is covered—not completely—by insurance.

"The worst part is to think of all that hard work going up in smoke," she said.

Ruhlman built the house himself, from the ground up.

"I don't know if we could ever do it again," she said.

Sunday, the family moved into a house on 4th-st. in East Jordan, located for them by Lou and Ray Dubas, and they have been offered the use of a much larger house which they will probably move into in about a week.

Mrs. Ruhlman said the response of their friends and neighbors in the East Jordan area has been overwhelming, with gifts of clothing and money.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Ruhlman, the family includes Mike, 17; George Santiago, 16; Jeani, 16; Roberta, 13; Denise, 12; Mary, 9; and Tony, 6.

She said Mary and Tony have been given all the clothing they need to continue school. The other youngsters have received some clothing, but will need more.

The Ruhlmans also will need household goods when they move into their new home, which is unfurnished.

Anyone with clothing, furniture, appliances or housewares to donate should contact the Jim Shepard residence at 536-7679.

Snowmobiles Verboten Till Red Flag Flies

Winter arrived in Charlevoix over the weekend, but there still isn't enough snow on the ground for snowmobiling on the City Golf Course.

The city superintendent's office asks snowmobilers to keep an eye open for the red flag on the caretaker's equipment shed.

When the flag goes up, snowmobiling will be permitted on the fairways.

CC Unit Going in OB Wing

The Charlevoix Hospital Board of Directors agreed at the monthly meeting last week to located the new coronary care unit in rooms presently occupied by the Obstetrical Department just south of the main nurses' station.

The new unit will involve the construction of a small addition on the Lake Michigan side of the OB wing, according to plans drawn up by Graheck, Bell, Kline and Brown, architects and engineers from Traverse City.

With the dropping birth rate, the two OB rooms to be incorporated into the coronary care unit are not needed. Labor and delivery rooms will remain where they are, but the two patient rooms directly across the main hall will be blocked off, with entrance provided via a small corridor south of the isolation doors.

The only other location considered by the directors was the Solarium, which would require no new con-

Brookside Marks 100th Anniversary

Charlevoix's Brookside Cemetery is celebrating its 100th birthday this week, according to city historian-photographer Robert Miles.

Miles says the oldest tombstone in Brookside is that marking the grave of William Laister, who died Dec. 6, 1871.

The sandstone marker, which is still legible, reads:

"Sacred in the memory of William Laister, died Dec. 6, 1871. The trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised. Erected by R.C. Wright, Chicago, Ill. & L.H. Green, Charlevoix, Mich."

The grave is located on the left of the main road, about 200 feet inside the gate.

THE TELEPHONE Pioneers of America, Petoskey chapter, have donated this "talking dog" to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District as an aid in communicating with hard-to-reach youngsters. The stuffed dog contains a walkie-talkie unit operated by remote control by the teacher. The device will be used in working with children who relate more readily to toys and animals than they do adults. From left are Bob Dusek, president of the local Pioneers chapter; Peggy Cuttler, a student at the Ironton School; Ironton teacher Mrs. Pat Taylor; student Bill Buckmaster; and Bob Yaich, community services chairman for Michigan Bell.

Locals

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wood the past weekend were their son-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Jermone Kimble and son of Ferndale, and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Emerson of Sterling Heights. Also here were their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Vance Wood of Long Lake.

Assembly of God To Host Missionary

Pastor Bob Rutledge of the Assembly of God Church announces that the Rev. Kenneth C. McComber, recently returned from the Republic of the Philippines, will give a progress report of the National Workers Training Program of the Assemblies of God in that area at the Assembly Church located at 203 East Upright, on Thursday Dec. 2, at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. McComber and his wife Margaret are veteran missionaries of 22 years experience. For the past 11 years they have actively participated in nearly every phase of missionary work for the Assemblies of God in the Philippines.

In addition to overseeing the area as field chairman and business advisor for several years, Rev. McComber also had a part in the literature program and the radio ministry while on the missionary field.

During the term of missionary service just ended Rev. McComber served as President of Immanuel Bible Institute and Mrs. McComber served as Immanuel's dean of education.

Rev. McComber plans to return to the Philippines to continue his ministry at Immanuel Bible Institute next March. Mrs. McComber and their son, Mark, will follow at the close of the school year in June.

A colored movie of the school filmed on location at Immanuel Institute by Hal Herman, Hollywood Film editor, will be shown as a part of the service. The film tells the story of the students' life at Immanuel Institute.

Miss Belfy Wins NMU Scholarship

Jeanne Belfy, 604 Bridge st., a senior at the Charlevoix High School, has been selected as the recipient of a Northern Michigan University Scholarship in the amount of $1,500 per year for four years at the university, beginning with the Fall semester of 1972.

Announcement of Miss Belfy's award was made by Robert Pecotte, director of NMU's Financial Aids Office.

"Jeanne has been chosen as a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition, which ranks her among the top students in the Lower Peninsula as well as the state of Michigan," Pecotte said.

"Therefore, in recognition of her scholastic achievements, the university is presenting her with this award.

"We feel that Jeanne will prove to be an asset to Northern in its continuing efforts to improve the quality of its student body."

This award could amount to $6,000, with the only stipulation being that she remain in good standing throughout her four years in college.

Alvin John Studies Welding

Alvin John was one of 76 students who graduated from Northern Michigan University's Skill Center last month.

John completed a course in welding.

Formerly known as the Area Training Center, the Skill Center began its new operation in November, 1970. Under its present format, classes are graduated throughout the year on the basis of the student's progress, rather than by calendar dates.

To date 225 students have completed the program.

Charlevoix Getting A Reputation for Fine Food, Parties

If more and more parties around the state are flavored by ideas and recipes originating in Charlevoix, you can thank Edith Gilbert, author of the book "All About Parties."

Mrs. Gilbert returned recently from a visit to Lansing where she promoted her book in an interview on the "Martha Dixon Show" over WJIM-TV as well as in a talk before the Ladies Social Committee of The City Club of Lansing.

Since the book appeared last year, Mrs. Gilbert has promoted "All About Parties" on TV and radio shows and by personal appearances from coast to coast.

The books includes not only Mrs. Gilbert's favorite family recipes, but also those of other Charlevoix chefs and gourmets.

The City Club luncheon was prepared under the direction of Pierre Babush, former chef for Mrs. Rose Kennedy and later White House chef during the administration of John F. Kennedy.

DNR to Weigh Logging, Mining in Porcupines

County Is Not Alone In Bid to Save Wilds

Charlevoix County is not alone in its efforts to preserve wilderness areas.

The Automobile Club of Michigan reports that the Natural Resources Commission may decide at its Dec. 2-3 meeting whether or not to allow timbering and mining in one of the state's last unspoiled wilderness areas in the Upper Peninsula — the 59,000-acre Porcupine Mountains State Park, located on the Lake Superior shore, 20 miles west of Ontonagon.

At the same meeting, the DNR Commission is expected to decide whether to grant a dam construction permit to Frank Shelden, allowing him to create a 400-acre artificial lake in the Monroe Creek Valley in Charlevoix County. The lake will be included in a proposed 1,500-homesite development.

Len Barnes, editor of Motor News magazine, says the commission last winter ordered an in-depth study of projected public needs in the Porcupine Mountains to determine the feasibility of maintaining the land as a wilderness park.

"This means another attempt has been mounted to force the Department of Natural Resources to open the Porcupine Mountains to lumbering roads, motorized paths, souvenir stands and the like," Barnes writes.

At a public hearing in Ontonagon recently, all but one of some 30 persons who testified wanted the Porkies to remain a wilderness, according to Barnes.

"The lone person speaking in favor of change was State Sen. Joseph Mack, whose constituents the 30 persons who disagreed with him are. Even many lumbermen said they thought the Porkies should not be lumbered."

The Michigan Legislature has repeatedly refused pleas to log the wilderness timber, mine its copper, build roads through it, construct a fish ladder on its border, and other projects which would destroy the wilderness.

Direction of this year's dispute was indicated at last December's DNR Commission meeting. Sen. Mack, in whose district the Porkies lie, said: "Wilderness concept as interpreted today is leading one of Michigan's most beautiful and precious forest tracts (the Porkies) to an absolute state of rot."

Mack pointed out that before he intervened, the UP got no tax revenue from the park. But $250,000 was paid last year to Ontonagon and Gogebic Counties in lieu of taxes on the park, a figure arrived at by using the top value of all the timber in the park in its prime, as estimated by a timber cruiser.

Some called this a gift from the rest of Michigan, and point out that if some timber is harvested the yearly amount paid should go down, since the park would not be as valuable as it is today.

"What is the value of the Porkies to the people?" Mack asked. "They serve the whims and desires of one-tenth of one percent of the people who like wilderness and will destroy the forest."

Denying he wants the park logged, Sen. Mack said dead or dying timber should be removed to preserve what's left and fire lanes built which "protect the wilderness," as he put it, while others pointed out that any tampering destroys wilderness.

"Last year, the Porkies attracted 250,000 persons. What is their lure?" the article asks. "In a word, wilderness. The only wilderness in the midwest and the only real timbered wilderness around."

The park, located as far from Detroit as New York City, was established in 1944. It was created so that one huge wilderness would remain forever untouched by civilization. It is one of the nation's largest state parks. It was purchased at urging of former Gov. Harry Kelly, who said, "We want to preserve this virgin territory for eternity."

Within the park are three picturesque lakes, Lake of the Clouds, Mirror Lake and Lily Pond. Thirty miles of river course through it, plus 70 miles of small creeks. Almost 100 miles of well-marked trails thread through the trees. Some are more rugged than others, but all can be hiked by any able-bodied person. The entire park is open to hunting in season, with some of the best deer and small game hunting in the state. Measured from sea level, the Porkies rise up 2,023 feet, one of the highest land masses in the midwest.

"This is the second attempt to commercialize the Porkies in my 25 years at Motor News," Barnes states. "The first was in 1958, when it was proposed that the Upper Peninsula's perennially depressed economy be given a shot in the arm by allowing private interests to mine copper on 933 acres smack in the middle of the Porcupines. This was defeated after a determined fight led by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs."

"The present controversy may be good for the porkies," Barnes says, "if it brings a policy of preservation forever. As in 1958, we oppose a policy of blacktopping trails or permitting motorized vehicles in the park.

"Wilderness persists," concludes Motor News, "where nature is free and only man's actions are disciplined. All National Parks are protected by law forever from mining, grazing, dams and lumbering. So should the Porcupine State Park be protected."

ONE AREA which may be saved from exploitation is the Fisherman's Island tract south of Charlevoix. The site has been selected for establishment of an 8,000-acre Woodland Indian National Monument by a Department of the Interior Task Force. However some residents now fear that national park status will do more to harm the area than private development.

MONROE CREEK where it crosses Ranney-rd. is a clear, fast-moving stream about three feet wide. Some local conservationists doubt that the flow, even in spring, will be sufficient to maintain a 400-acre lake.

Kappa Sigma Initiates New Members

By BETH GENEIT

The Kappa Sigma Chapter, Beta Sigma Sorority, held a Western Frontier costume party Nov. 20, at the home of Mrs. William Austin on Petoskey-rd. More than 20 attended, including members and husbands.

On Monday evening, Nov. 22, initiation of new members was held following a 6:30 p.m. dinner held at the Weathervane Inn.

Mrs. James Bell was in charge of the initiation ceremonies for five new members, including Mrs. Carl Rothenberger jr., Mrs. Fred Cohrs, Mrs. George Shultz, Mrs. Richard Aull and Mrs. Dale McCandless.

Following the initiation the Jewel Degree Ritual was given by Mrs. Walter Hufford, Mrs. Vernon Mathews jr., Mrs. Tracy Curtis and Mrs. Donald Horstman.

Christmas Trees Aid to Environment

A tree is part of Christmas. And of this year's Christmas Seal design.

There's also a bugler, an angel, and a blazing candle - and the familiar, traditional, double-barred cross. Then the perfectly shaped evergreen with three simple ornaments and a star.

Evergreens have been part of winter ceremonies long before Christ was born. In Roman times, small trees were decorated with miniature masks for festivities during freezing months. American Indians used to burn cedar twigs for incense at their most sacred gatherings. In early England, evergreens and their boughs were symbols of enduring life, since they sported green year-round.

But most of our Christmas tree customs come from Germany. In the Harz Mountains, girls once danced around the tree, singing, decorating it with lights, flowers, and colored eggs. Trimming the tree is our modern equivalent.

Christmas trees are usually spruces and firs. Centuries ago, evergreens were considered kings of the forest, and many woodchoppers refused to cut them down because of their life-giving qualities. Newly married couples carried fir branches decorated with lighted candles. Branches hung at the door were supposed to ward off evil spirits. And a branch at the foot of the bed kept away nightmares.

Today, trees command a new kind of awe for their life-giving features. They give oxygen to a polluted planet. There is no gift more important to human survival.

Trees are part of the Christmas tradition. And part of the year-round struggle against air pollution. To find out more about joining that struggle, contact the Michigan Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, 403 Seymour Avenue, Lansing, Michigan, 48914. And use Christmas Seals. With the bugler, angel, candle, evergreen tree, and familiar cross. It's a matter of life and breath.

Church Installs Pastor

By Beth Gerfelt

A Sermon of Installation for the Rev. Gordon Mitchenson of the First Congregational Church of the United Church of Christ was held Sunday evening, Nov. 21.

The Call to Worship was given by Mr. Harold Wilson. Moderator was Rev. William Harmon of Cheboygan. The Sermon was presented by Rev. William Allinder of Cadillac. A Pastoral Prayer written by Rev. Harold E. Kohn was read by Harold Wilson. A Charge to the Minister was given by Rev. Oliver Weber of Lewiston. A Charge to the Congregation was offered by Rev. Lawrence Tenhopen of Elk Rapids and the Presentation of Certificate was awarded by Rev. Oliver Weber.

Others sharing in the Service of Installation were: Mrs. Robert Tollas, Mrs. Charles Bellinger, Mrs. Wayne Wood, Mr. Vincent Chew and Brodie Mitchenson.

Due to weather conditions the Rev. Charles Hastie and Mr. Edward Strolle of Gaylord and Rev. James Nelson of Atlanta arrived too late to participate in the program.

The Board of Deacons held a "coffee and conversation" hour following the services.

Races Slated

TimberLee Hills this year will conduct its Third Annual Christmas Race Camp which will be a two session camp. The first session will be Dec. 17-20. The second session will be Dec. 21-24. These camps are primarily geared for the racing-interested youngster regardless of his ability.

The camp is open for full-time attendants or youngsters from the immediate vicinity participating in the day's activities only.

Home for Holidays? The Library is Open

The Library would like to remind high school and college students that an extensive file of updated and topical material is available with clipping subjects ranging from abortion to pollution, as well as a current file on the Woodland Indian project.

All material may be checked out of the Library. These clippings are taken from such newspapers as the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, the Christian Science Monitor and the Charlevoix Courier. All articles are dates and they are especially helpful to students when five or more sources are required for a term paper or special project report.

The library's resource material will permit students to work on research projects during the Christmas holidays. The library is open from 1 until 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and 1 to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

New titles this week in fiction include "The Curse of the Concubines," a new gothic novel by Florence Stevenson. Lucinda Ayers, the heroine is English, 18 and extraordinarily beautiful. She has been engaged to teach some children in an eerie Irish castle. She was uniquely suited for her assignment because she had grown up with a ghost in the attic and was used to communicating with werewolves and bickering with vampires. The book is funny and spooky and there are shudders in store for the reader.

"The Alabaster Egg" is a slender, fast-paced novel by Gillian Freeman. It is an old story about life and love and war, but the author tells it with such invention and skill that one could swear he had never heard of it before.

Helen MacInnes has a new suspense novel, "Message From Malaga," her millions of fans. It is hardly possible to exaggerate the number of her fans because her fourteen novels have sold well over 17 million copies in America and have been translated into 22 languages. This new novel takes place in Spain. It concerns Ian Ferrier, on vacation from the U.S. Space Agency, who would not have believed that his reunion with a trusted friend would lead to murder.

Mrs. Gibson Tells About Irish Gardens

"Flowers Across the Sea" was the lesson given at the November Garden Club meeting by Mrs. Jennie Gibson.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Lois McCandless, with Mrs. June Couse as co-hostess. Members answered the roll call by naming a plant common in early American gardens.

A native of Dublin, Ireland, Mrs. Gibson moved to Charlevoix four years ago. She had many interesting tales to relate to living and gardening in her homeland.

She said the flowers in northern Michigan are the same as those grown in the British Isles. Major differences are that British gardeners use less fertilizer and week regularly.

Gardens in the British Isles need little watering, because there is always plenty of moisture.

The next Garden Club meeting will be Dec. 14 at the home of Mrs. Nancy Fowler.

4 Students Assigned

Four Charlevoix County students are doing their directed teaching at Western Michigan University this fall.

They are Carol Jean Annis and Nancy Jo Neff of Charlevoix, Bonnie Jill Hawkes of Boyne City and Patrick J. Crawford of St. James.

Miss Annis has been assigned to the Charlevoix Junior High School, Miss Neff to the Leonhard School in Southfield, Miss Hawkes to Northern High School in Portage and Crawford to Gull Lake High School in Gull Lake.

A total of 847 are doing their directed teaching under the supervision of veteran teachers.

TWENTY-EIGHT Charlevoix girls became Girl Scout Brownies at investiture ceremonies Nov. 23 at the Elementary School. The leaders are Mrs. Sally Lignell, assisted by Sue Wilson; Mrs. Jackie Staley, assisted by Mrs. Trudy Miller; and Mrs. Carolyn Wilson, assisted by Mrs. Nancy Spence.

Completes Art Course At Home

Darlene Cunningham, R-2, Charlevoix, has completed the Young People's Art Course given by the Famous Artists School of Westport, Conn.

The three-year course of study for talented young people between the ages of 13 and 19 is a relatively new offering of the long-established home study school.

Miss Cunningham received instruction via mail in all media, including oils.

Members of the school's Guiding Faculty are Norman Rockwell, Bob Peak, Bernard Fuchs and Larraine Fox.

Committee Will Preside At Meetings

By Cathy Dubey

An executive committee to preside over the Student Council was named at the last council meeting Nov. 19.

Members of the council are Fred Davison, Paul Klooster and John Murdick. Also on the committee will be one representative chosen by each class.

The council is still working on the conduct code, which will be an all-year project.

Fund raising methods were discussed, including the sale of airline cards, giving the purchaser student stand-by status. The cards cost $3.

The treasurer reported a balance of $312.47.

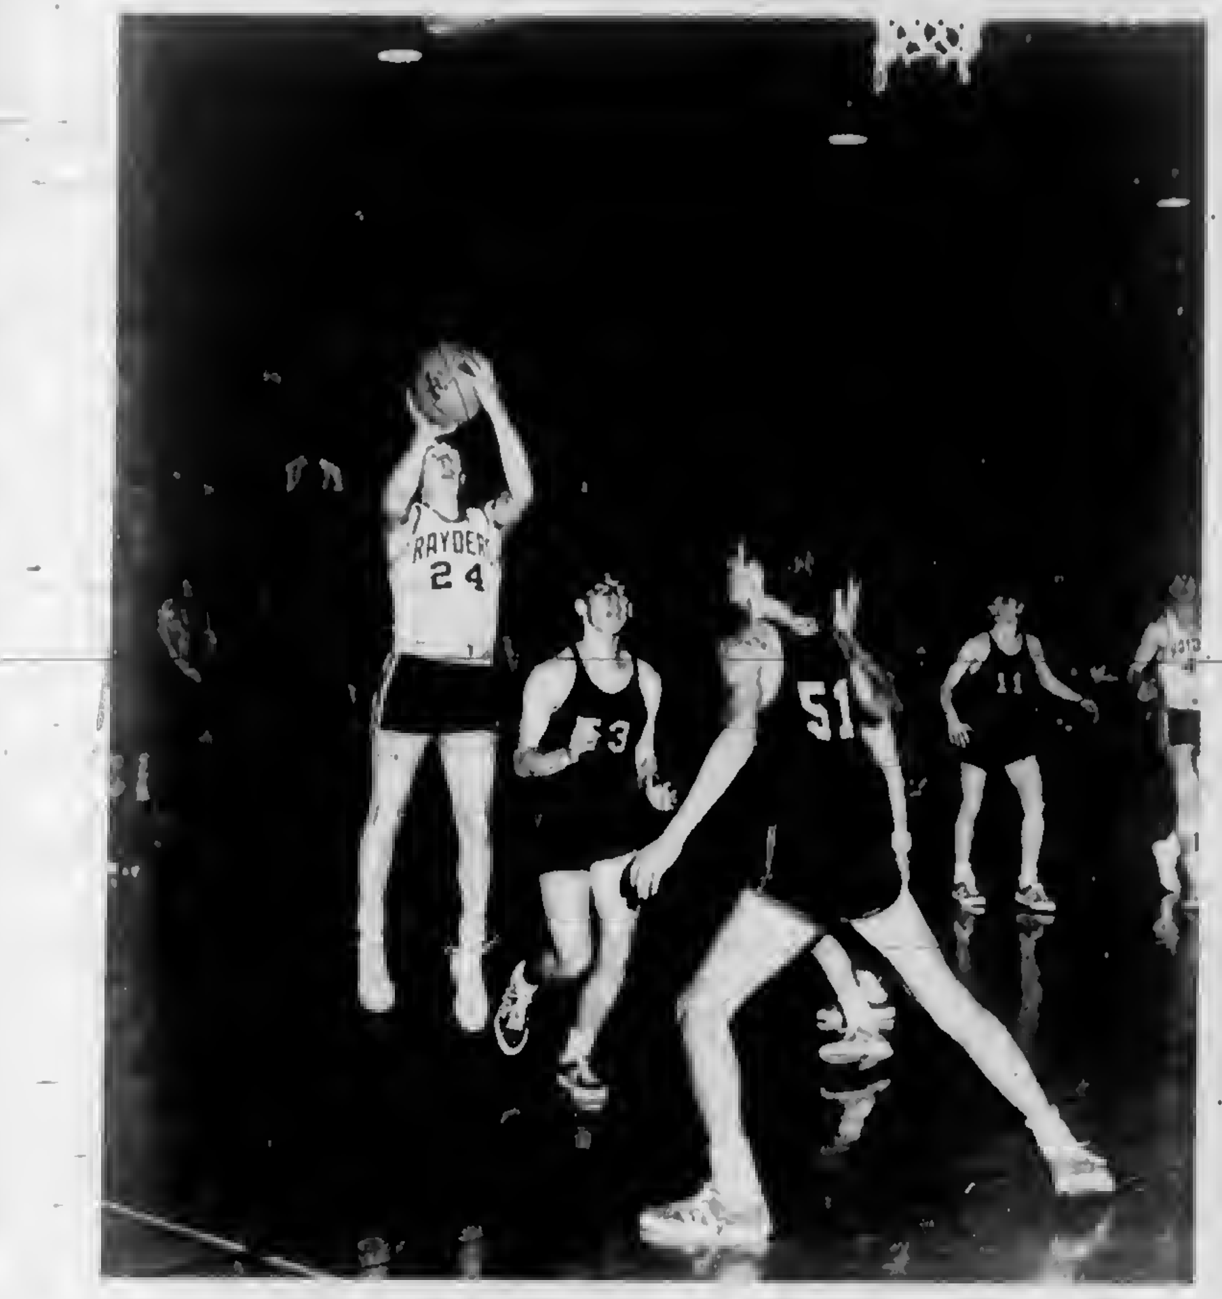
Jayvees Waltz Over Rogers City 68 to 40



JIM MOORE, a CHS sophomore, takes aim over heads of Huron JV cagers for elusive basket.

Jerry Skippergosh Leads High Scorers

Charlevoix's Junior Varsity cagers waltzed all over Rogers City Friday night, posting a final tally of 68 points to the JV Hurons' 40.

Sophomore Jerry Skippergosh led the scoring with 17 points on eight fieldgoals and one freethrow.

He was followed by Clay Jones, 15 (seven and one); Steve McClellan, 12 (six fieldgoals); Randy Faust, 11 (five and one); Pat Plumn, 7 (two and three); Jim Potter, 4 (two fieldgoals); and Ed Buday, 2 (one fieldgoal).

Quarter scores were 24-10, 40-17, 55-27 and 68-40, with Charlevoix leading all the way.

Scoring for Rogers City were Horn, 9 (four and one); Budnick, 8 (three and two); Karsten, 8 (two and four); Klein, 6 (three fieldgoals); White, 4 (two fieldgoals); Gapezyoski, 3 (one and one) and Boehmer, 2 (one fieldgoal).

JERRY SKIPPERGOSH reaches for another fieldgoal in the Jayvee game Friday against the Rogers City Hurons.

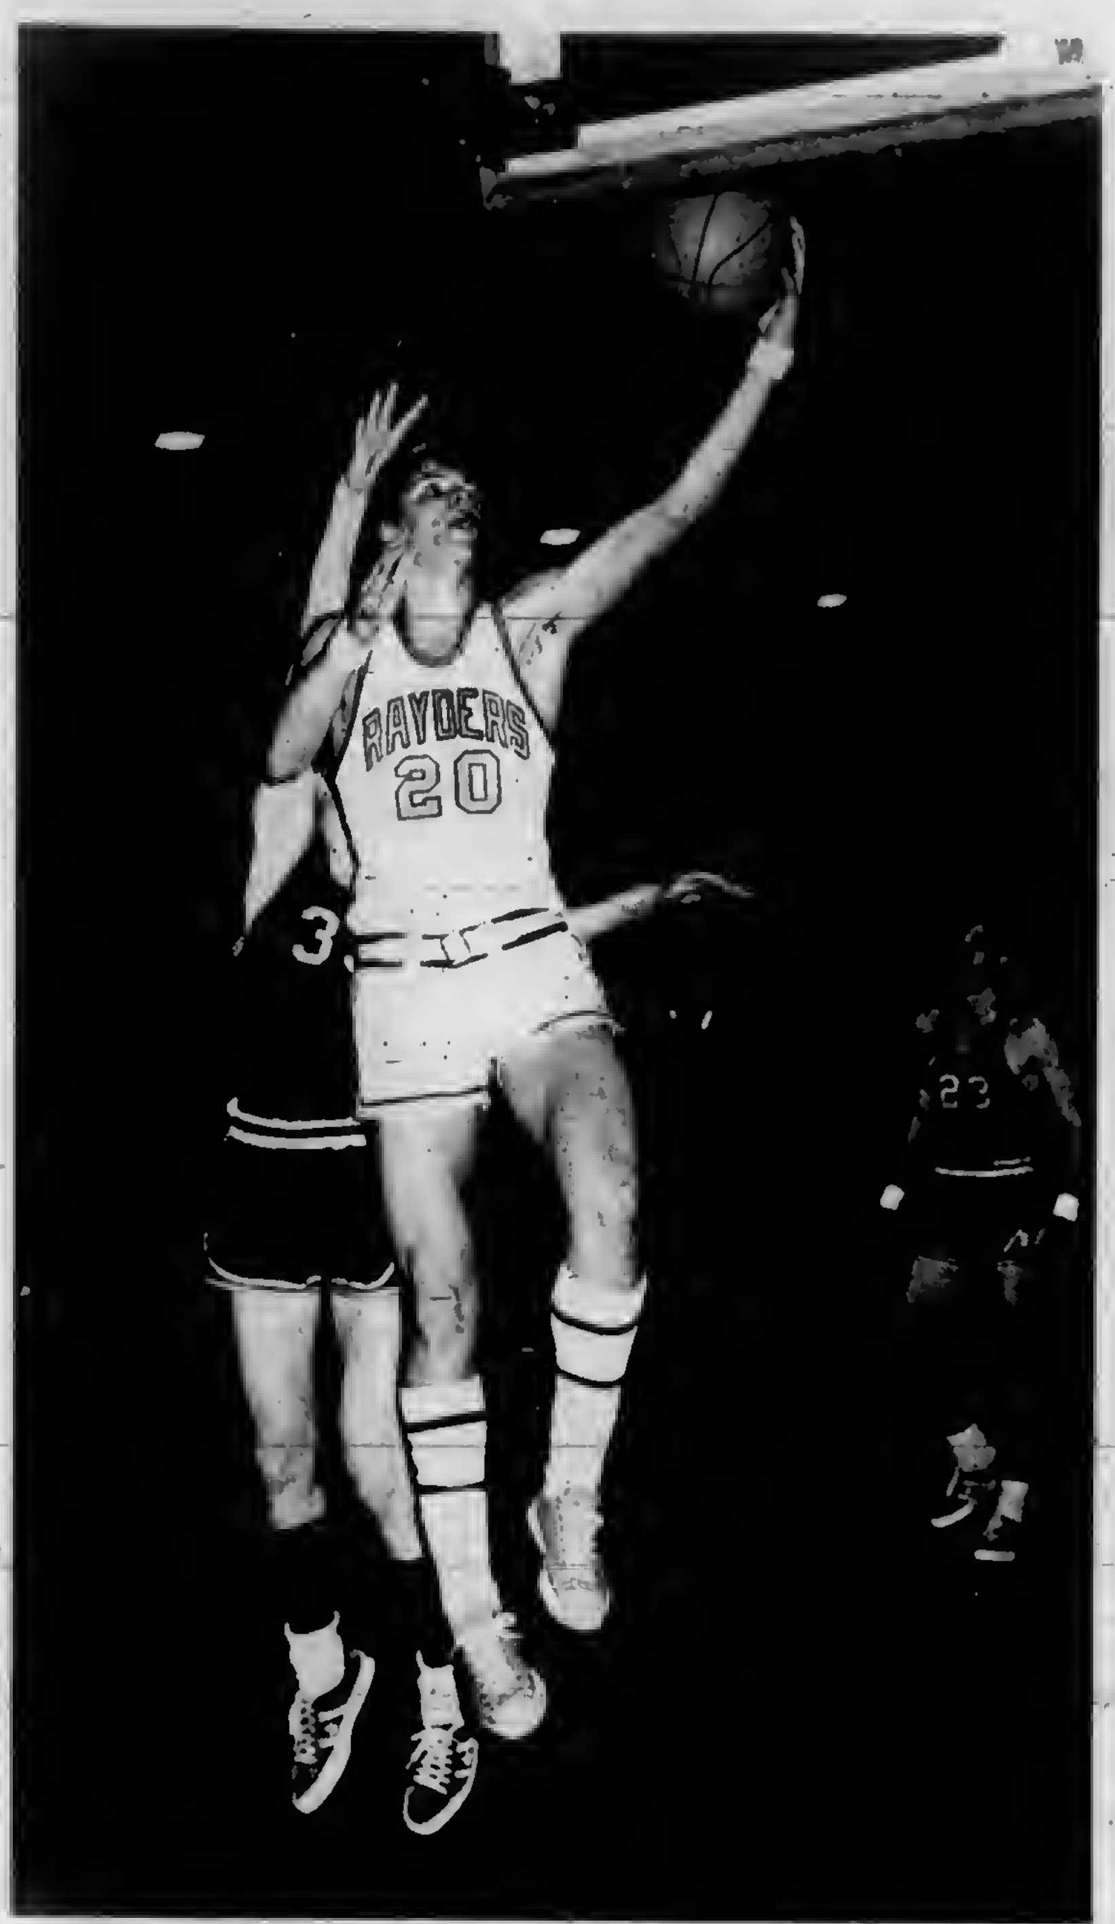
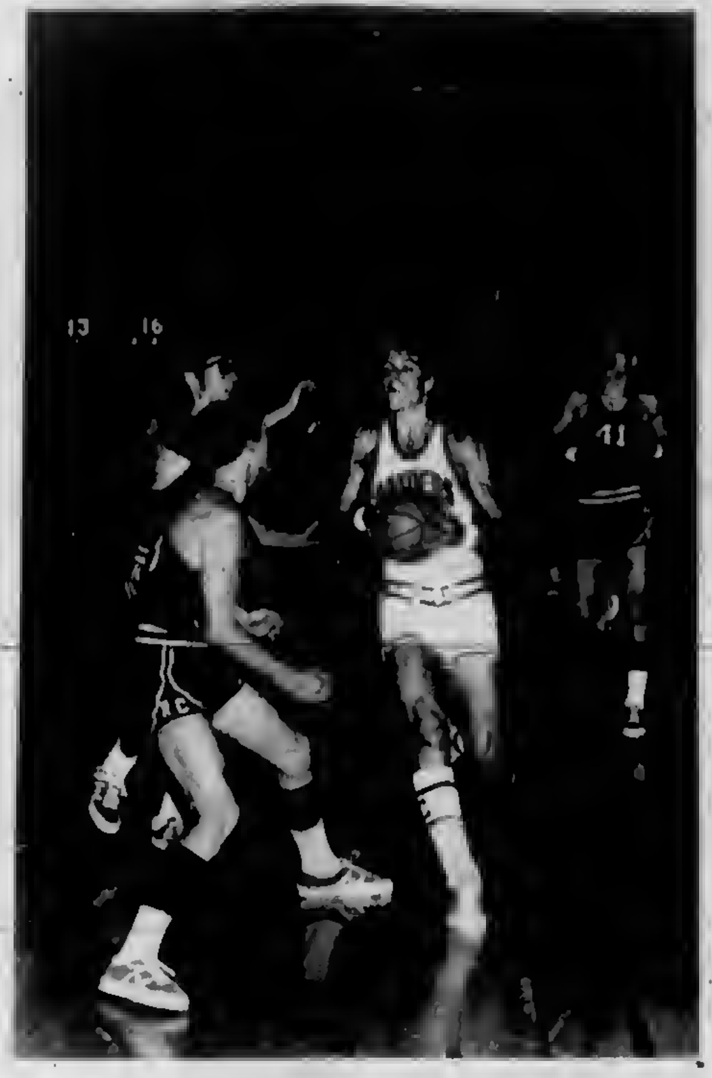
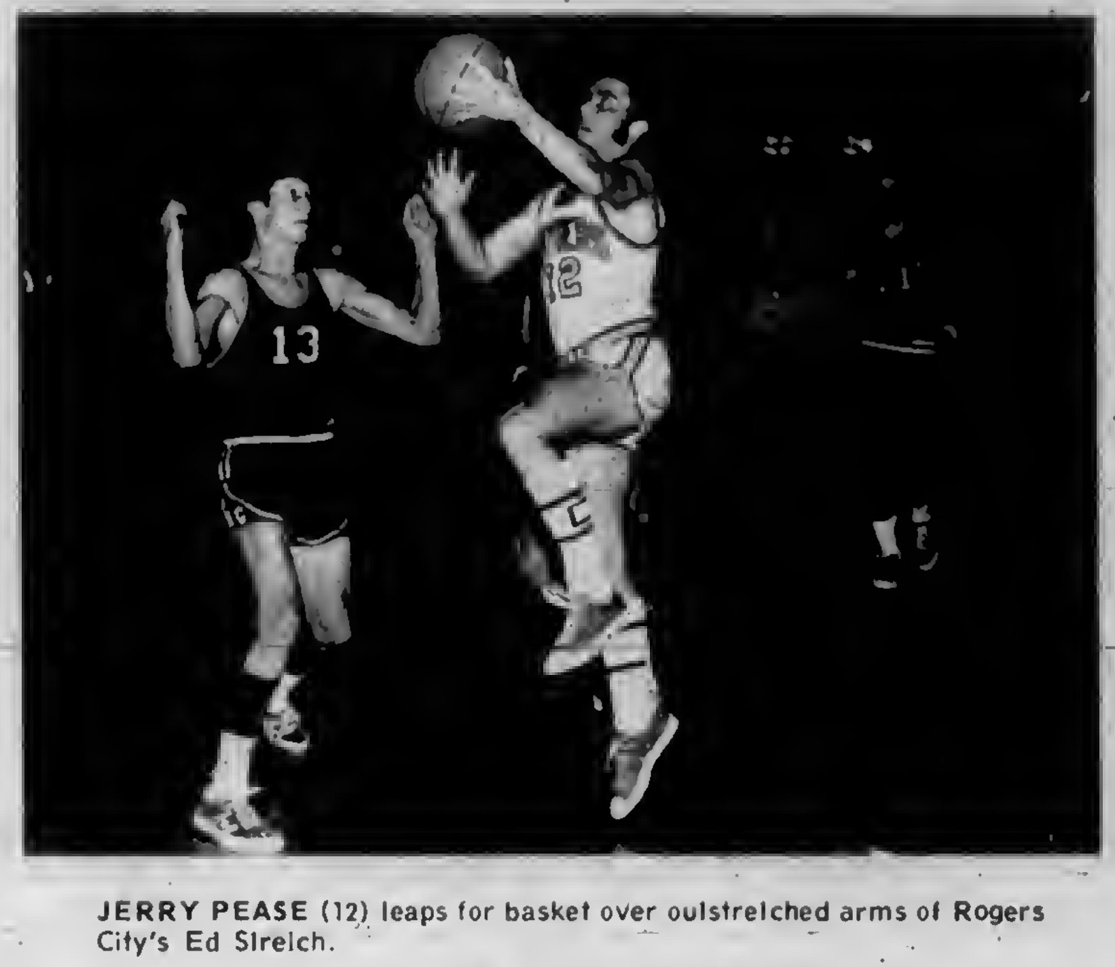
Bill Carey Scores 32 Points to Defeat Hurons



BILL CAREY led the scoring for Charlevoix's Varsity cage squad Friday against Rogers City with 32 big ones to his credit. Carey, who stands six feet, four inches tall, is in his senior year.



SENIOR Bill Carey finds a corridor between ranks of Rogers City Hurons that leads right to the basket.



JERRY PEASE (12) leaps for basket over outstretched arms of Rogers City's Ed Streich.

St. Ignace, Onaway Are Next

A well-seasoned Charlevoix cage squad returned to the boards Friday night to defeat Rogers City in the first conference game of the season, 68-56.

Senior Bill Carey, who stands six-feet-four, was credited with almost half of the Rayders' total tally – 32 points – on 13 fieldgoals and six freethrows.

Also in the scoring column were Roger Crain, 12 (six fieldgoals); Larry Potter, 9 (three and three); Jerry Pease, 7 (three and one); Ned Henley, 4 (one and two); and Dave Swanson and Jim Ance, 2 each on fieldgoals.

The Rayders, two-thirds of whom are Seniors, gave a polished performance for their first game of the year, fouls aside.

They led in the opening stanza, 16 to 11 and had a six point margin at the half, 35-29. The Rayders scored 13 points in the third period, compared to 10 for Rogers City (48-39), and came back strong in the final period with 20, compared to 17 for the Hurons.

Although the game came midway through the Thanksgiving holiday, the stands on both sides of the gymnasium were filled almost to capacity.

Sharing scoring honors for the Hurons were Ralph Santini and Ed Streich, both of whom had 13 points, Santini on six fieldgoals and one freethrow and Streich on five fieldgoals and three freethrows.

They were followed by Mike Lawes, 11 (five and one); Dennis Szczerowski, 9 (four and one); Jeff Landis, 5 (two and one); John Quaine, 4 (two fieldgoals) and John Geyer 1 on a freethrow.

This weekend, the Rayders will play at St. Ignace Friday and meet Onaway at home on Saturday.

Independent Games Start

The first Independent Basketball League games have been scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 1 and 2, at the Middle School gymnasium.

At 7 p.m. Wednesday, Hess will meet Topside and at 8:30 p.m. the Head Shop will play Medusa.

On Thursday, Best's Insurance will play Kusina at 7 p.m. and Andy's will tangle with the First State Bank at 8:30 p.m.

ALTHOUGH winter is moving in, construction is still underway at the city's new waste water treatment plant on Lakeshore-dr. Above are the digesters, which were recently placed under cover. Target date for completion is December, 1972.

NMU Dean Will Address CHS Staff

There will be no school for Charlevoix students in grades nine through twelve on Wednesday, Dec. 8, because of an in-service training day for teachers, according to Charlevoix High School Principal Vane Smith.

Main speaker at the in-service session will be Dr. Wilbert A. Berg, professor of education and dean of the School of Education at Northern Michigan University.

Dr. Berg received his B.S., M. Ed. and Ed. D degrees at the University of Missouri. He has been at Northern since 1960 and has been called "one of the most distinguished observers of the contemporary scene and one of the most knowledgeable interpreters of the exciting innovations in learning and teaching that lie ahead," according to Smith.'

Save Ferry, Ruppe Urges ICC

Cong. Philip E. Ruppe has again strongly urged the Interstate Commerce Commission to refuse to grant the abandonment of the S.S. Chief Wawatam rail ferry link between the two peninsulas of Michigan.

"To cut off this vital rail freight lifeline connecting Michigan's Upper and Lower Peninsulas would fall nothing short of a disaster for the economic life of certain areas of Michigan," Ruppe warned in his testimony before the I.C.C.

Estimating the damaging impact that the closing down of the Chief Wawatam could have, Ruppe stated that some 200 railroad jobs alone are at stake, and railway freight lines extending from the Eastern Upper Peninsula as far south as Grand Rapids may be phased out of operation if the Wawatam is abandoned.

Congressman Ruppe expressed his views in the public hearings on the proposed closing of the Chief Wawatam, recently completed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix District Court last week by Judge W. Richard Smith:

A charge of being a minor in possession of alcoholic beverages, lodged against Stephen G. Hawkins, 17, Birmingham, was dismissed.

Raymond McClanathan, 21, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for violation of the basic speed law.

Gordon G. Boyer, 55, was assessed $105 and surrendered his driving license on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Pamela Parsel, 18, Ironton, was assessed $100 and ordered to pay $100 restitution on charges of malicious destruction of property and littering public lands. She also was placed on one year's probation.

Kevin T. McPeak, 19, Petoskey, was assessed $100 on a charge of reckless driving.

Raymond Loomis, 31, Flint was assessed $50 on a charge of petty larceny.

Oil to Replace Coal At Ellsworth School

The Ellsworth Community School will switch from coal to oil heat over the Christmas holidays, according to Supt. Richard Strong.

Strong said a conversion burner will be installed at a total cost of $5,700, including an oil storage tank.

The new burner will pay for itself in three years through savings on fuel, the superintendent said.

He explained that the Board of Education decided to convert because the cost of coal has risen from $18.50 a ton in 1969 to $27.75 a ton for the current school year.

The present school furnace was purchased used in the 1930's from the Ellsworth cannery. With additions to the building, it is not capable of heating the entire school at one time, Strong said.

Installation of the new burner will be done by Wares & Son of Traverse City.

Friendship Center Offers Invitation

Charlevoix Senior Citizens are reminded that there is plenty to do Tuesdays at Petoskey's Friendship Center, 453 E. Lake-st.

Activities begin with a homemade soup and sandwich luncheon at 12:30 p.m. at a nominal charge. Dessert consists of homemade cookies and fruit, with plenty of hot coffee.

After lunch, there is bowling at 2 p.m., or cribbage, rock polishing or whatever suits your fancy.

Legion Buys Bright Vests For Newsboys

By Beth Geaelt

Members of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, have purchased ten reflectorized orange vests for all morning newsboys making deliveries in the city.

Members of the local Police Department delivered the vests personally to each delivery boy, requesting that they be worn daily for their protection while delivering papers in the morning darkness.

The vests should be plainly visible to motorists.

Magistrate's Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Magistrate John Connolly:

Homer L. Brady, 55, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for failure to have his vehicle under control.

William J. Withers, 23, Flint, was assessed $50 for shining deer.

Charles M. Bergmann, 28, Charlevoix, was assessed $50 for shining deer.

Danny M. Coleman, 22, Flint, was assessed $25 for having a loaded firearm in his automobile.

Mario Montresor, 50, Southgate, was assessed $25 for having a loading firearm in his automobile.

Anthony J. Oliver, 60, Pontiac, was assessed $13 for having an uncased firearm in his automobile.

IRS Plans 2 Clinics At Gaylord

The Internal Revenue Service will conduct two tax clinics in Gaylord in December for individuals and businesses, according to Director Thomas A. Cardoza.

Although the tax information sessions are designed principally for practitioners and preparers of returns, members of the general public may also attend without charge, Cardoza said.

The Gaylord clinic for individual tax matters will be held Dec. 2, and the business clinic Dec. 3. Both clinics will start at 8:30 a.m. and end at 4:30 p.m.

Cardoza said the reservations are needed because of the large numbers of people expected to attend.

For reservations, write: Chief, Training Branch, P.O. Box 84, Detroit, Mich. 48231.

All persons enrolling for the clinics will be sent written confirmation as to date, time and location.

Bio Students Study Plants At Bells Bay

By Murphy Wallace

Recently the Advanced Biology students went on a field trip to the Bells Bay area.

The purpose of the trip was a Community Field Secession Study.

The students marked off a 200 square foot area, and counted the number of plants, trees, and shrubs within the boundaries.

It took two days to complete the study.

Bruce Morgon, the teacher of Advanced Biology, plans to continue this study over the years and compare the results. However, they won't take their field trip at the same time next year. This year the class visited Bells Bay on the opening day of deer hunting season and found it to be rather hazardous.

Democracy Not Meant to Be Efficient, Unicameral System Opponent Claims

To the Editor

Dear Sir:

The three principal arguments advanced in support of a unicameral legislature are that it will lead to greater efficiency, economy, and accountability. None of these arguments is as substantial as most newspaper articles and editorials make them seem.

"First of all, efficiency is not the hallmark of a democracy, but of a dictatorship. A one-man, not a one-house, legislature would provide the optimum of efficiency–but at the expense of democracy and representative government. The truth is that in a democracy there is a calculated inefficiency in the form of checks and balances intended to ward off precipitous action and to allow a full and reasoned hearing on all issues.

Secondly, the hopes for economy through unicameralism are greatly overstated. Fewer elected officials do not insure lower costs. The 19 members of Michigan's congressional delegation spend more than the 148 members of the state legislature combined. The 38-member state Senate spends more than twice as much per member as does the 110-member House.

We also remember that the 1963 Constitution reduced over 140 state agencies to a maximum of 20 state departments with no gain in economy. There are now 10,000 more state employees than when this reduction went into effect, while department budgets have trebled.

The most telling point, however, is that the legislature's budget is not a significant part of the state's total budget–only .5 of one percent of the whole. If even an improbable 20 percent saving in legislative expenses could be effected, the profit to the state would be .1 of one percent of the state budget. There is no value in risking our whole governmental system for savings on this scale. The costs of transition to unicameralism would more than absorb this hypothetical saving.

Lastly, the greatest deception played by unicameral proponents is to assert its greater accountability to the people. They would "accomplish" this goal by making elected state representatives less accessible, reducing the number of representatives from 148 in two houses to 76 in one house. The present ratio of elected state legislators in both houses to number of constituents is now 1 to 59,967. The unicameral proposal would raise that ratio to 1 to 116,777, and would give the voter just one person–not two–representing him her on the state level.

Further, the present system allows election of representatives every two years, senators every four years. The proposed unicameral system would give the legislature a free hand for four years at a time. By reducing accessibility to voters, the unicameral system is far less accountable than the bicameral system.

What the unicameral system would do, if approved, is give assurance that one party would dominate the state legislature for years to come. The proposal is based on the state's congressional districts–now controlled 12 to 7 by the Republican Party. If the new unicameral legislature followed the same pattern, Republicans would have a possible 48-28 majority. As the southeastern districts could be expected to go heavily for the Democrats, the Republicans would hope to pick up narrower but certain margins outstate. There is no prospect in the near future that the Democratic minority could hope to reduce such a substantial margin in a one-house legislature.

It was for reasons such as these that delegates to the 1963 constitutional convention–none of them legislators–dismissed the unicameral concept out of hand. They realized that a unicameral legislature would be less democratic, less representative, highly partisan, and highly inaccessible to the people. They acted wisely.

Sincerely,

Howard D. Horton

Debaters Are Tied

By Lisa Wasoski

The Charlevoix High School Debate Team had a Tip of the Mitt League tournament in Onaway on Saturday, Nov. 20.

Charlevoix came out with a 3 win, 1 loss record which puts them in a three-way tie in league standings with Traverse City and Alpena.

Debating for Charlevoix were Lisa Wasoski and Steve Kantola; debating one affirmative round and one negative round, Jeanne Belfy and Debbie Rank; affirmative and Jeanne Belfy and Carolin Swartout; negative.

The Charlevoix High team is maintaining its high average of speaker points and hopes to continue the good work.

Members of the league and their standings are Charlevoix: 3-1, Traverse City: 3-1, Alpena; 3-1, Petoskey; 2-2, Elk Rapids 1-3, Onaway; 1-3 and Johannesburg; 1-3. Kalkaska is also a member of the league, but was unable to attend the tournament and will make up the rounds at a later date.

OK, Fellas, Let's Get Down to Work

Downtown parking.

Refurbishing of the city's electrical distribution system, including a decision on what to do with the Bellaire hydro-electric plant.

Election of a charter commission to draw up a new form of government for the City of Charlevoix, superseding the out-moded Fourth Class Cities Act.

Extension of sewage and water lines to all residents of the city.

Development of more city docks on Round Lake.

Adoption of a city ordinance–as the Mayor promised–which would prohibit city officials from doing business with the city.

Construction of sidewalks, curbs and gutters throughout the city.

Now that Mayor Essenburg has stated his case against City Superintendent Thomas Hanna and Mr. Hanna has had an opportunity to reply, the Courier, for one, would like to have the Mayor and the City Council get humping on some of the above problems.

How about it?

QUESTION: Why don't we save the money wasted on high school driver education. Kids don't get anything out of it anyhow. T.K.L., Detroit

ANSWER: What the kids get out of it depends - as all education depends - on the kids, encouragement by the kids' parents, and the quality of the teaching at the local school classes.

It's like any branch of education. One kid studies math and becomes a space scientist. Another never learns to count correct change. To one person Shakespeare is great literature - to another it's fishing tackle.

Most kids acquire attitudes and even some handling skills from pals and parents before they get to driver ed in high school. A recent study of several hundred kids with bad driving records showed parents with bad records also.

We shouldn't expect 36 hours in class to generate perfection in the face of a lifetime handicap like that. However, wide ranging studies reveal that kids with high school driver education do better on the average.

The State Department of Education is moving with an extended program to involve young 'uns from Kindergarten to senior high school, inculcating the principles of good traffic response – walking, riding bikes and scooters, snowmobiles, passenger cars or what haven't we?

Don't knock driver ed. Get after your school authorities to provide the total quality instruction needed to survive in a world on wheels.

QUESTION: I was furious to learn that my driver file has a record of an accident that wasn't my fault. They won't erase it. B.K.G., Memphis

Answer: Everybody in Michigan (and lots of other states) has notations of the accidents he has participated in – whether his fault or not.

The ones that are your fault are clearly indicated by records of conviction and/or points charged. Those are the babies that should bother you. Enough of them - 12 points in 24 months - may snap that little old driver license right back to Lansing. Some do it on less for drunk driving and flagrantly dangerous driving.

However, the ones that are not your fault do not reflect against you. They just sit there and remind you not to try it on your own.

QUESTION: A cop gave me a ticket for no helmet on a motorcycle. I was wearing mine but I just picked up my girl friend down the street and she didn't have one, but she was just riding behind. Can they do this? R.B., Haslett

ANSWER: What good would a girl friend with bashed brains do you? Law of 1970 states it more dignified: "Person operating or riding on a motorcycle or motor driven cycle on a public thorofare shall wear a crash helmet upon his head." This is generic and means her, too. Why take chances?

QUESTION: Say - Do I have to stop for a school bus on the opposite side of a four-lane highway with a rumble strip in the middle of it? The school bus driver hollered at me like he was somebody. B.O.R., Niles

ANSWER: He was. School bus drivers have a lot of responsibility for the 50 or more young passengers they carry. Seventeen were killed and 729 injured in 1315 school bus tragedies last school year. The bus driver could have reported you and you would have been in trouble.

You do. Law says any highway with a "mountable median," that is, one like your rumble strip, requires stopping on your part until the school bus stop lights go out. If it is a wide median with a parkway, it is not necessary - but watch out for the kids anyway.

A Pregnant Jockey?

By JIM FITZGERALD

A few thoughts about a couple of wronged women, God bless them...

The U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals recently ruled there is "a compelling public interest in not having pregnant female soldiers in the military establishment."

As an army veteran, a member of the public, and a fan of Women's Lib, I protest this decision.

The court was ruling in the case of Capt. Susan Struck, "The first U.S. Air Force officer to give birth to a child while on active duty."

That sounds as if Capt. Struck delivered her baby while dropping bombs on Laos. Which could hardly be the truth. I'm sure she went back to the barracks for the occasion and was probably even late for reveille the next morning.

Anyway, the court decision means it's OK for the Air Force to discharge Capt. Struck simply because she got pregnant. That's not fair.

I've known male soldiers who were AWOL 9 months and weren't discharged. They were slightly incarcerated for a few months, and demoted. But they kept their jobs.

And I remember several manly sergeants who often suffered from a morning sickness you wouldn't believe. A weekend in town would render them useless to the war effort until Wednesday, at least. But they were not discharged. They were put in charge of the recreation hall where they locked everyone out until they had slept their way back to health.

And then, of course, there is the ultimate question: By whom was Capt. Struck impregnated? If the father is a fellow airman, was he discharged? Certainly not. He probably got a medal for making a beyond-duty effort to improve fellowship at the Officers' Club.

Obviously, there is no decent reason why a female soldier can't be granted maternity leave for, say, a month. Then it could be back to duty, the same as a male soldier returning from R & R in Hawaii.

Women's Lib should strike hard for Capt. Struck.

ALSO, SOMETHING should be done about female jockeys. A gross injustice was recently revealed in the case of John Bacon and his wife Mary. Both are jockeys. Both wanted to race at the Hazel Park Race Course. But the track stewards ruled it is "against policy" to allow husband and wife to compete in the same race. This regulation is enforced at all tracks. It is feared the public would distrust the result of any race in which spouses were pitted against each other.

But get this. Brothers are allowed to race against each other. And sons are allowed to race against their fathers. It happens fairly often.

The implication is clear. 2 male jockeys can be trusted to race against each other, even if they are Siamese twins. But bring a female jockey into the family and all bets are off, call the cops. If that isn't discrimination I'll eat my NAACP membership card.

Mary Bacon is probably lucky she didn't show up at the track pregnant. They would have dragged her off her horse and shot her.

Onward and Upward, Women's Lib.

Says Mayor Should Quit

25 Nov. 1971
Charlevoix, Mich. 49720

Mr. Bob Clock,
Editor,
Charlevoix Courier

In reference to your paper's article and report of Mr. Hanna's answer to the mayor (Wednesday, 24 Nov. 71):

If the statement by the mayor in Item No. 7 is correct and can be proven, it is my expressed belief that if this is the moral standard that Mr. Essenburg works and lives under, the people of the City of Charlevoix should immediately ask for his resignation and if not tendered, steps should be taken immediately to evict this type of personality from office.

It is my belief that we have far too many people in office throughout the country of low moral standards and the sooner dismissed and replaced by people with mature sets of values and high moral conduct, the sooner this country will be on the road back to the caliber and quality that is was and was striving for when our forefathers wrote the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence.

You have my permission to print this letter and for the sake of many people concerned I hope you do.

AGRICULTURE IN ACTION

by Carl P. Kentner

MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU

Family Farm: Is It Doomed?

Is the family farm doomed by the supposed take-over of the nation's agriculture by big corporations?

The big election campaign season hasn't even gotten into gear, but political winds are starting to blow strong on the subject. We can expect to hear a great deal more about the doomed family farm from candidates during next year's campaign, just as we did during the Senate Committee hearing on the approval of the new Secretary of Agriculture.

Perhaps now is the time to look at a survey taken in 1968 under the direction of the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

The survey shows that there are about 13,300 farming corporations in the U.S. which account for 1 percent of all the commercial farms and about 7 percent of the nation's farmland.

Another fact disclosed by the survey is that nearly two thirds of these farming corporations are family owned and controlled. In fact, family corporations own 66 percent of all the incorporated farming units and produce 59 percent of the commodities sold by corporate farms.

In many cases a family farm unit is incorporated so the farm can be passed on to heirs without going through the dismal process of selling out and starting over. A corporation assures continuity and allows all members of a family to be stockholders. It also may create a higher interest in the operations and help retain young people in agriculture.

One of the main reasons huge, diversified outside corporations are not too interested in farming is their responsibility of investing stockholders' money at the highest possible rate of profit. At the present time, they find rough going in agriculture due to the price cost squeeze. There is a long list of corporations which have now retired from farming because the profit ledgers showed negative returns.

The fact still remains, the most efficient, and hence the most competitive person of all, is the man who owns his own acres, works his own land for as many hours as is required to complete the job and whose family future is visibly tied to that soil.

The family farm is here to stay. It may be incorporated, but so are other small businesses all across our land.

Clockwise Wild Land Dilemma

By BOB CLOCK

When I was a boy, not so awfully many years ago, one of my favorite pastimes was poring over maps of Michigan printed by the state Highway Department. What I remember most about those maps was the colors. Where I lived — Detroit, along with the rest of southern Michigan — was always white, denoting the so-called civilized portion of the state, blanketed with farms, villages, country towns and metropolitan areas.

However just north of Bay City the map took on various shades of green, denoting state and national forests. Virtually all of the upper half of the Lower Peninsula and most of the Upper Peninsula appeared to be woodland. One of my fondest dreams was to one day visit that never-never land of tall timber, where the few scattered towns were mere pinpoints on the map and the few roadways were faint gray pencil lines, compared to the blazing red highways of the Detroit area.

PICTURESQUE GRAYLING

In 1940 I made my first trip north — on a Grand Trunk snow train bound for Grayling. "The North" was just as I pictured it. From the train window I looked out on endless stretches of evergreens, hardwoods and poplars, punctuated only occasionally by tiny villages of snow-white frame homes and frontier-type business places with false wooden fronts.

Grayling itself was the most picturesque town I had ever seen. Every street ended in a wall of forest-green just a few short blocks from the business district. Although Grayling could scarcely have been riding the crest of an economic boom in those days, the town was neat and orderly, a fitting ornament for the great north woods.

LAKE LOUISE

A couple of summers later I had an opportunity to visit "The North" again, this time as a two-week resident of Camp Jeffery on Lake Louise in eastern Charlevoix County. Once again I was impressed by the immensity of Michigan's wild land and the beauty of lakes so clear that you could still see your toes while standing in water up to your chin.

As campers, we covered a good deal of Charlevoix County on foot, tramping for hours through the woods without crossing a road or coming across a single vestige of civilization. There weren't even any power lines in those days, because electricity was still some years away.

One day we were taken to Gaylord by bus to attend a beef barbecue at the stockyards. Little Gaylord was like a twin brother to Grayling, clean and white, a happy town nestled in the heart of a great forest. I guess it was then that I determined that some day I would make my home in northern Michigan.

DREAM COMES TRUE

That dream came true in 1965 when the Clocks moved to Charlevoix. Even then, just six short years ago, "The North" still retained some of its old charm. The thing that impressed me most about Charlevoix was the clarity of the air which made all objects, even those seen at a great distance, stand out in sharp relief. It was like putting on a new pair of glasses.

Lately, unfortunately, it is beginning to appear that the old "North" that many of us have loved for so long is not destined to survive. Huge chunks of former wild land are being gobbled up every year by the land developers and subdivisions are sprouting where only cedar and tamarack grew before. Dean Mikulski, chief sanitarian for the county Health Department, estimates that he has worked on 30 subdivisions of various sizes during 1971 alone.

This week in Lansing, the Natural Resources Commission will act on a proposal which calls for the damming of Monroe Creek about 10 miles southeast of Charlevoix, creating an artificial 400-acre lake which will be the centerpiece of 1,500-homesite development covering 1,500 acres of land. The subdivision, if it is approved, could have a population of between 5,000 and 6,000 persons — roughly one third the number of persons now living in all of Charlevoix County.

GAYLORD CHANGED

Along with the new population we can look for the tawdry accoutrements of civilization to replace our wooded hillsides.

I had an opportunity to visit Gaylord several weeks ago and was aghast at the neon-glitter that has sprung up along M-32 from I-75 right into the heart of the city. Hamburger stands, honky-tonks, gas stations — all ablaze with raucous signs designed to attract the attention of the weary traveler seeking the solitude of the north woods.

Was this really Gaylord — the little Gaylord I remembered from long ago – - or had we, by some magic, been transported to the sleezy outskirts of Detroit or Flint? There was really no difference.

The people of Gaylord reportedly are taking pride in the fact that their city, located hard by the roaring entrails of I-75, is one of the three fastest growing communities in Michigan. As a resident of Charlevoix I feel an immense sadness that a megalopolis is taking shape on our doorstep, because it is only a matter of time before the same cancer spreads to Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City, Ironton, Norwood, Ellsworth, Hortons' Bay and Bay Shore. In fact we already are experiencing the first symptoms.

PRESSURE GROWS

To be truthful, development pressures have never been greater in northern Michigan than they are today, mainly because of better roads connecting us with the metropolitan areas and the growing affluence of America's middle class. Many breadwinners are electing to move their families north from the crime-ridden metropolitan areas, even though they themselves must commute weekends.

Others are suddenly finding themselves sufficiently solvent to own second homes in the North for summer vacations and winter outings.

And land developers, of course, are happy to accommodate them. As a result, wild land that once went begging at tax sales is now being snapped up as soon as it comes on the market, either for speculation or immediate development.

And you can look for more and better land to come on the market in the near future, once the results of the state Tax Commission's re-appraisal of Charlevoix County property is released, probably in late December. It simply will be too expensive for many semi-retired farmers and other holders of vast tracts to pay taxes on their property. And most of them will find willing buyers among downstate land developers.

LAND LIMITED

There was a time, back in the days when northern Michigan was sparsely populated and was losing residents every year, that what we did with our land wasn't too important. A fellow could buy a quarter-section and do with it what he damn well pleased.

But times, unfortunately, are changing. For the first time in the history of the United States, the general public is becoming painfully aware that our supply of land is limited.

We also are coming to realize that our natural resources will stand only so much pressure before they begin to break. We used to tell ourselves that a flowing stream would purify itself in one mile, regardless of the effluent dumped into it. Now we have rivers and streams in southern Michigan that are so badly polluted that they may never be reclaimed.

Charlevoix County is fortunate that its pollution problems are still relatively minor and that the population, although it is still growing at an alarming pace, is not what in was during the heyday of the lumber era.

CONTROLS NEEDED

But the same will not be true by 1980 – or even by 1975 – unless steps are taken immediately to control the land development now in progress and attempt to mitigate the stresses of a growing population on the environment.

Although the word "control" is anathema to most of us, it is something that we must learn to live with if northern Michigan is to be preserved the way we want it to be preserved. We are well into a new era when some individual rights will have to be forfeited for the good of the entire area.

Assuming that growth is inevitable in Charlevoix County, here are some of the things I would like to see happen on the local and state level to make such growth more palatable both to long-time residents and our newcomers alike.

PLAT LAW

– I would like to see the state Legislature enact as soon as possible a law requiring that any developer who subdivides his property into lots of less than five acres to construct a tertiary waste water treatment plant, sewer lines and a municipal water system BEFORE the first lot is sold. Such a law would insure, right from the start, that the new subdivision would not pollute our waters from septic tank drain field seepage.

– I would like to see county and local government officials encourage the placement of subdivisions adjacent to existing communities, such as Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City, where water and sewage treatment facilities already are available. Such development also would tend to preserve vast stretches of wild land between communities.

TAX RELIEF

– I would like to have the state Legislature grant some kind of tax relief to the present holders of wild land and farm land, mitigating the temptation to sell to land developers and creating, for all practical purposes, a "scenery bank" of undeveloped property. Such relief could come in the form of a reduction in taxes, elimination of taxes, or possibly even a stipend to the land owner who does nothing but protect his wild land for others to enjoy.

–I would like to see local government encourage the construction of condominiums and apartment buildings within their corporate limits. Such structures would provide a means of housing great numbers of people on minimum amounts of land. Such development is preferable to the urban sprawl that already is developing in Charlevoix and environs.

RESORT HOTELS

–I would like to see the private sector of the economy investigate the possibility of resurrecting the era of the great resort hotels which made Charlevoix famous as a tourist mecca 50 years ago. Is it absolutely necessary for a fellow to own a 100 by 150-foot lot, complete with A-frame and paved driveway, in order to enjoy northern Michigan two or three weeks a year? I don't think so. The great American dream, at least in Michigan, has been to "own a little place up north." Yet I think families would enjoy their vacations more — at a fraction of the cost — in well-appointed, well-run resort hotels. Like condominiums and apartments, such hotels would concentrate population in one area and act as a deterrent to urban sprawl. Now that winter sports have made Charlevoix County a year-'round vacation center, such hotels, once they were accepted, surely would be occupied to capacity most of the year.

Whether we realize it or not, Charlevoix County is one of the most attractive parcels of real estate in North America. More and more people are going to be heading our way in the next few years, either to spend a few days or a lifetime.

If steps are taken now, we can accommodate the newcomers and still keep northern Michigan as wholesome and attractive as it has always been. But without planning and stringent controls, none of us will want to call Charlevoix County our home in another scant decade or so.

Steamer May Solve Auto Pollution Woes

"Stanley had a better idea," say more and more critics of car exhaust smog.

They say steam cars–thoroughbred descendants of venerable White, Doble, and Stanley steamers–may be the best hope to save the country from thickening, choking air pollution.

They talk hopefully of modern, fast, streamlined steamers costing no more but cheaper to run than today's gasoline-powered autos.

Several prototypes, pioneered by new companies, have won cooperation from the major auto makers and research and development subsidies from government agencies. They are no more like the hissing, beclouded behemoths of the 1920's than is in glass side curtains resemble safety glass windshields.

SMOG'S BLACK MARKS

But engineers say they still have a long way to go to perfect a true space-age steam engine that will incorporate the needed technology just beginning to be worked out.

A Senate Commerce Committee study maintains automobile gasoline engines are the cause of most dirty air in the United States, the National Geographic Society says.

The Committee reported that cars produce 85 percent of smog in cities and 90 percent of all carbon monoxide pollution.

LESS POLLUTION

According to the Committee's study, steam-powered cars have one great advantage: They emit hardly any air pollutants–no more than 3 percent as much carbon monoxide gas and 7 percent as much unburned hydrocarbons as a high-powered gasoline engine spews into the air even when equipped with smog-control devices.

Nevertheless, some of the newly developed steam engines are dirtier than allowed under the lower emission standards that will be required by 1975 under the Muskie Clean Air Law.

Steam engines burn up almost all their fuel, usually cheap kerosene, to boil water or a working fluid into vapor, while gasoline engines produce power by exploding gasoline fumes, and emit quantities of unburned fuel.

In place of old-fashioned boilers, modern steam power plants substitute small coil tubes never likely to blow up. Automotive steam engines match the size of internal combustion engines but are quieter.

Today's steam engines need only about 20 seconds to build up a head of steam and can go 100 miles an hour. They require no transmissions and can be thrown into reverse to help the driver brake.

Steam engines are being tested in a few police squad cars and in trucks and buses. Major auto makers, while still trying to clean up the exhaust from gasoline engines, have contracts with several firms to develop new versions of an engine most thought had gone the way of the rumble seat.

Hospital Board

struction. However, the directors decided to keep the Solarium as is for the use of patients and visitors. It also may be used for patient care when all the other rooms are occupied.

The new coronary care unit will be financed in part by a recent bequest to the hospital totaling about $100,000 by the late John Stoart, a pioneer resident of the Chicago Club, as well as other gifts and bequests.

In other business the board:

–Agreed to contract with Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey for laboratory services, at a savings of $5,013 over similar services offered by Monson Hospital in Traverse City.

–Agreed to have attorney Thomas Pointner up-date the by-laws.

–Noted that the percentage of patient occupancy has risen to 57 percent, compared to an average of 47 percent last year.

Net income for October was $18,515. Total revenue was up 32 percent, while expenses rose only nine or 10 percent, meaning the hospital is operating in the black.

–Discussed impact of the proposed Boyne City Hospital on Charlevoix Hospital operations.

Class News

By Laora Staoblin

The freshman class recently had a bake sale and a record raffle. Both projects were profitable.

The sophomores have ordered their class rings. The rings will arrive in January or February.

Future plans for a rommage sale are being made by the juniors. Their project, selling Rayder buttons, was successful.

Ellsworth

By Anne Osterbaan

Winter must be coming. Last week the little flags to mark the fire hydrants were put up.

Mayor Marvin Wynsma has the proud distinction of being the only one of nine Ellsworth men hunting deer in the Gaylord area to bring home his deer.

Mrs. Cora Ter Haar of Wyoming came Thursday to visit her sister, Kathryn Timmer, who is a patient at Little Traverse.

Newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Jay Essenberg are living in the trailer they purchased from J.C. Smith.

Mrs. Andy Klooster (Betty Drenth) underwent major surgery at Ferguson Hospital in Grand Rapids Nov. 18.

Mrs. Carol Higbee and sons of Grand Rapids came Friday night to visit her mother, Mrs. Gerrit Rubingh, and also called on her father in Meadow Brook.

Obituaries

DeGroot

Funeral for Anna DeGroot, 62, former local resident, will be held at the Atwood Reformed church at 2 p.m. Dec. 2. The Rev. Stanley Boltman will officiate. Burial will be in Atwood cemetery.

She died Sunday at a hospital in Kalamazoo.

Born at Ellsworth Nov. 4, 1909, Miss DeGroot had gone to Grand Rapids to make her home more than 30 years. She was a member of the Reformed Church.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Flora DeGroot and a sister, Mrs. Jacob Essenberg, both of Grand Rapids.

The body is at the Hastings Funeral Home where friends may call.

Timmer

Funeral for Kathryn E. Timmer, 58, who died Sunday at Little Traverse Hospital where she had been a patient for two weeks, will be held at the Christian Reformed Church at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Robert Greydanus will officiate. Burial will be in the Ellsworth cemetery.

Born in Banks Township, Jan. 29, 1913, Kathryn Elizabeth Timmer attended the Mitchell school and graduated from Ellsworth High School. She and her brother, Jacob, lived with their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Harm J. Timmer and resided on the family farm until August when they moved to Ellsworth. She was employed at the Morweld Steel Corp. from 1960 until retiring in February because of failing health.

She was a member of the Christian Reformed Church, had been a Sunday School teacher for 34 years and had been president of the Girls' Society and the Junior Ladies Aid of the church.

Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. J.B. Oosterbaan of Ellsworth and Mrs. Richard Oosterbaan and Mrs. Carl RerHaar of Grand Rapids; two brothers, Jacob of Ellsworth and Ben of Grand Rapids and two sisters-in-law, Mrs. John Timmer, of Ellsworth and Mrs. Maggie Wold of Zeeland.

Dawson

Funeral for Rollin Dawson, 69, retired General Motors designing engineer, was held at the East Jordan United Methodist Church Monday. The Rev. Lester Priest officiated and burial was in Sunset Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Dawson died Saturday at Charlevoix Hospital where he had been a patient for five days.

Born at Central Lake April 18, 1902, Mr. Dawson moved to Boyne City with his family in 1908 and to Muskegon in 1918. Later he went to Detroit where he attended the Detroit Technological Institute. He joined General Motors Corp. and at the time of his retirement as a design engineer. In 1966 he moved from Detroit to a year-around home on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix in South Arm Township.

He was an active member of the United Methodist Church in East Jordan, chairman of the Board of Ministries; secretary-treasurer of the Methodist Men's group, leader of an adult Sunday School class and head usher. He also was a life member of Lovell-Moore lodge No. 182, F. & A.M., the American Society of Design Engineers, the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association, and Michigan Tip of the Mitt Artists and Craftsmen.

Surviving are his wife, the former Viola Knoflicek whom he married at Crown Point, Ind., in 1927; a daughter, Mrs. Charles McGuigan of Detroit; three grandchildren and three brothers, Victor, Dale and Ralph, all of Muskegon.

Emrey

Word has been received of the death of Miss Grace R. Emrey, 93, a former Charlevoix resident, on Nov. 24 at the Brown Home in Grand Rapids. Services were held at the Metcalf Mortuary and interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

Born in Frankfort, Mich., Aug. 21, 1878, Miss Emrey is survived by a niece, Mrs. Thomas (Ruth) Finucan of the Virgin Islands and two nephews, William G. Emrey of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Earl B. Emrey jr. of Albany, Ga.

Cummings Elected

Pavilion donated to Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago. The Pavilion stands as a memorial to his first wife who died in 1952.

The 11-story Cummings Life Science Center currently under construction at the University of Chicago is further evidence of his continuing interest in medicine and science. In appreciation of his gift, Mount Sinai will give his name to the Medical Center's central plaza serving both the Hospital and the School of Medicine. In addition, there is at Mount Sinai the previously designated Nathan Cummings Basic Sciences Building.

A connoisseur of art and a passionate collector, Cummings has amassed what is generally recognized as a significant collection, a large portion of which is housed in his Waldorf Towers apartment where he lives with his present wife, the former Joanne Ruth Toor of New York City.

He has contributed a Peruvian Ceramic Collection to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

'Condo' Planned at Foot of Dixon

Soup To Nuts

Dr. Bob Martin is wondering what happened last May. He has 11 expectant moms scheduled for delivery in February, most of them from mid-February until the end of the month. Never before in his long medical career has he had so many babies due to arrive in a single month. And February is the shortest month of the year.

Charlevoix's problems make news elsewhere, judging from a clipping from the Jackson Citizen Patriot sent by Mrs. Chuck (Dina) England, a former resident. The story had to do with the recent imbroglio involving Mayor Essenburg and City Superintendent Tom Hanna. "To my knowledge," Dina writes, "Mr. Hanna did and is doing his job well, and wanted to serve Charlevoix enough to leave his previous job."

School Re-Opens West Gate for Diesel Fuel Sales

The South Gate service station is once again selling diesel fuel and other Arco products, according to Robert Cook, vocational education director for the Charlevoix School District.

Cook said the station, which has been leased by the school for the teaching of auto mechanics and small engine repair, will re-open as a service station this week under the management of Gerald Sandahl.

Sandahl has been hired under a federal grant and will work with co-op students under cook's direction.

South Gate traditionally has been Charlevoix's only diesel fuel outlet.

Cook says the station will serve as "a practical experience laboratory for distributive training in the petroleum business.

SAM SUPERNAW

Business, Tax Office Now Open

Sam Supernaw, 29, has opened the Charlevoix Accounting and Tax Service, with offices in his home at 415 Prospect-st., Charlevoix.

Formerly associated with Hill, Devlin & Co., CPA's, in Petoskey, Supernaw says he is specializing in accounting systems and taxes-personal sole proprietorships, partnerships and corporations.

A native of Charlevoix, Supernaw graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1961. He received his B.A. degree from Michigan State University in 1966, with a major in accounting.

He spent four years with Price Waterhouse and Co., a national CPA firm, working in both Detroit and San Francisco. For two years he was on the audit staff, reviewing the financial positions of companies of various sizes. He spent an equal amount of time on the tax staff, working in all areas of taxes.

During his two years with Hill, Devlin and Co. he worked in all areas of accounting and taxes, with special emphasis on smaller business, including bookkeeping systems, financial statements, sales and payroll taxes and tax return preparation.

Supernaw and his wife, Mary Lou, have two children, Jon, 7, and Sam jr., 5.

This past summer Supernaw was appointed to the Charlevoix City Council by Mayor Andrew Essenburg to fill the First Ward seat vacated by Jack Mol upon his appointment as chief of police.

Deadline

Deadline for filing petitions for city government offices in the February primary is 4 p.m. Jan. 3, according to the City Clerk's office.

Candidates for mayor, city clerk and city treasurer must have the names of not less than 11 or more than 44 residents on their petitions.

Candidates for First Ward alderman must have from three to 12 signatures and candidates for aldermen in the Second and Third Wards must have from four to 16 signatures.

Love Letters to Santa

As in other years, Santa Claus is forwarding the letters he receives from Charlevoix area youngsters to the Courier. Here's the first batch just received from the North Pole:

Dear Santa Claus:

This is what I want for Christmas:

Jeep, gas station, skis, ski boots, ski poles, balloons, candy, cookies, camera, stuffed animal, matchbox toys, books, clothes.

My mama wants a baby girl on Feb. 8th. My daddy doesn't care. I am two years old and my daddy is writing this for me. I am a good boy.

Love,

MR. AND MRS. Fred Bagnasco (left) and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bourke discuss plans for the Woodshed, which they have purchased from Dick Wood. The transaction was handled by Jerry Lesher, Inc., Realtors.

Woodshed Is Purchased By Two Detroit Couples

The Woodshed on Petoskey-rd. has been sold by Dick Wood to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bagnasco and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund (Jack) Bourke, former Detroit residents.

Details of the transaction and transfer of the liquor license are expected to be completed this week.

The Bagnascos and their eight children have moved north to Gaylord. The Bourkes and their four are living at 210 E. Hurlbut in Charlevoix.

The two couples first became acquainted several years ago when they were parishioners of St. Marys of Redford. They worked together preparing dinners for church fairs and shared a common desire to leave the city and buy a business "up north."

Bagnasco is a former carpet layer and Bourke was an elevator inspector for the city of Detroit.

The Woodshed was built 42 years ago as a roller skating arena. The white maple floor is reputed to be one of largest and best dance floors in northern Michigan.

It was converted to a tavern called the Moonlight Gardens several years ago and was purchased by Wood in 1965. Wood spent $76,000 remodeling the building four years ago, including new exterior siding, a new roof, new heating plant and new wiring.

Recent improvements include relocation of the bar and paving of the parking lot.

State OK's Beaver Island School Notes

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, chairman of the Municipal Finance Commission, announced today that the Commission approved $15,000.00 of Tax Anticipation Notes - Operating - Current Fiscal Year for Beaver Island Community School, County of Charlevoix.

Attorney General Kelley said, "The proceeds will be used to operate the school district. These notes are to be dated Dec. 1, 1971, are to be due April 1, 1972, and will carry a maximum interest rate of 6 percent per annum."

Other members of the Municipal Finance Commission are Allison Green, State Treasurer; and John W. Porter, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Hess Asks Waiver Of Height Limit

The era of the condominium has arrived in Charlevoix.

The City Council was presented plans Monday night for a 56-unit "condo" planned for the foot of Dixon-ave. by Ralph Hess, owner of Hess Furniture.

Hess, who was accompanied by representatives of Daverman Associates, architects, of Petoskey, presented his plans to the council because he will need a waiver of the present 35-foot building height restriction.

His proposed condominium complex will rise 49 feet above street level, in an area bordered by Dixon-ave. on the south and Michigan-ave. on the east, including the site of the former Holiday Beach Hotel.

"Because of the cost of the land, this is the only feasible way it can be put to use," he told the council.

The project includes a recreation plaza and swimming pool on the Lake Michigan side.

The portion closest to Dixon-ave. will be built on stilts, permitting a view of Lake Michigan under the building.

The council agreed to take Hess' waiver request under consideration.

A second condominium project — this one at the foot of Prospect-st. on Round Lake — was greeted with less enthusiasm.

James S. Scott, president of the Scott Building Co. of DeWitt, wrote the council asking what he must do to get permission to construct a 10-unit condominium west of Prospect-st. below the Episcopal Church vicarage. He estimated the cost of the project at $650,000.

Along with Scott's letter came a recommendation by the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission pointing out that condominiums are not recommended for the north side of Round Lake in the master plan and that the land is presently zoned R-1 and would have to be changed to R-2.

Five years ago, a similar project on the same site was proposed by the late James Davis. It was turned down by the council because of zoning restrictions.

Charlevoix's first condominium is presently under construction on the south side of Round Lake near Ward's Boat Livery by Timberlee, Inc.

In other business the council:

–Heard a request by Bob Neff that the city supply docks for charter boats on Round Lake, preferable in the area of the old laundry docks. He said the Great Lakes Charter Service, which he represents, has been a boon to the city.

–Heard a request by George Robbins of U.S. Steel and Frank Sager of Central Radio Telegraph Co. of Rogers City for permission to construct a marine radio tower atop Mt. McSauba between the present cable TV tower and the ski lift house. They said the tower would be from 60 to 80 feet

Council Ups Prize Money For Lights

The City Council Monday night agreed to up the ante in Charlevoix's annual Christmas home lighting contest.

Prizes of $20, $15 and $10 will be awarded in each of the city's three wards for the best-decorated homes. A prize of $15 will go to the home with the most attractive decorations using city power outside city limits.

Winners will be selected the week of Dec. 20 by Mrs. Andrew Essenberg, Mrs. Clifton Sundberg, Mrs. Sam Supernaw and Mrs. Robert Gill, wives of city officials.

The council agreed to increase the prize money by $5 in each category.

Crash Kills Ellsworth Couple

Funeral services were held Friday at the Atwood Christian Reformed Church for Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pott of rural Ellsworth who were killed instantly Nov. 30 in a two car crash on Deer Lake-rd. between East Jordan and Boyne City.

The Rev. Stanley Bultman officiated at the services and burial was in the Atwood Cemetery.

The deaths marked Charlevoix County's fifth and sixth traffic fatalities of 1971.

According to the Sheriff's Department, Mr. and Mrs. Pott were heading west on Deer Lake-rd. in their VW stationwagon when an oncoming vehicle driven by Joseph Henry Prevo, 16, of East Jordan apparently went out of control on a patch of ice and slid into the oncoming Pott car.

A passenger in the Prevo car, Frank Gibbard, 15, son of Mrs. Rita Gibbard of East Jordan, was taken by ambulance to Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey where he remains in intensive care this week with a broken pelvis and other injuries.

Another passenger, William H. Murray, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Murray, was admitted to Charlevoix Hospital for treatment. Prevo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Prevo, was treated at Charlevoix Hospital and released.

The East Jordan Fire Department's emergency squad and East Jordan police assisted sheriff's deputies at the scene of the accident.

The Potts apparently were returning to Ellsworth from Boyne Falls at the time of the accident. Mr. Pott was employed as a driver for Boyne Falls Log Homes.

Mr. Pott, 57, was born in Kent County Jan. 1, 1914. Mrs. Pott, the former Bertha Douma, was born in Kent County July 31, 1917. They were married at Moline, Allegan County, and lived there and in Kent County before moving to Antrim County in 1947.

Both were active members of the Atwood Christian Reformed Church.

They are survived by two sons, Carl E. of R-1, Ellsworth, and Milton D. at home; three daughters, Mrs. David (Karen) Kass and Mrs. Robert (Shirley) Hoekstra of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Ronald (Elaine) DeYoung of Freeman, S.D., and eight grandchildren.

Mr. Pott is also survived by his father, Eisse Pott of Grand Rapids; five brothers, the Rev. J. Jerry of Mexico City, Arnold of Charlevoix, Herm of Grand Rapids, Case and Ed of Caledonia and three sisters, Mrs. Peter Rozema, Mrs. Hermen Rozema and Mrs. Jerry Hamin, all of Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Pott is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Warner Alofs of Holland and Mrs. Bert Miedema of Grand Rapids and five brothers, James, Ben, Harold and Robert of Grand Rapids and Al of Hamilton.

COAST GUARDSMEN from the Charlevoix station fish oil-soaked straw from Round Lake following a spill last week. Source of the slick, which appeared to be diesel fuel and crude oil, is under investigation by the Coast Guard.

MR. AND MRS. Peter Pott of rural Ellsworth were killed in a two-car crash on Deer Lake-rd last Tuesday afternoon. The Potts' VW station wagon is at the far right. Three Ellsworth youths also were injured in the crash.

Mrs. Keith Michael Miel

Sherri Lynn Gebeau Wed in CMU Rites

University Chapel on the campus of Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, was the setting for the Nov. 27 wedding of Sherri Lynn Gebeau and Keith Michael Miel.

Sherri is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Gebeau, Rogers City, and Keith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley H. Miel, Vestaburg, Mich. Fall arrangements of yellow starburst mums and orange sweetheart roses graced the front of the chapel.

Performing the three thirty o'clock ceremony was the Rev. Frederick T. Steen of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Rogers City, and Phil Frisbie, uncle of the groom, was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, Sherri wore a floor length Regency gown of candlelight quipure lace with val lace giving a tiered effect. The empire waist was encircled with candlelight satin forming a flat bow in the back with streamers to the hem. The gown had a high neckline and Juliet sleeves. To complete her attire she wore a cathedral veil of English illusion edged with matching lace. Her colonial bouquet was of ivory and orange sweetheart roses, shattered yellow carnations and natural statice.

Preceding the bride and her father down the aisle were matron of honor, Mrs. William Campbell of Big Rapids, sister of the groom, and bridesmaids Kathryn Gildart of Midland, and Camille DuLac of Rogers City.

Their matching gowns were fashioned with candlelight cluny lace bodices with high necklines and Bishop sleeves. The tiered skirts were of French crepe in candlelight, apricot and sun orange. To complete their attire they wore sun orange picture hats with apricot velvet ribbons. They each carried natural wicker baskets filled with yellow and bronze mums, orange sweetheart roses and wheat.

Performing the duties of best man was Dexter Carrick of Vestaburg and groomsmen were James Harrington of Alma and Steven Keeler of Vestaburg. Seating the guests were William Campbell of Big Rapids, brother-in-law of the groom, and Frederick Vaughn of Vestaburg.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Gebeau chose an ensemble of apricot silk and worsted. The coat was a redingote effect over a skimmer dress with matching Venice lace. Matching accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses complimented her attire. The bridegroom's mother chose a mint green polyester ensemble. The coat was enhanced with Venice lace accents and she wore matching accessories. A corsage of yellow sweetheart roses completed her attire.

Corsages of white shattered carnations were presented to the grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Harry Gebeau of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Loyd Frisbie of Stanton, grandmother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception and buffet dinner for 100 guests was held at The Embers in Mount Pleasant. Presiding at the guest book was Laura Grigg of Mount Pleasant and assisting hosts and hostesses were the bride's uncles and aunts, Mr. and Mrs. Claire Martin of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelley of Bay City.

After a wedding trip to southern Michigan the newlyweds will make their home in Edmore where the bride is on the faculty of the Montabella Community Schools. The bridegroom is employed by the Michigan State Highway Department.

Prenuptial parties included the rehearsal dinner hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Holiday Inn in Mount Pleasant, a personal shower in Rogers City given by Mrs. David Ikens and a miscellaneous shower in Vestaburg given by the matron of honor.

Tri-County Nurses Plan Dinner-Dance

The Northern Tri-County District Nurses Association will hold a Christmas party Thursday, Dec. 16, at Chimney Corners, according to Pat Raymun, general chairman.

Miss Marlena Robinson is in charge of entertainment, Miss Mary Ann (Rusty) Specht is handling tickets, and Mrs. Edward (Rosemary) Corradi is committee coordinator.

The evening will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner and dancing to the music of the Joe Hanna Trio.

For reservations and tickets, call 347-6695 or 547-9042. Reservations should be made by Dec. 10.

The dinner-dance will take the place of the regular December meeting.

Make two people happy with an unexpected call.

No need to wait for a special occasion—when a card or call is almost expected. Break the pattern by calling long distance unexpectedly, on an un-birthday, for instance. Life's full of pleasant little surprises. Be one of them.

Remember, there's no quicker, more personal way to say "Hello!" to someone far away than by phone. Let them know you're thinking of them, that you care.

Don't hesitate to call!

Insulation. It's like a sweater for your home.

Just like a sweater keeps you warm, insulation keeps heat in your home. And saves you Gas and money.

Many homes today still don't have the proper amount of insulation for maximum comfort and economy. But chances are you can install adequate insulation in your attic, yourself, at moderate cost. And your attic is where the greatest escape of heated air takes place.

This is just one of many Gas and money-saving ideas you'll find in Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's free booklet, "The Great Escape." By checking and correcting the ways heat escapes from your home, you can make Gas (already one of today's big bargains) an even bigger bargain.

Fill out the coupon, and learn more ways to foil the great escape—and save Gas and money, too. Or pick up a copy of "The Great Escape" at any of our offices. It's free.

Engagements

MR. AND MRS. Neal Veenendall, 2624 Central-ave., Wyoming, Mich., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Lou, to Steven George Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Smith, Boyne City-rd., Charlevoix. The wedding will be Jan. 22 at the Wyoming Park United Methodist Church, Wyoming. The bride elect is a 1971 graduate of Western Michigan University and a 1967 graduate of Wyoming High School. Her fiance is a 1971 graduate of Western Michigan University and a 1967 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Thayer Meddaugh Wed at Manitowoc

Thayer J. Meddaugh became the bride of Guy Brent Schweigert in candlelight ceremonies Dec. 4, at First Lutheran Church Chapel in Manitowoc, Wisc., the Rev. Theodore Vinger officiated.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Meddaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Schweigert of Manitowoc.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of ivory taffeta with chapel length veil. She carried a bouquet of soft pink miniature carnations with varigated holly and leather fern, lightly glittered with gold.

Maid of honor was Patti L. Olson of Gladstone, Mich. She wore a floor length plum colored gown. Her casual bouquet was baby blue eucalyptus loops and purple varigated carnations.

Hugo Dennis Mattonen of Escanaba, Mich., was best man.

Brothers of the bride and groom, Todd J. Meddaugh and Todd Schweigert, were ushers.

A reception was held afterward at the home of the brides parents.

The bride is the great-granddaughter of Mr. Fred Trimble of Charlevoix.

Shore Erosion Worsens

Great Lakes shore erosion has increased drastically since last spring, according to a staff report to the Michigan Water Resources Commission at its monthly meeting Nov. 18-19.

Water Development Services Division Chief William Marks used slides taken during recent aerial surveillance to point out the latest desperate attempts of Lake Michigan property owners to prevent shoreline cottages from sliding into the lake with costly, but futile, means of holding back the damaging waves.

Throwing hundreds of automobile tires down the sides of dunes is just one attempt to save shoreland property, Marks said. The tires are swept out into the water, threatening the water quality of the lake, he added.

The Commission directed its staff to arrange public meetings in shoreline townships to advise and promote local government projects for better protection of Michigan's valuable dunes property.

CHS, TC Debaters Are Tied

By Vicki Skelton

The Charlevoix High School Debating Team traveled to North Central Michigan College in Petoskey Dec. 2, to participate in a League Debate.

Three debaters from Charlevoix won both of their two scheduled rounds. Jeanne Belty and Steve Kantola, debating negative, triumphed over Alpena. Lisa Wasoski and Steve Kantola, debating affirmative, defeated the team from Onaway.

The Charlevoix team was previously tied for first place in the League with Alpena and Traverse City, each of the teams carrying three wins and one loss. The Alpena team is now in second place, while Charlevoix and Traverse City are still tied for first.

League competition is composed of northern Michigan high school teams. It was created by the Michigan High School Forensics Association to help new debaters gain experience and to become acquainted with standard procedures before competing in district debates.

City Council

November 22, 1971
8:00 p.m.

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Essenburg presiding. Aldermen present: Klooster, Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, and Gill. Absent: None.

The minutes of the November 8, 1971 meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes book, with a correction being made regarding the date set for the Special Meeting from November 22, 1971 to November 15, 1971.

Mr. Hanna stated that his answers to the Mayor's complaints were signed before a Notary and that a sealed copy was delivered to the City Clerk on November 13, 1971. He then proceeded to read his response to the thirteen complaints of November 8, 1971.

The matter was then opened for discussion and when no comments were made the Mayor expressed his feeling that the City Administrator's presentation was well done, but that he still wanted his resignation.

The following Resolution was offered by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Westenbroek.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the Mayor did on November 8, 1971 file under oath a list of complaints against the City Administrator; and

WHEREAS, the Mayor did subsequently suspend the City Administrator for one week with pay; and

WHEREAS, the City Administrator did answer said list of complaints to the satisfaction of this Council; therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, that this Council grant the City Administrator, Mr. Hanna, a vote of confidence in support of his position in this matter.

The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Klooster, Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, and Gill. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council recessed for five minutes.

The Council resumed its meeting and Mayor Essenburg expressed his regrets for the disruption his charges had made and hoped that the Council could still function as a unit for the good of Charlevoix.

City Attorney Hoffman read an opinion from Louis C. Andrews, Jr. dated November 10, 1971 regarding the operating of a City Manager system in conjunction with the Fourth Class Cities Act.

Alderman Boss read a letter from Mrs. Shirley Morales, regarding "Bachelors Quarters" on Norwood Road, in which she stated her desire to have the building torn down. The City Attorney was requested to check into the legal aspects of this and report back at the next meeting.

Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Klooste that a loan of $68,000. be made from the Electric Fund to the Public Improvement Fund. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Klooster, Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, and Gill. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Alderman Gill offered the following resolution, supported by Alderman Supernaw.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, Jerry L. Drost and Patricia A. Drost, his wife, are owners of Lot 44 and the South one-half of Lot 45 of Eaton's Addition to the City of Charlevoix and they wish to divide the two lots into three equal parcels.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That Lot 44 and the South one-half of Lot 45 of Eaton's Addition to the City of Charlevoix shall be divided into three parcels in accordance with the sketch attached hereto and made a part hereof, the description being as follows, to-wit:

"The two lots being divided into three equal descriptions of 144 feet by 88 feet."

"Lot No. 1 being the West 88 feet of Lot No. 44."

"Lot No. 2 being the East 44 feet of Lot No. 44 and the West 44 feet of the South one-half of Lot No. 45."

"Lot No. 3 being the East 88 feet of the South one-half of lot No. 45."

Resolution adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Supernaw, Gill, Klooster, Sundberg, Westenbroek, and Boss. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Alderman Westenbroek commented on the strain the Council has been under and now that action has been taken he hoped that they could go forward with harmony. Council should have a hard look at our type of government under the Fourth Class Cities Act which is antiquated. He stated that his actions in no way reflect on the Mayor. For the best interest of the City, the Council must work together and everyone must bend a little. He asked that a transcript of the Mayor's charges and the City Administrator's rebuttal be made a part of the minutes.

Alderman Supernaw reported that citizens had pointed out to him that the former school building on Petoskey and Burns is becoming a health hazard and in a state of disrepair. He drew attention to the Fourth Class Cities Act (Chapter 14, page 47, paragraphs 191 and 192.) The City Administrator was asked to check the old School property and the Meech Street property.

Attorney Hoffman stated that he felt in view of what had occurred regarding the City Administrator that Charlevoix needs a more progressive form of government.

Legally, a different type of government.

Alderman Gill expressed his concern over the Mayor's sworn statement regarding City vehicles and suggested that the City solicit the services of the State Police to inspect each vehicle. With regard to the Wharf Condominium he asked that the City Attorney investigate and secure the approval of the Corporation and Securities Commission. He presented and moved for adoption the following removal from office Ordinance which was drafted in accordance with the Fourth Class Cities Act; page 33, paragraph 88.17.

The Ordinance was tabled for further review by the Council and the City Attorney was requested to determine if a similar Ordinance was on the records.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $280,080.98 find them correct and recommend they be allowed. Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Supernaw that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Klooster, Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, and Gill. Nays: None. Absent: None.

On Motion the Council adjourned.

Ida A. Heise, City Clerk

BOARD OF APPEALS

November 22, 1971
9:50 p.m.

The Board of Appeals met on the above date and time with Mayor Essenburg presiding. Present: Aldermen Klooster, Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, and Gill. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Westenbroek and supported by Alderman Supernaw that the Board of Appeals waiver the ten foot side yard setback of the Zoning Ordinance to permit Jacob Brock to construct a garage to within six feet of the side yard boundary on his property at 117 E. Lincoln as requested in his application. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Klooster, Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Buss, and Gill. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Moved by Alderman Gill and supported by Alderman Klooster that the Board of Appeals waiver the twenty-five foot rear setback restrictions of the Zoning Ordinance to permit Robert Smith to construct a garage within six feet of the existing rear yard property line at 224 Antrim as requested in his application. Motion adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Klooster, Sundberg, Supernaw, Westenbroek, Boss, and Gill. Nays: None. Absent: None.

On Motion the Board of Appeals adjourned.

Ida A. Heise, City Clerk

Library notes

There's always time for a good new fast-paced book even with Santa Claus pulling on his boots and getting ready for his rooftop ride around the world.

Any new book by Paul Gallico is exciting news and "The Zoo Gang" – his latest – offers the most delightful entertainment in years. The time is the present, the setting is the Riviera, and the subject is crime. A jewel heist, a kidnapping, and the theft of a priceless art collection are among the capers that disturb the glamorous, peaceful resort. The crimes are either solved – or committed by five men who, 30 years ago, banded together in the underworld resistance to make life miserable for the enemy in the south of France. Their cover names were The Tiger, The Elephant, The Leopard, The Wolf and the Fox. To the harassed Germans they were naturally known as the Zoo Gang. The book is divided into four chapters, each one describing one of their completely impossible escapades. It is so much fun to read that we will recommend it to everyone who comes in the library.

"The Condor Passes" was written by Shirley Grau. It is her first new novel since her Pulitzer Prize winning story of seven years ago. The story takes place in New Orleans, where the author lives, and it deals with the ruthless accumulation, spending and ultimate disposal of a great family fortune. It is one of the finest novels to appear in a long time. If "Keeper of the House" won the Pulitzer Prize, this new book is almost certain to win one too.

"Action Priest" is the story of Father Joe Lauro. It is well titled, because the book is a thrilling and exciting and action-filled account of an extraordinary human being – a bomber pilot in World War II, and one of the most highly decorated, who became a dedicated missionary priest. Born on the South Side of Chicago in 1912, Joe Lauro had only one ambition – to become a priest. In 1940, when all avenues to the priesthood continued to remain closed to him, he enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force and given command of a Wellington Bomber. He flew 58 missions over Sicily and Italy. Later he transferred to the American Air Force and commanded a B-24. In all, he flew over 80 missions before he was returned to the U.S. Throughout the war, he remained steadfast in his original ambition, and his dream came true in 1949 when he was finally ordained.

Father Lauro is a man of action, a doer. He once served mass in shoes and trousers caked with cement showing below his cassock. This unusual autobiography is rich in narrative values, told with modesty and great humanity. It is a very important and worthwhile book to read.

Magistrate's Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Magistrate John Connolly:

Rodney Pitman, 20, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for disregarding a stop sign.

James Elzinga, 36, Charlevoix, was assessed $15 for driving left of center. An accident resulted.

Melvin Napont, 25, St. James, was assessed $50 for shining deer.

Area Vocalists Are Invited to Sing 'Messiah'

Charlevoix area singers are invited to take part in the Little Traverse Community Choir's annual presentation of the Christmas portion of Handel's Messiah on Sunday, Dec. 19, in the Petoskey Junior High Auditorium.

Two rehearsals will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 8 and Wednesday, Dec. 15, at 8:30 p.m. in Petoskey's First Presbyterian Church.

The choir will be directed by Gig Stewart and will feature professional vocalists and a full orchestra.

Singers who have their own copies of the Messiah should bring them along to rehearsal.

For further information, contact Mrs. Ned Tanner at 347-8623.

Church to Host Holiness Assn.

The Charlevoix-Antrim Holiness Association will meet Tuesday, Dec. 14, at Pleasant Valley Free Methodist Church near East Jordan.

The Rev. Jack Cooper is scheduled to speak at 3:30 p.m., followed by a pot-luck supper at 5:30 p.m.

The public service will be at 7:30 p.m. with the Rev. Lowell Harris preaching, according to Mrs. Jane Fiedler, secretary.

JAYVEE Jerry Skippergosh prepares to sink another basket at game with Onaway Saturday night. Behind him is Clayton Jones, No. 44. The junior Rayders won, 58 to 46.

Charlevoix's Junior Varsity squad fell to St. Ignace Friday 65 to 53, but came back Saturday with a victory over Onaway, 58 to 46.

St. Ignace led from the start, with quarter scores of 16-11, 26-25, 44-42 and 65-53.

Leading scorer was Jerry Skippergosh with 22 (9 and 4), followed by Steve McClellan 16 (5 and 6), Clayton Jones 10 (4 and 2), and Jim Potter 5 (1 and 3).

Scoring for St. Ignace were Grondin, 19; Grogan, 17; Russell, 12; Krause, 8; Clauss, Ruegg, Tamlyn, Tim Huskey, 2 each; and Tom Huskey, 1.

In the game against Onaway, the Jayvee squad led at the end of the first two quarters, 19 to 11 and 28 to 25, but fell behind in the third, 40 to 37. However the Rayders came back in the finale with 21 points, compared to six for the junior Cardinals for a final tally of 58-46.

Top man for the Rayders again was Jerry Skippergosh with 25 (10 and 5), followed by Randy Faust, 10 (5 fieldgoals), Steve McClellan, 9 (2 fieldgoals), and Pat Plumm 2 (1 fieldgoal).

Scoring for Onaway were G. Miller, 14; Minier, 10; Freel, 8; Bauman, 7; Larson, 3; and Bemins and Visner, 2 each.

The Jayvees met Boyne City at Charlevoix Tuesday night and will tangla with Petoskey at Petoskey Friday night.

Plan Party

Three Charlevoix 4-H groups--The Charlevoix Ranglers, the Barnard 4-Her's and the County Ramblers--will hold a family Christmas party at the Elementary School Sunday, Dec. 12, from 2 until 5 p.m.

The program includes a dinner, distribution of presents by Santa Claus and movies.

Rayders Trounce Cardinals, Lose to Saints

To Meet Northmen This Friday Night

The Charlevoix Red Rayders won one and lost one over the weekend.

On Friday, the cagers traveled to St. Ignace and almost had that one in the bag when the Saints put on a 24-point scoring spree to win 71 to 65.

On Saturday, the Onaway Cardinals came to Charlevoix only to lose by 20 points — 63 to 43.

Bill Carey was the leading Rayder scorer in both games, ringing up 25 points against St. Ignace and 24 against Onaway, for a total of 49 over the weekend.

Combined with the 32 points he tallied against Rogers City in the opener, Carey has a total of 81 for the season, or an average of 27 a game.

Although Charlevoix trailed by four points at the end of the first quarter of the St. Ignace game, 14-10, the Rayders came back strong in the second quarter with 20, for a halftime lead of 30-28.

In the third period, the cagers scored 18 points, compared to 9 for the Saints, still maintaining a slim edge, 49-48.

However, in the final stanza the Rayders fell to only 17 while the Saints went over the top with 24.

Carey's 25 points were scored on 11 fieldgoals and three freethrows. Trailing him were Larry Potter 17 (7 and 3), Roger Crain 10 (4 and 2), Jerry Pease 9 (3 and 3), and Ned Henley and Dave Swanson, 2 each on fieldgoals.

High man for St. Ignace was Sminkowitz with 20 (7 and 6), followed by Powers 15 (7 and 1), Lester 14 (7 fieldgoals), LaTour 12, (3 and 6) and Donovan 10 (five fieldgoals.)

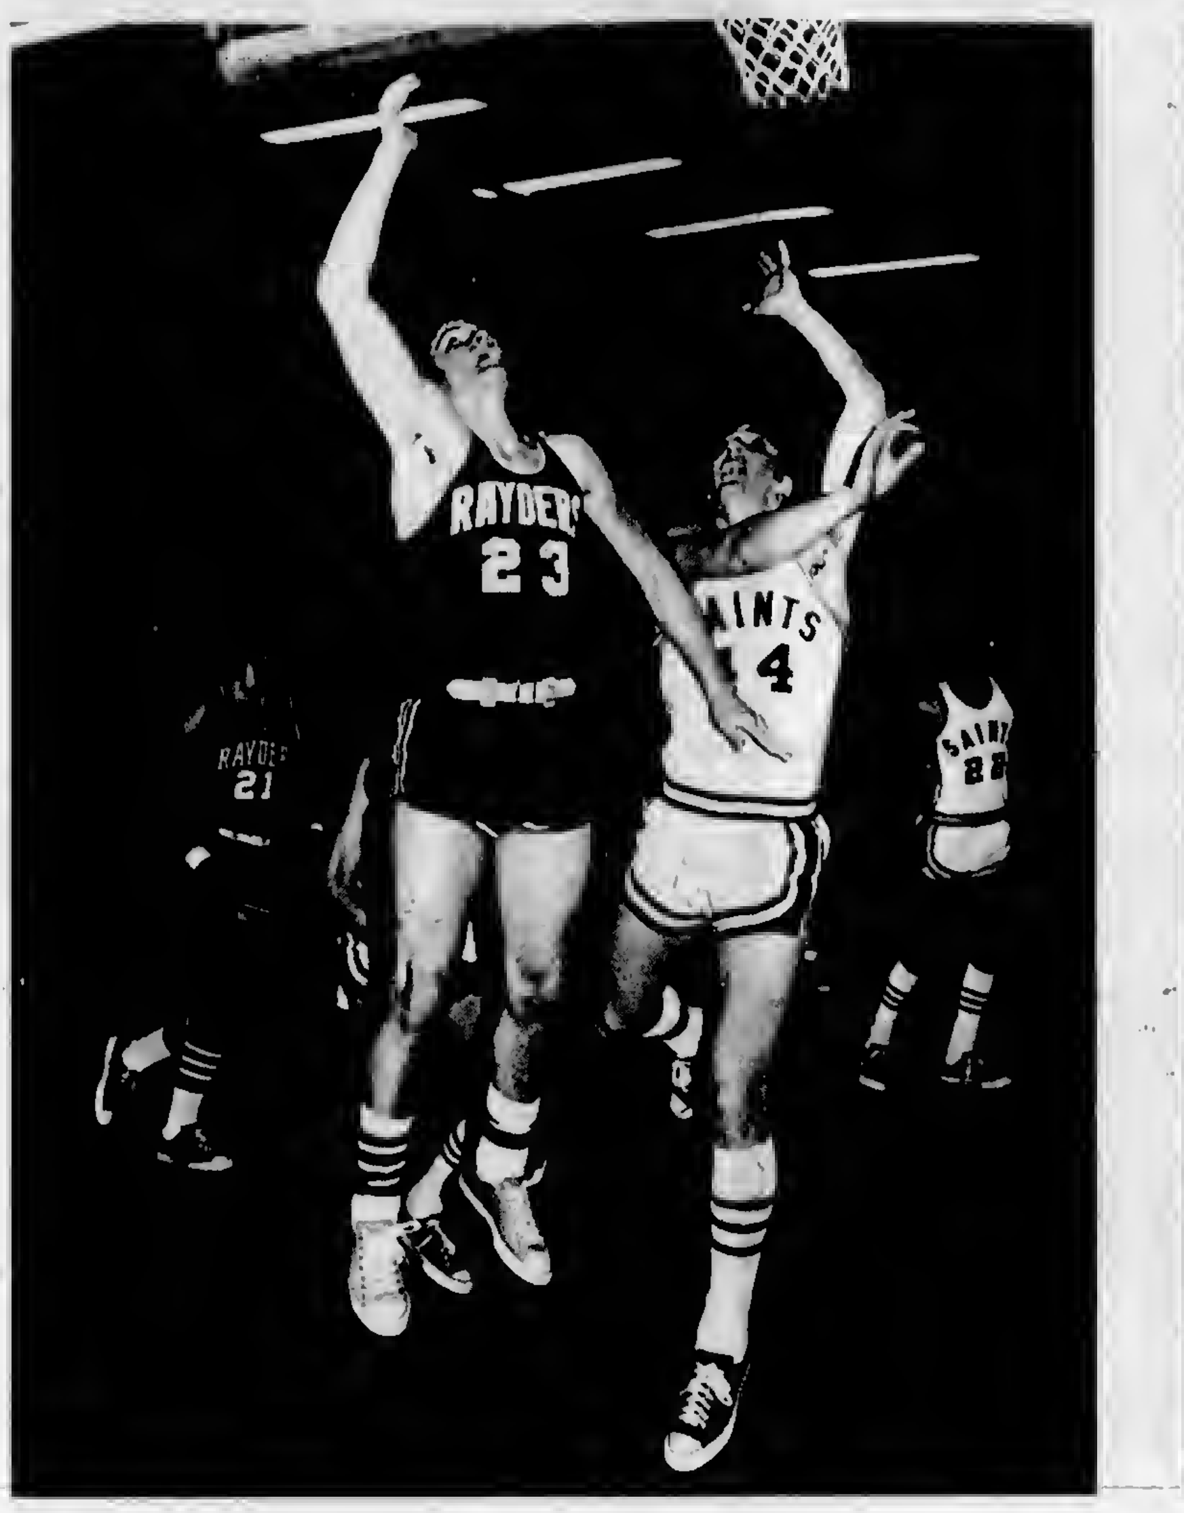
Against Onaway, the Rayders led from the beginning, with quarter scores of 14-9, 36-24, 53-30 and 63-43.

Carey scored his 24 points on 7 fieldgoals and 10 freethrows. Following were Potter 12 (5 and 2), Roger Crain 8 (4 fieldgoals), Ned Henley and Jerry Pease 4 each on fieldgoals, Tim Carey 4 (1 and 2), Dave Swanson, Dale Boss and James Ance 2 each on fieldgoals and Lee Simpson, 1 on a freethrow.

For Onaway, high man was Jim Holmes with 15 on six fieldgoals and three freethrows, the only player to go into two figures in the scoring column. Jeff Stevenson had nine (4 and 1), Bruce Szymoniak 7 (2 and 3), Don Grainger 4 (1 and 2) Doug Paulus and Greg Larson 2 each on freethrows and Jon Nelson 1 on a freethrow.

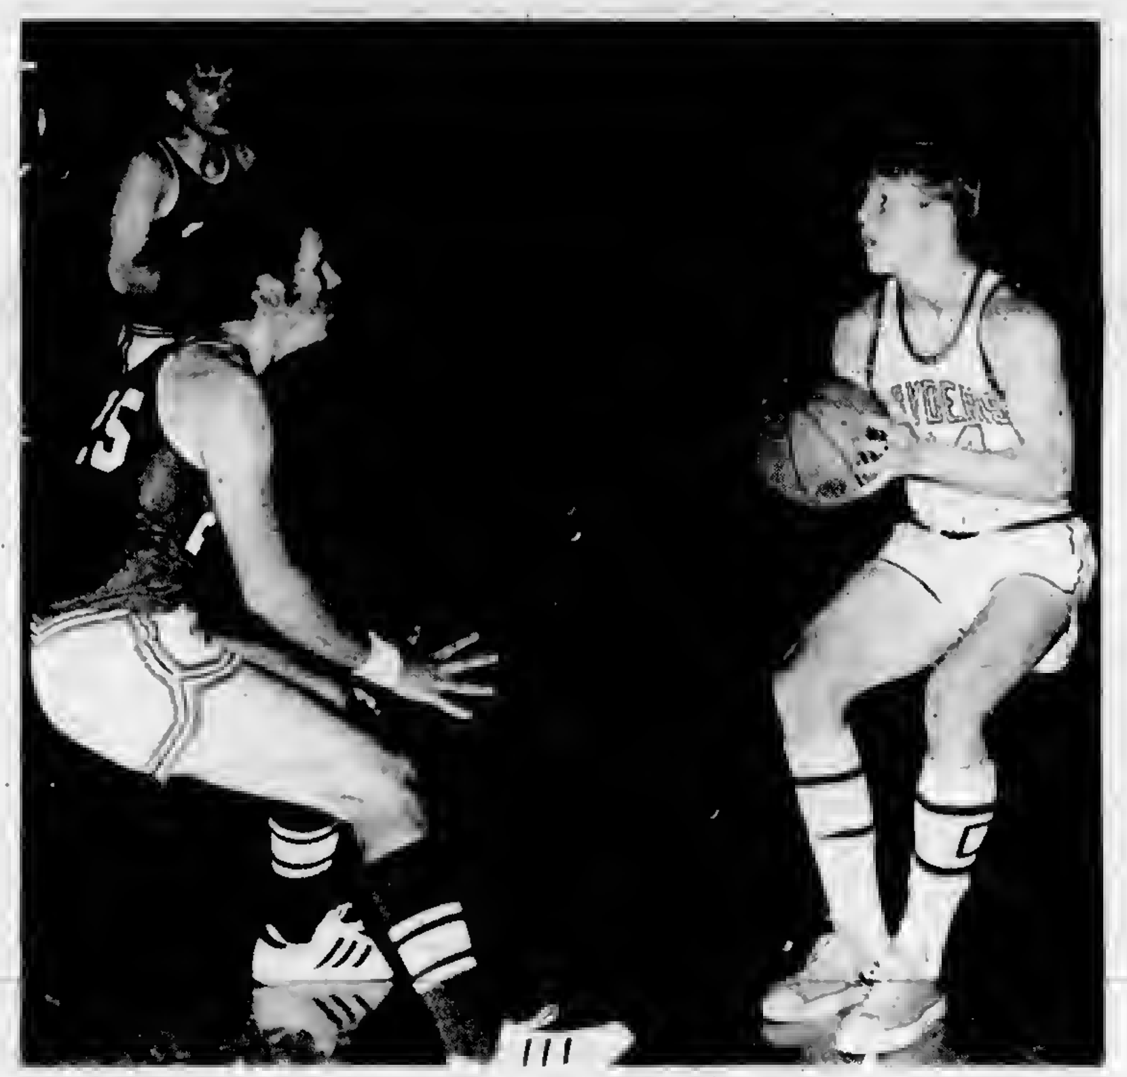
Charlevoix had a marked height advantage over Onaway. Only two of the Cardinals stand six feet or taller. Charlevoix has seven players over six feet tall.

The Rayders were scheduled to meet Boyne City in Charlevoix on Tuesday. They play at Petoskey Friday.



LARRY POTTER takes to the air over strenuous objections by the St. Ignace Saints' Donovan.

BILL CAREY arches one in during the game with Onaway Saturday night.



NED HENLEY squares off against Jon Nelson of the Onaway Cardinals during Saturday's game.

Hess, Head Shop, Best, Andy's Win For Independents

Charlevoix Independent League basketball play got off to a fast start last Wednesday at the Middle School gymnasium, with Hess defeating Topside 60-57 and the Head Shop trouncing Medusa 76-43.

On Thursday, Best Insurance defeated Kusina 48-32 and Andy's whipped the First State Bank, 71-64.

This week, Kusina plays the First State Bank on Wednesday at 7 p.m. and Best Insurance plays Andy's at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Topside meets Medusa at 7 p.m. and Hess plays the Head Shop at 8:30 p.m.

In the Hess-Topside game, Topside led during the first two quarters 14-8 and 28-27. However Hess edged ahead in the third quarter, 48-45, and went on to win 60-57.

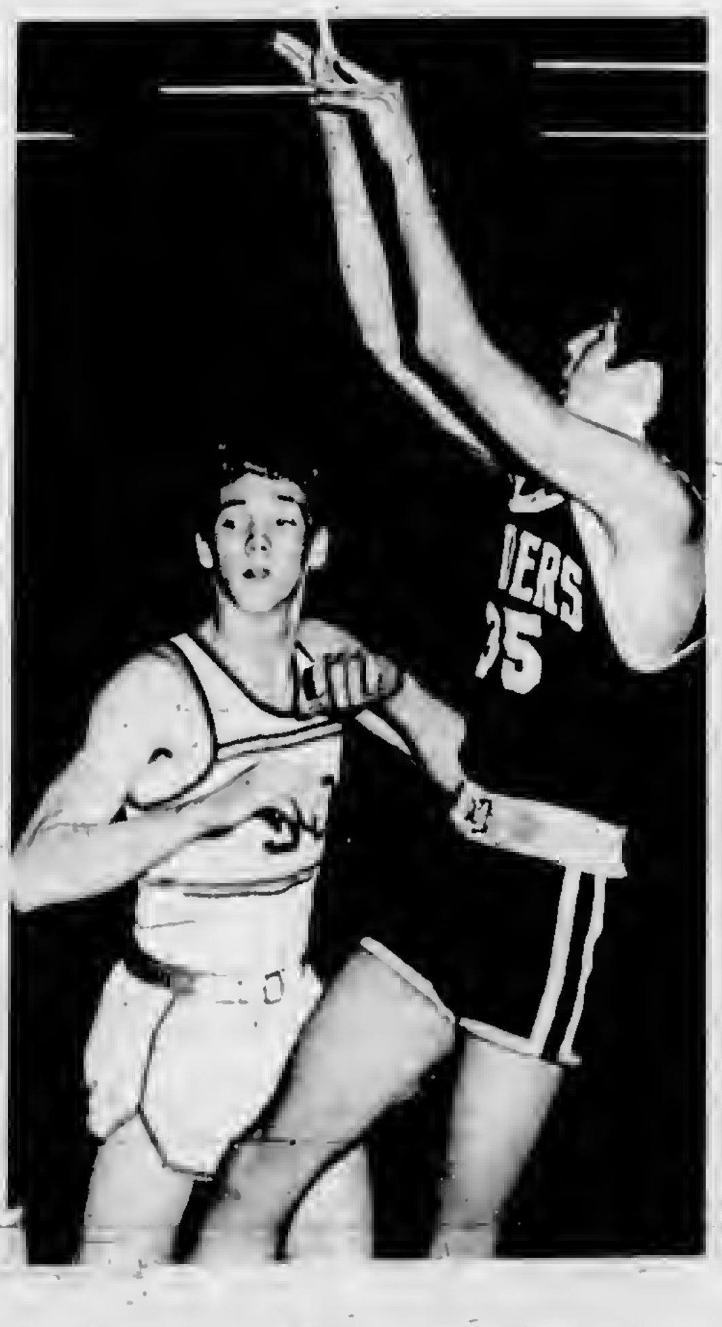
Top scorers for Hess were Joe Beaudoin, 25; Bruce Meggison, 20; and Ken Balch, 10. High men for Topside were Lee Cross, 18; Larry Skippergosh, 12; and Bren LaBlance, 10.

In the Head Shop-Medusa game, the Head Shop moved ahead right from the start with quarter scores of 22-13, 42-24, 58-36 and 76-43.

High men for the Head Shop were Norm Ostrum, 24; Ike Boss, 17; and Ron Cox, 14. Leading scorers for Medusa were Doug Winnell, 16; and Joe Battle, 10.

In the Best Insurance-Kusina match, Chet Drenth led the scoring for Best with 11. Duane Taylor was top man for Kusina with 8.

Two-figure scorers for Andy's were Steve Smith, 20; Hans Frank, 16; Tim Doan, 14; Bob Etinenne, 11; and Dave Novotny, 10. For the First State Bank, Gary Stutzman rang up 20 and G. Sheldon 15.



JERRY SKIPPERGOSH sinks another during Jayvee game at St. Ignace Friday night. The Jayvees lost, as did their big brothers.

Volleyball Season Ends

By Ted Schmitz

The Charlevoix High School boy's intermural volleyball season came to a close last week.

Teams made up of boys from grades 10 thru 12 were chosen on a voluntary basis. These boys came to school early in the morning or in the evening to participate.

The teams consisted of two squads of Seniors, one squad of Juniors and one squad of Sophomores.

In first place, team 12a, headed by Capt. Mark Merritt, had a perfect record against the other teams by winning four and losing none.

In second place team 12b led by John Ozga had 2 wins and 2 loses on their record this year.

The third place position was held by the Juniors team 11a, and the Sophomores team 10a with two losses each.

The teams were coached by Norm Probert.

Need a Phone Number? Consult Directory First

Michigan Bell says it could reduce operating costs by at least $1.5 million a year across the state if more customers would consult their phone books before dialing "411" for directory assistance.

The problem, according to Charlevoix area Bell manager Kenneth T. Harrold, is excessive use of "411" service. He said the service is growing at a rate of 10 percent a year.

"Of the some 637,000 calls a day now handled by our '411' operators around the state, about half are for numbers which can be found in current directories," Harrold explained.

In an effort to contain this growth and encourage customers to check their directories, he stated that Michigan Bell's "411" service concept will now be aimed primarily at providing new numbers not listed in current directories.

"Our operators will answer '411' calls with the phrase 'new Number Information.' In addition, operators will clearly tell callers when the numbers they've requested are already listed in the phone books," he said.

"Recent surveys show that about 10 percent of telephone customers make about 50 percent of all directory assistance calls. That means a majority of customers is bearing the burden of cost for the small percent who regularly make excessive use of the service," he added.

"Michigan Bell spends about $6 million a year to publish the directories and over $10 million a year on directory assistance. Obviously, a significant portion of the cost of '411' service is used to supplement the service already provided by the directory."

"What we are attempting to do," he explained, "is to bring the 10 percent growth rate of '411' more closely in line with our annual three percent average rate of growth in basic telephone service."

"In other words, our '411' service has grown about three times faster than our basic service. This realignment could save us at least $1.5 million a year."

He noted that a test of the "New Number Information" concept was recently conducted in Kalamazoo, and it reduced "411" volume by more than seven percent in the first week.

Harrold pointed out that there are occasions when "411" service would be needed for something other than new members. "There are times, for example, when no directory is available or when customers simply can't find the numbers in the book."

"By attempting to make better use of directory service and encouraging customers to check first before dialing '411,' we feel there can be a significant savings—a savings which will ultimately benefit everyone."

Program Funded

A probation program for the 90th District Court, serving Charlevoix and Emmet counties, is included in projects funded by the Northwest Michigan Economic Development District, according to Robert C. Cooper, project director for law enforcement and criminal justice.

Other projects financed by the NMEDD in the 10-county district are an in-service training program for law enforcement officers and an inter-departmental relations study in Grand Traverse County.

Bill Rowden, executive director of the NMEDD, says 338 other project are presently being considered for funding, including police-school liaison officers, law school intern programs for prosecutors, police legal advisor programs, drug abuse educational programs, police cadet programs, crime and forensic science laboratories, regional investigator units and the establishment of a regional juvenile detention and treatment center.

On the state level, Gov. William G. Milliken announced recently that Michigan has received advance crime control funds totaling $7,967,000 which will enable the Office of Criminal Justice Programs to continue grating improvement projects in law enforcement and criminal justice during the early part of 1972.

The money is part of $19,227,000 requested from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration of the U.S. Department of Justice for crime control projects.

THE NATURAL Resources Commission voted last week to permit construction of a dam across Monroe Creek, the first step in creation of a 1,500-homesite development in the area.

Only Frank Shelden Can Save Monroe Creek

Barring a miracle, the Monroe Creek Valley in Charlevoix County will shortly become a bustling resort community, complete with artificial lake, row upon row of summer and year-'round homes, condominiums and a golf course.

The Natural Resources Commission last week gave Frank Shelden the go-ahead on his ambitious scheme to convert the wilderness swampland into a resort mecca, in spite of the petitions and strenuous objections of Charlevoix County residents who fear the 1,500-homesite development will place an untenable strain on the delicate balance of the local ecology.

What the Natural Resources Commission did was grant Shelden a permit to dam tiny Monroe Creek, which will feed his proposed 400-acre lake.

The Commissioners also agreed to swap state-held fishing easements for other property owned by Shelden elsewhere in the County.

The two proposals squeaked through by a narrow three to two vote.

Now the only thing that can save the Monroe Creek Valley from the ravages of civilization is the good nature of Frank Shelden.

A geologist by profession, a conservationist by nature, and the sole proprietor of North Fox Island, Shelden--if anyone--knows the value of wild land as an antidote foe the abrasive injuries inflicted by civilization on suffering mankind.

A single cedar swamp can do more to calm the spirit and elevate the mind than a thousand subdivisions, as Mr. Shelden well knows.

We hope that Mr. Shelden will take a second, long look at what he is proposing to do Charlevoix County, and then follow a different course.

QUESTION: Why do I have to pay a $2.00 fee to the Secretary of State to get my license back? The ticket was dismissed. P.D.H., Midland

ANSWER: The ticket was dismissed when you finally showed up–which was after you were notified that your license was suspended for failure to appear in court to answer charges on the ticket. Delay does not always work in favor of the accused. It is often–as in this case–better to come in and get it over with. You got a bargain. If you had been stopped by a policeman while driving without a valid license, it could have been even more costly and inconvenient.

QUESTION: Can I get a License Appeal Board hearing and get my license back from a 90-day mandatory suspension for drunk driving? S.O.J., Muskegon

ANSWER: IN YOUR CASE the 90-day suspension on the drunk driving charge was mandatory because you refused the "implied consent" test and did not apply to the Secretary of State for a hearing. The License Appeal Board can do nothing about this now. You will have to undertake the longer and more costly process of appealing to the Circuit Court.

By the way–why not take the money it would take to go to Circuit Court and invest it and yourself in the alcohol rehab programs run by the state and county departments of health in your county. You would be money ahead and beat your problem, too.

QUESTION: How about these guys that get in the left lane on an expressway and stay there no matter what? L.H.Q., Brighton

ANSWER: These guys are in effect road hogs, and they are also possible violators, depending on circumstances. Law says: "upon a roadway having two or more lanes for travel in one direction a vehicle shall be driven in the extreme right hand lane available for travel; except that a vehicle may be driven in any lane lawfully available to traffic moving in the same direction of travel when the lanes are occupied by vehicles moving in substantially continuous lanes of traffic or for a reasonable distance prior to making a left turn." Another section says, "The driver of any vehicle overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction shall pass at a safe distance to the left thereof and when safely clear of such overtaken vehicle shall take up a position as near the right hand edge of the main traveled portion of the highway as is practicable."

In other words--John Lodge or Telegraph in Detroit would be an illustration of the first situation and I-96 west of Brighton would be typical of the second. To continue for miles in the normal passing lane is wrong–unless you are moving in a continuous stream of traffic. Even then, in common courtesy you should give following cars a break by occasionally moving over.

QUESTION: I always stop at railroad crossings but some idiot beeps his horn at me. Recently one almost ran into me. M.A.T., Kalamazoo

ANSWER: NOT all vehicles are required to stop at all railroad crossings. No stop is required where a police officer or traffic control signal directs traffic to proceed, or on a limited access highway or freeway where such crossing is protected by a clearly visible signal, crossing gate or barrier when these are not activated.

Otherwise, vehicles are required to stop at all railroad crossings equipped with signals. Especially school buses, vehicles carring passengers for hire, vehicles carrying explosives or flammable liquids as all or part of the cargo. You don't try it either if the train is in plain sight and dangerous proximity. When it passes, watch out for one coming the other way.

Essenburg Ouster Up To Voters

Robert Clock, Editor

Mr. Oostmeyer's recent letter to the editors regarding the expendibility of Mayor Essenburg seems to represent the thoughts of the great majority of the people of Charlevoix. No effort was even made by the mayor to respond to Mr. Hanna's answers and therefore they must stand admitted. Sadly, Mr. Hanna's answers covered, I understand, only a small area of the shortcomings of the office of mayor since Mr. Essenburg's election.

I agree with Mr. Oostmeyer's statement that this man should not be entitled to continue to hold public office under the circumstances, but it is not up to the Council to declare the office of mayor vacant, as this is the obligation of the people to accomplish at the next election.

Mr. Essenburg advises that he will run again and is already soliciting votes on the basis that he can prove that the last administration spent some monies unnecessarily. What an easy thing to prove--just look around your own household. So the campaign is on and it is now encumbent upon the people to come up with a good candidate who is sincerely interested in working hard to improve our city, put him into office, and hopefully stop for ever the threats, harassment, firings, and fighting that has impaired the operation of our city since last April.

Criticizes 'Domino Theory'

The Pentagon documents show that the whole premise on which our incredibly costly and divisive involvement in Vietnam was based–the domino theory–was almost never questioned once it had been accepted. One of the dissenters was Undersecretary of State George Bell, who in a lengthy 1965 memorandum questioned whether the downfall of South Vietnam really wou,d lead to the loss of all of Southeast Asia, and warned against a "protracted war involving an open-ended commitment of U.S. forces."

The most obvious lesson of all is that an American President must never again take the nation to war without the explicit authorization of the Congress and the support of the American people.

"The domino theory' (basis for our original participation in Vietnam) is un-sound. Those nations that would be most seriously affected if the domino theory was applicable, have sent no troops to South Vietnam: Burma, Laos and Cambodia. Singapore and Malaysia have sent no troops while Thailand has sent only token forces. The Philippines have sent no combat troops...Indonesia, India and Pakistan have sent no troops."

These are the closest Dominoes, and should be the first to fall. Look at your men.

It is a delusion to suggest that the war in Vietnam is part of a worldwide program of Communist aggression." Clark Clifford (Clark Clifford, advisor to Presidents Truman, Kennedy and Johnson, was Secretary of Defense in 1968-69.) Part of an article published in Life, May 22, 1970.

Clockwise The Friske Report

By Bob Clock

By now I imagine every resident of the 106th District had read Rep. Richard Friske's latest report to his constituents and has reacted in his own way.

Undoubtedly some of Friske's loyal followers think their representative has done a top-notch job during his first year in Lansing and will work fervently for his re-election.

Others are shocked to the point of nausea and are ready to start a recall drive.

Still others, particularly those who have watched Friske's political career from its inception, are not particularly surprised by his latest venture into print. If nothing else, Friske is predictable.

What in the world did we, as his constituents, expect when we sent a leader of the John Birch Society to Lansing as our representative? We certainly have gotten what we deserve.

As a newsman, I was somewhat chagrined that Friske should see fit to light into the press for not reporting his antics in the capitol in full. I can't speak for other news media, but I do know that the Courier has covered Friske's political career in agonizing detail, including his outrageous letters to the President asking him to stay out of Red China and his heart-breaking refusal to extend the sympathy of the people of Michigan to the people of Russia following the deaths of three Soviet cosmonauts earlier this year.

The Courier has even given valuable news space to Friske'a ridiculous "Liberty Amendment," an out-and-out brainchild of the John Birch Society.

In fact — get this — the Courier has been accused of getting Friske elected and aiding and abetting his political career. Heaven forbid!

Again, as a taxpayer (and how hard it is to come up with those tax dollars!) I object strenuously to Friske's use of public funds to spread the pernicious doctrine of the John Birch Society, a tightly-knit band of right-wing extremists convinced in their own minds that everything they don't agree with is part of a Communist plot to take over America.

Here's what Friske has to say about the JBS, and remember you paid to have this tripe printed and delivered to every home in the 106th District:

"There is one organization, though, that has found a powerful weapon to use to stop this minority and its control over America. The weapon is truth, the strategy is education. The organization is the John Birch Society."

"The John Birch Society is an educational and informational group with a 13-year history of success as a fact finder and freedom fighter on both local and national issues. But to support the John Birch Society's massive effort will require the wholehearted support of you and many other Americans and with the help of our God we will win these fights."

I feel it is unethical of Friske — if not downright illegal — to use public monies to promote the John Birch Society and I, for one, intend to ask Attorney General Frank Kelley for an opinion.

In addition to stating his opposition to reform of any kind — education, abortion, tax, constitution — Friske outlines for his constituents the six things he has done as their state legislator.

1. He urged the President not to make secret agreements with Red China and asked that American prisoners of war not be forsaken at the end of the Vietnam war.

2. He urged the President to stay out of Red China and speak out against the seating of Red China in the United Nations.

3. He urged the Department of Natural Resources to support an antlerless deer moratorium.

4. He tried to break up the Twin Valley School District into its original components, Boyne City and East Jordan, by proposing a vote to demerge. (His efforts so far have failed.)

5. He supported a bill which would "force" (his word, not mine) schools that teach evolution to "give equal time to the Lord," teaching the "Biblical theory of Divine Creation."

6. He introduced as House Concurrent Resolution No. 87 the so-called Liberty Amendment which would abolish the federal income tax.

Friske also discusses at some length his heroic efforts to outlaw the busing of school children to achieve integration.

Now Clockwise also is against busing, because it costs too much and it is cruel to rub the noses of inner-city children in suburbia all day, only to send them back to their ghettos at night. Instead, we would like to see a massive exchange program with the small towns of America whereby disadvantaged black youngsters would spend an entire school year living and learning in largely white communities.

Friske is against busing because "a tiny group of liberal intellectuals is using that idea to tear down our basic institutions of home and family, exactly as Hitler did with the Hitler Youth, and as Mao Tse-Tung is doing now in order to transfer their loyalty from their parents to the totalitarian dictatorship that conspirators are working to impose."

"Through the Secretary of H.E.W., Elliot Richardson, a government department appointee, they're taking our children away from the neighborhood schools we chose for ourselves. They're busing these youngsters miles away from home to other areas."

"They are doing this in the face of all kinds of opposition. Their disliked scheme to indoctrinate our children is going forward, even as you read this communication."

Friske apparently believes that the advocates of school busing are part of a sinister plot to indoctrinate school children in some manner or other. But his reasoning is specious: What on earth does busing have to do with indoctrination? If our wily educators are going to indoctrinate our youngsters with un-American thoughts, couldn't they do it just as easily in their present classrooms, without transporting them all over hell's half acre?

Unfortunately, the paranoid John Birch Society sees Communist-inspired, satanical scheming behind the most innocent facets of American life, from modern architecture to sex education.

Even Mom's Apple Pie could be looked upon as a diabolical Communist plot to give us indigestion.

All of which brings up the question of re-districting. Unless something is done in short order to change the boundaries of the 106th District, Friske is going to be riding on the Republican ticket next November as our representative. If the GOP can't come up with a worthy opponent (only one, please), let's hope the Democrats can come up with a winner.

Romantic Fools

How about this for a song lyric: "When it comes to loving you, honey, if letters don't work, I'll try the sky."

Red Skelton is divorcing his wife. Which is why I am disenchanted with love letters. Red wrote his wife words of love every morning for more than 20 years. And this was when they were sleeping in the same room. He said the notes kept their marriage romantic and their love alive. "Every husband should do it," Red said.

I decided to give it a try. That was months ago. I've been trying ever since. I don't write so well sitting on the edge of the bed at 7 a.m. For one thing, I can't find a pencil. And I can never think of anything to write about except where is my other brown sock and how come I have to kneel down to see above my belt buckle in the mirror?

But I was getting the hang of it. Just the other morning I wrote her a note:

"Don't forget to buy some Alka Seltzer. I love you." I slipped it under her toast.

"What's the idea of the crummy note?" she asked.

I should have slipped it under her egg.

Anyway, no more notes from me. Yesterday's newspaper announced the Skeltons are kaput. A gossip columnist even hinted that Red had found another. Perhaps some of his letters were delivered to the wrong address.

Whatever Skelton didn't just scrawl mushy works on scraps of wrapping paper. He wrote poetry, with music, and had the messages bound in leather. If all that couldn't save his marriage, there's not much hope in me sneaking sexy suggestions into my wife's grocery list. The best I could hope for would be a more exotic brand of frozen dinners.

Besides, I have a better idea. The same newspaper that heralded the Skelton demise also contained a photo of an uproariously happy wife. She was posing in front of a freeway overpass upon which was hung a 100-foot banner, saying in huge letters, "Pati, My Love Is One Year Stronger. I Love You."

Pati's husband knew she'd be driving by. And this was his way of wishing her a happy 1st anniversary. That's class.

For the obvious reason, such public declarations of love always gain wide publicity. If a guy tries to hide an elephant in a phone booth, you knew he doesn't really mind if everyone finds out. When boyfriends propose via billboards, and husbands use newspaper ads to apologize, they are not worried about privacy. They want the world to know. And that's what thrills the women.

"Look, everybody, what a gay, romantic fool is in love with me," she says.

What I have in mind is one of those advertising helicopters flying over the Michigan - Michigan State football game with 104,000 people looking up. The plane could tow a long sign containing the same message I slipped under her toast. That way I could get the Alka Seltzer people to pay half the cost. The other half I'd cover by winning bets with my buddies who would surely wager that I'd never do anything so dumb. They should have been there when I was writing those stupid notes in my underwear.

Onward and Upward.

TIME IS growing short for the Ironton Ferry. Service will be discontinued for the winter as soon as ice closes the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Victoria Is Small in Size, Big in Population, Output

Australia's state of Victoria, though small in size, looms large on production and population charts.

Since World War II, Australia has emerged from a pastoral to an industrial society. Nearly a third of the labor force works in manufacturing, compared to a tenth in agriculture.

"Perhaps more than any other state in the Commonwealth, pacesetting Victoria has been caught up in the dynamics of this changing land," according to Allan C. Fisher jr., of National Geographic Magazine.

Drawn by tax benefits and skilled labor, 150 foreign companies have moved to Victoria in the past decade.

BURIED TREASURES

Off the coast, wells thrust deep into the submerged Gippsland Basin and siphon off rich reserves of gas and oil. Ponderous stripping machines in vast open pits mine one of the world's largest deposits of lignite, or brown coal. Reserves fill a continuous seam 30 miles long, 5 to 10 miles wide, and 200 to 600 feet thick.

The fuel feeds a state-owned power complex that makes briquettes and generates most of Victoria's electricity.

Called a "mini-giant among Australian states," Utah-sized Victoria covers less than three percent of the Australian Continent.

Yet it supports a population of 3,440,000, more than a quarter of the entire country's 12,550,000 people, and produces nearly a third of the nation's manufactures and a fourth of its farm output.

About two-thirds of Victoria's people cluster in Melbourne, the state's capital, main port, transportation hub, and industrial center.

The handsome city reflects the overriding concerns shared by most Australians: avid interest in home ownership, an intense pleasure in family and nature, and near-fanaticism about Australian Rules football.

KEEN COMPETITORS

Victoria vies with neighboring New South Wales for new industries. "The rivalry is equally intense between Melbourne and Sydney, the capital of New South Wales," reports Fisher. "One hears rumors that San Francisco and Los Angeles don't always see eye to eye but their differences are as the billing and cooing of doves compared to the feeling between Australia's two biggest cities."

Throughout Australia the increased demand for workers must be met largely by immigrants, and Victoria woos them as determinedly and successfully as it does foreign investors. In 1969 the nation welcomed 185,000 new citizens. Victoria attracted 27 percent of them.

Many of the newcomers go directly to hostels run by the national government. There they may live a year if they wish, but the average stay is only 17 weeks.

Each hostel provides food as well as lodging--all free until the family breadwinner gets a job; then only modest charges are levied.

Dhaseleer

Funeral for John A. Dhaseleer, 88, was held Dec. 4 at St. Marys Church, the Rev. E. Francis Denay officiating. Burial was in St. Marys Cemetery.

Mr. Dhaseleer died Dec. 2 in Little Traverse Hospital where he had been a patient about one month.

Born in Belgium May 12, 1886, Mr. Dhaseleer maved to Kalamazoo in 1912 and Beaver Island in 1914. He was married in 1914 to the former Josephine Ricksgers.

In 1925 the family moved to Marian Township where he farmed until he retired in 1948 and moved to Charlevoix.

He was a member of St. Marys Church and a former member of the Barnard Grange.

He is survived by one son, Charles H. of Charlevoix, one daughter, Mrs. Harvey (Elizabeth) Mosher of East Jordan and 15 grandchildren.

Sutton

Funeral for Archie Sutton, 76, a former Charlevoix resident who died unexpectedly Sunday at his Muskegon home, will be held at the Sitzema Funeral Home in Muskegon at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 8. Burial will be in a Muskegon cemetery.

Born in Norwood Township June 25, 1895, he was married to the former Margie Tjapkes here in 1917. In the early 1920's they moved to Muskegon where he was employed at the Sheldon Manufacturing Co. until his retirement.

Surviving are his wife; one son; three daughters; several grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. Harry (Sylvia) Hammond of Charlevoix.

Gallagher

Funeral for Mrs. Lester A. Gallagher, 75, was held at St. Marys Church Dec. 6, the Rev. E. Francis Denay officiating. Burial was in St. Marys Cemetery.

Mrs. Gallagher died Dec. 3 at Charlevoix Hospital where she had been a patient five days.

The former Myrtle E. Roddy was born on Beaver Island Nov. 9, 1896, and moved to Chicago in 1906. She was married Dec. 5, 1922, to Lester A. Gallagher and the family lived in Chicago before moving to Charlevoix in 1939. Mr. Gallagher died in 1953.

Mrs. Gallagher was a member of St. Marys Church.

She is survived by one son, Lester J. Gallagher of Lansing; two daughters, Mrs. John G. (Mary) Bradley of Charlevoix and Mrs. Thomas (Eileen) Sutherland of Detroit; 15 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Rose Sawall of Ann Arbar and Mrs. Catherine Thompson of Chicago.

Arrangements were handled by Winchester's Funeral Home.

Matmen Defeat Rudyard

After losing the first five matches, Charlevoix High wrestlers staged an astounding come-back last Tuesday by winning the next seven and defeating Class B Rudyard 39 to 27.

Junior Varsity wrestlers tied at the same meet, 12-12.

Charlevoix dropped all of its lightweight matches, with Dan Key, Jim Marshall, Jim Borths and Jeff Groomes losing on pins and Jeff Thorp losing a decision, leaving the score 27-0 in favor of Rudyard.

But along came Charlie Borths, Pat Linse, Paul Klooster, Dan Morte and Marc Custer to tie the score, with Gordie Skeel and Philip Christ scoring the winning points.

JV's winning were Terry Mol, John Ozga and Butch Klooster.

The CHS squad — Charlevoix's only undefeated athletic team, according to coach Norm Probert — will play a scrimmage match with Kalkaska Dec. 20 and meet Rogers City in tournament play Jan. 15.

Locals

Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Elzinga spent the Thanksgiving weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Mike Bost and daughter Jacqui. The Bosts are attending Southern Illinois University.

Ironton

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lamdon of Detroit spent the Thanksgiving weekend with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Williams.

Mrs. Pete Bennett is a medical patient in Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey.

Mrs. Effie Arthur is spending several days with her family in Detroit.

The Sunday School teachers and pupils are busy getting ready for the annual Christmas program that will be in the church Sunday evening, Dec. 19.

Dam Approved

The Natural Resources Commission voted three to two last week to grant a dam construction permit to developer Frank Shelden, paving the way for the creation of an artificial lake on Monroe Creek.

Shelden intends to make the lake the focal point of a 1,500-homesite development in the Monroe Creek Valley.

The commissioners also approved the swap of state-owned fishing easements on Monroe Creek for others owned by Shelden.

TAX ANTICIPATION NOTES

Sealed bids for the purchase of tax anticipation notes of St. James School District, County of Charlevoix, Michigan, of the par value of $15,000.00 will be received by the undersigned at the Principal St. James, Michigan, until 8:00 o'clock, P.M., Eastern Standard Time, on the 10th day of December, 1971, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read.

The notes will be dated December 1, 1971, will mature April 1, 1972 and will bear interest at a rate or rates not exceeding 6 percent per annum. Both principal and interest will be payable at a bank or trust company located in the State of Michigan, to be designated by the original purchaser of the notes which paying agent qualifies as such under the Statutes of the State of Michigan or of the Federal Government, subject to the approval of the St. James School District No. 6. Denominations and form of notes to be at the option of the purchaser. Accrued interest to date of delivery of such notes must be paid by the purchaser at the time of delivery.

The notes shall be subject to redemption in direct numerical order at par and accrued interest on the first day of any month prior to maturity upon 30 days' notice served by registered mail upon the known holder or holders thereof, or published in a newspaper or publication circulated in the State of Michigan which carries as a part of its regular service notice of the sale of municipal bonds and notes.

For the purpose of awarding the notes the interest cost of each bid will be computed by determining, at the rate or rates specified therein, the total dollar value of all interest on the notes from (sale date) (of the notes), to their maturity and deducting therefrom any premium. The notes will be awarded to the bidder whose bid on the above computation produces the lowest interest cost to the municipality. No proposal for the purchase of less than all of the notes or at a price less than their par value will be considered.

The loan is in anticipation of the operating portion of the School Tax for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1971 which tax is due and payable December 1, 1971.

A certified or cashier's check in the amount of 2 percent of the par value of the notes, drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company and payable to the oreer of the Treasurer must accompany each bid as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder to be forfeited as liquidated damages if such bid be accepted and the bidder fails to take up and pay for the notes. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be promptly returned.

Post Office Open Till 3 Saturdays

Postmaster Rex Davis reports that the Charlevoix Post Office will remain open the next two Saturday afternoons until 3 p.m. for the convenience of Christmas mailers.

Davis says airmail parcels and greeting cards for members of the armed forces should be mailed no later than Dec. 10.

That's also the last date for mailing greeting cards to distant states if they are to arrive before the holidays.

Parcels going to points in Michigan and surrounding states should be mailed by Dec. 10 and greeting cards should be mailed by Dec. 15.

Davis recommends that airmail parcels be sent no later than Dec. 15 and airmail greeting cards no later than Dec. 22.

Castle Suit Back in Court

The John VanHaver-Art Reibel lawsuit continued in Circuit Court last Thursday and Friday before Judge James Fitzpatrick.

VanHaver claims Reibel has not lived up to his obligatians as purchaser of Castle Van Haver. Reibel claims he never received an easement to Lake Charlevoix, which he understood was part of the agreement.

VanHaver is seeking $100,000 damages.

One of the chief witnesses last week was Charlevoix Mayor Andrew Essenburg who testified he brought the two parties together and received a $5,000 "finder's fee."

Suit Seeks to Stop Dam Project

Dr. Tanton Takes DNR Chiefs to Court

Dr. John H. Tanton of Petoskey filed suit in Ingham County Circuit Court last week seeking to block development of Monroe Creek Valley nine miles southeast of Charlevoix for recreational homesites.

The suit, which was filed against the Natural Resources Commission and its director, Ralph A. MacMullen, asks that a dam construction permit be denied Francis Shelden, the developer, and that an exchange of fishing easements on Monroe Creek for others on Warner Creek be stopped.

Both the dam and the land swap were approved by a three to twa vote by the Natural Resources Commission at its December meeting.

The proposed dam would create an artificial lake in excess of 400 acres, which would be the focal point of a resort development covering two and one-half square miles and encompassing, in time, some 1,500 platted homesites.

A long-time conservationist, Dr. Tanton filed his suit under provisions of the Michigan Environmental Protection Act.

Shelden, who visited the Charlevoix area last week, said that the court has issued a temporary restraining order holding up the dam construction permit. However, he said he expects the lawsuit will be settled in his favor in about a month, allowing him to begin land clearing operations this winter. He hopes to start work on the dam next spring.

Dr. Tanton, who is represented by the Grand Rapids law firm of VanderVeen, Freihofer and Cook, charges that construction of the dam will:

–Destroy a priceless winter deeryard, the anly such yard in a five-township area.

–Destroy winter habitat and shelter for snowshoe rabbits, cottontail rabbits, ruffed grouse and a myriad of non-game animals and,

–Destroy a small top quality trout stream.

He also believes impoundment of Monroe Creek will adversely affect the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

The suit points out that the damaging effects of the dam were pointed out in an environmental impact study of the impoundment prepared by the DNR earlier this year.

The suit charges that issuance of the dam construction permit and the exchange of lands with Shelden "are likely to result in the destruction of a substantial portion of a top quality small trout stream, lowering of water quality in the rest of the stream and in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, both during construction and thereafter, the loss of bottomland wildlife habitat, the loss of trout and salmon spawning and nursery areas of great value, the loss of natural beauty, the loss of wild lands and other adverse environmental effects."

"Consequently, the consummation of the aforesaid transactions will be actions which are inconsistent with the protection of the air, water and other natural resources of the state and the public trust therein from pollution, impairment or destruction, and, as such, will constitute violations of the Michigan Environmental Protection Act."

The suit asks for a temporary restraining order against issuance of the dam construction permit.

Dr. Tanton's suit also charges that the people of Michigan were short-changed in the swap of fishing easements, although the Monroe Creek parcels are valued at only $3,750, compared to a price tag of $7,000 for the 40 acres Sheldon owns on Warner Creek.

The suit charges that the Monroe Creek property actually is worth much more, since without the state-owned lands Shelden's entire impoundment project would be impossible.

"...A prudent investor would demand a consideration which reflects said special values," the suit claims and calls for a temporary restraining order to halt the land swap.

Dr. Tanton said he is paying the initial attorney fees out of his own pocket, but would appreciate donations from other residents interested in preserving Monroe Creek as it is.

THE ASSASSINATION of Jordan's Prime Minister Wasfi Tel in Cairo recently brought back memories for Tom Dammann of Boyne City-rd. A free lance writer and foreign correspondent specializing in the Middle East, Dammann first met Tel ten years ago and has interviewed him on several occasions. He says Tel has long been influential in King Hussein's government, even when not serving as prime minister, and was largely responsible for Jordan's hard line of Palestinian refugees. Dammann describes the slain prime minister as "a handsome dog, but very cynical." The last time Dammann saw Tel was in the spring of 1970 during a visit to the Middle East.

MEDUSA PORTLAND Cement Company's proposed clinker storage shed will appear similar to this dome-shaped building at the company's Wampum, Pa., plant. To be located just west of the kiln at South Point, the building will be 110 feet high --- about half the height of the stack, --- and will have a diameter of 225 feet. At Wampum, employes call it the "Astrodome."

School Board Approves Trip To Spain for Spanish Club

Meeting for the first time since Nov. 16, the Charlevoix Board of Education gave its approval to a proposed trip to Spain by members of the Spanish Club, a proposed trip to Cedar Point, Ohio, or Chicago by the senior class, the hiring of two persons under the Emergency Employment Act and the payment of bonded interest in addition to a number of other issues on the agenda.

Nancy Ryswick, High School Spanish teacher, appeared before the board in behalf of the Spanish Club to outline the proposed plan for the eight-day trip during the spring recess. The trip via charter plane would cost approximately $360 per student from net cost plus $50 spending money. A minimum of 15 students must make the trip in order to obtain this rate. Each 15 students must be accompanied by a qualified chaperone, she said.

She compared the cost of a similar eight-day trip to Mexico which would cost equally as much. After discussing the trip at length, the board gave its approval to the proposal. The students or their parents will finance the trip at no cost to the school.

Dan Tollas, president of the Senior Class, asked permission to plan for a senior trip to either Cedar Point, Ohio, or Chicago. The class plans to meet with tour company representatives after the holidays to make a final decision regarding the trip and to make plans to finance the trip. Board members gave their approval to the trip.

The hiring of Gerald B. Sandahl as a gas station attendant-custodian at $2.25 per hour and Elaine Kimbler as a secretary at $2.50 an hour were approved. The pair were hired under the Emergency Employment Act, with federal fund underwriting 90 percent of the total cost. Sandahl will operate the gas station at the South Gate garage now under lease to the school. Mrs. Kimbler will serve as a secretary wherever she is needed.

The recommendation that $37,582.11 be transferred from the New Debt Retirement Fund (the Elementary School) to the National Bank of Detroit to meet an interest payment due Jan. 1, 1972; that $77.50 be transferred from the Ironton Debt Retirement fund to the Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan to meet interest payment due Jan. 1 and that $14,774, plus any other fees due be transferred from the Old Debt Retirement (High School) Fund to the paying agent to meet interest payment due Jan. 1 was approved.

After discussing at length the Governor's proposal regarding school finance, the board went on record as not endorsing the proposal until more information is available on how the proposal would affect Charlevoix schools.

In other action, the board:

–Gave its approval to Supt. Robert Miller to serve on a Ad Hoc Commission at the 6th grade level as requested by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

--Heard Larry Warner, chairman of the policy committee, report that his committee would have a policy on retirement for both

$1 Million Shed To Store Clinker At Medusa Plant

Construction of a $1 million clinker storage building will begin early in 1972 at South Point, according to Fred Cohrs, manager of Charlevoix's Medusa Portland Cement Co. plant.

The huge dome-shaped building will be used to store clinker during the winter months, after the silos are filled and before the shipping season starts.

Clinker is cement that has been through the kiln, but had nat yet been ground into powder.

Cohrs says the storage building is being constructed for two reasons.

It will help keep the clinker dry and it will go a long way toward relieving dust problems resulting from outdoor storage, as has been the practice from the past.

The building will be 110 feet high—about half the height of the stack — and have a diameter of 225 feet. It will be located just west of present facilities and will be partially screened by trees along the Lake Michigan shore.

It will be large enough ta store 300,000 barrels of clinker.

"The building is an essential step in our program toward total dust control," Cohrs said. "Every winter, after the cement silos are filled, large quantities of clinker must be stockpiled outside. This creates undesirable dust, both when the clinker is stockpiled and when it is returned to the process. The new building will move most of this process under cover.

Along with the storage facility, Cohrs said the plant will install a screening station to remove fine material for immediate use and allow the stockpiling of only the coarse clinker pieces, which measure up to one and one-half inches in diameter.

"This will further reduce the possibility of creating dust," Cohrs said.

Clinker will enter the storage building by means of an overhead conveyor and will leave via an underground conveyor.

Freedman Elected

Gordon Freedman, owner of Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp., was elected a director of the First State Bank at a meeting of the board of directors Dec. 11.

Freedman will serve the unexpired portion term of Director Ed Edwards, who has retired, according to Board Chairman Tom Duke.

GORDON FREEDMAN

Other members of the board, in addition to Duke, are William Skillman, Joseph T. Brennan, Jerrald Redeker, Norman Lawton, Dorothy Dixan, Ed Shanahan and Don Coulter.

Freedman opened his Artcraft Engineering plant on U.S. 31 South 25 years ago. The plant makes greeting card racks and other fixtures for retail businesses and is Charlevoix's largest employer.

Last year, Freedman was honored as Michigan's Small Businessman of the Year during Michigan Week.

Norm Ance Charged With Tax Evasion

Charlevoix Attorney Norman D. Ance stood mute during his arraignment in Detroit Dec. 7 on four counts of income tax evasion before United States Magistrate Paul J. Komives.

A plea of innocent was entered by Magistrate Komives on charges that Ance failed to file income tax returns for the years 1965 through 1968. Personal bond was set at $1,000.

The investigation, which was conducted by the Intelligence Division, Internal Revenue Service, determined that Ance failed to report income totaling $96,514.35.

The maximum penalty for this offense could be one year in prison, or $10,000, or both on each count.

JAY STEVENS, proprietor of the Clark station on U.S. 31 South, discusses unusual Christmas benefit with Lt. Stan Magoon of the Petoskey Salvation Army. Stevens will give a percentage of all his gasoline sales before Christmas to the Salvation Army --- his way of saying thanks to the folks who helped him 10 years when he was a Coast Guardsman stationed at Grand Haven. Stevens and his wife needed money to return to their home in Green Bay, Wisc., during a family emergency, and the Salvation Army offered to donate the needed funds. Stevens repaid the money, but he feels such a debt is never paid in full.

Mrs. Broder's Story Appears In Harper's

Gloria Broder, a member of a long-time Charlevoix resort family, has broken into print–right at the top.

A short story by Mrs. Broder entitled "Elena, Unfaithful" appears in the December issue of Harper's Magazine, one of the nation's foremost periodicals.

Mrs. Broder and her husband, William, make their home in Sausalito, Calif., although they are in London at present where Broder is producing a play.

"Elena, Unfaithful" is the story of a successful Russian-American businessman whose fat and unattractive wife, Elena, dies shortly after his retirement.

Ridden by guilt feelings resulting from his own unfaithfulness to Elena during their long marriage, the bereaved husband convinces himself, and tries to convince his son and three daughters, that Elena has run off with a lover.

The story takes place in the suburbs of Detroit, but the locale is unimportant to this warm and human, yet tragic, episode.

The December Harpers is available at the Charlevoix Library.

What's Michigan doing this weekend?

On the average, every man, woman and child will use three gallons of oil on Saturday, another three on Sunday. So will every other American.

The United States uses 600 million gallons of oil every day. Oil and natural gas supply 75 percent of all our energy needs.

A country that runs on oil can't afford to run short.

"Bring 'em back ALIVE!" WINTER DRIVING TIPS

- DRIVING ON SNOW IS EASY IF THE DRIVER KEEPS A SAFE, STEADY SPEED. SMOOTH WHEEL MOVEMENT IS THE KEY TO SUCCESS, WHICH MEANS ACCELERATING AND STOPPING SLOWLY. AVOID SHARP TURNING MOVEMENTS IF CHANGING LANES, ALWAYS SLOWING FOR CURVES OR TURNS.
- STOP ON SNOW OR ICE THROUGH A SERIES OF SHARP JABS OR LIGHT TAPS ON THE BRAKE PEDAL. LOCKING OR SLAMMING BRAKES WILL RESULT IN A SPIN OR SKID.
- CONTROL A SKID BY SLOWLY TURNING FRONT WHEELS INTO THE DIRECTION OF THE SKID. NEVER APPLY THE BRAKES. DO NOT RELEASE THE GAS PEDAL ABRUPTLY.

Self-Basting Poultry Must Be So Labeled

Changes in Federal regulations concerning the use of basting additives in poultry, based on comments received recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, will become effective Feb. 17.

The amended regulations specify that solutions and edible fats added for basting and similar purposes to ready-to-cook poultry products may increase the weight of the processed product by approximately 3 percent of the weight of the washed and chilled raw product complying with other Federal poultry regulations. The new regulation provides for minor deviation from the 3-percent limit to allow for variabilities in injection and measuring equipment.

A "conspicuous, legible and descriptive name" must now appear on the label of any poultry product containing a basting or similar additive. The revised regulations also detail the way solution ingredients must be listed on the label.

Additives used for basting and similar purposes will have to be approved by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service, and so must the processing plant's product control procedures. To gain this approval, the producer must control the amount of solution to comply with the new limit, provide for proper disposition of product not in compliance unless it is reprocessed, and set up a control system which can be monitored by USDA inspectors. He must also see that his product complies with the labeling used for its identification.

C&MS officials explained that the regulation changes stemmed from its review of the 37 comments it received after requesting public comments on poultry additives last year. An Oct. 8, 1970, Federal Register notice invited interested persons to comment before Nov. 9, 1970, on the scope of any formal proposal which might be issued. When USDA received requests for additional comment time, the period for public comments was extended until Jan. 11, 1971.

Comments received from the poultry industry, consumers and consumer groups during this period covered all aspects of the use of basting additives in poultry, and officials now say it does not appear further public rulemaking procedure on the amendment would make additional information available to USDA.

TWO OF CHARLEVOIX'S successful hunters during the deer season just ended were former Courier staffer Beth Baldwin (left), a student at Central Michigan University, and her mother, Mrs. George Baldwin of Charlevoix. Miss Baldwin shot a four pointer and her mother a six-pointer with 10 minutes of each other. If you're wondering where all the snow came from, the picture was taken near the Baldwins' hunting camp in Crawford County.

Jennifer Sluyter Married at Troy

By BETH GENEIT

Miss Jennifer Sluyter of 308 Clinton-st. and Robert Bellairs of Rochester, Mich., exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony at the First Methodist Church in Troy on Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Alfred Bamsey officiated. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Sluyter of Troy and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bellairs of Rochester.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss Connie Jackson of Hazel Park and Miss Janet Sluyter, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid.

Brent Barnes of Ann Arbor was best man and Michael LaGerould of Madison Heights was groomsman. Ushers were Robert Brice and Mr. Michael LaGerould.

Traditional wedding music was played and "The Wedding Song" was sung by David Sluyter, brother of the bride.

The bride's gown was made by Jennifer of white sparkle organza over taffeta. It featured a high neck with lace border, long sleeves and cuffs with ruffled bodice. Her floor length veil fell from a crown of beads. Her bouquet was fashioned of red carnations and holly held by a streamer of red velvet ribbon.

The maid of honor wore a floor length gown of white lace top with green velvet skirt. The bridesmaid was attired in a floor length gown with white lace top and red velvet skirt. Each carried a floral arrangement of holly and carnations centered by a white candle. The altar was a Christmas altar piece with baskets of pine and red carnations.

A reception followed at Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church, catered by members of the Church circle.

Following a wedding trip to Disney World at Orlando, Fla. the couple will make their home at 308 Clinton-st.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Reginald Hobbs, grandmother of the bride, from Brandon, Fla.

The bride is employed as X-Ray Technician at Charlevoix Hospital. Both are graduates of Ferris State College at Big Rapids.

THE CHARLEVOIX Church of the Nazarene Junior Choir will present a Christmas cantata entitled "Jesus Is Born" Dec. 19 at 7 p.m. The cantata is an arrangement of old and new Christmas carols telling the story of Jesus' birth. Mrs. Erwin Smalley is director and Mrs. Thomas Rash will be piano accompanist. Rehearsing above are (front row from left) Lee Allen DeMitchell, Eric Fiedler and Michael DeMitchell. Back row, Terri Hauff, Lisa Fiedler, Jeff Popenhager, Jane McDonald, Kristina Fiedler and Darlene Smalley.

Yule Tour To Benefit Children

The third annual "Christmas Tour," sponsored by the Petoskey-Charlevoix Chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities will be held on Saturday, December 18, it was announced today by Mrs. Lee J. Scott, chairman.

The Yuletide tour, which is fast becoming one of the popular events of the holiday season, is scheduled from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. Those opening their homes for this year's tour are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Douma, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elkins, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Finlayson and Mrs. John M. Wooden.

As an added attraction, Mr. Finlayson will also show the Perry-Davis Hotel dining room, featuring his well-known "Partridge in a Pear Tree." Another feature which will be of special interest to those joining the tour is Mrs. Douma's complete collection of the Royal Copenhagen, Bing and Gyondhal Christmas plate series, dating back to the years and 1908.

Tickets may be purchased at the Central Drug Store, Schroeder Drugs or from Mrs. Eugene Bergmann, president of MACLD. Tickets may also be obtained from any member of the organization.

Independent Cagers Are Off and Running

Eight Teams Provide Mid-Week Entertainment

By DAVE SHEPPARD

The Independent league is proving to be some pretty exciting mid-week entertainment this year for the Charlevoix residents.

After two weeks of play and 16 games, the eight-team league finds itself with no stand-out runaway teams. At this point, there are four teams that are anybody's guess for the championship. bank with a one win one loss record has scored 144 points, Andy's Tire World, two wins no loss, 138 points, Head Shop beauty salon, one and one, also with 138 and Hess Furniture with two and no loss record has score 125 points. As you can see, these teams aren't out there for the exercise.

In the third game of the season, Andy's had a knock down drag out battle with First State Bank. Andy's trailed most of the way but came from behind in the last minute to win the game by a four-point margin. The First State Bank found itself in foul trouble almost from the outset with four of its eight players fouling out before the game ended.

Last Thursday Hess furniture and the Head Shop had a nerve racking battle that wound up with Hess furniture on top by only three points. The Head Shop, down by 11, battled back to put a scare into Hess in the late minutes of the game, but ended in a up-hill battle all the way.

This Wednesday all four of these teams meet again. Hess Furniture takes on the highest scoring team in the league, First State Bank at 7:45 p.m. Andy's Tire World will meet the Head Shop 9:00 p.m. on the same night.

Cage Sked For Grades 3 Through 6

A basketball program for boys in grades three through six is announced by the Charlevoix coaching staff.

The program will be supervised by members of the staff and Varsity basketball players.

Third graders will meet Saturdays from 9 until 10:30 a.m. at the High School gym.

Fourth graders meet Saturdays from 10:30 until noon at the High School gym.

Fifth graders meet Saturdays from 9 until 10:30 at the Middle School gym.

Sixth graders meet Saturdays from 10:30 until noon at the Middle School gym.

In addition, Fifth and Sixth graders will practice Tuesday nights from 6:30 until 8 at the Middle School.

Commission Convenes

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will meet Dec. 15 at the courthouse.

On the agenda are a report by Equalization Director Joan Blanchard, a report on snow removal at the courthouse, finance committee reports and the opening of bids for publication of commissioner's proceedings, according to Clarence Rabach, clerk.

Independent Action At Middle School

IT WAS EVERY man for himself when Andy's Tire World met the First State Bank in Independent League play last Wednesday. All IL games are played at the Middle School gymnasium Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Hess, Andy's On Top

By DAVE SHEPPARD

Last week in the Independent League, Topside beat Medusa by a score of 75 to 41 for its first win of the season while Medusa lost its second straight.

Medusa stayed within three points of Topside in the first quarter but went down hill from there.

High point men for the Topside were Swanson 25, and Cross 18. Medusa had two men in double figures, Puttman 15, and Stuart 10.

First State Bank bounced back for its first win of the season by trouncing Kusina 80 to 54. The quarterly scores 18-13, 37-29, 56-41, 80-54. High point men for the First State Bank were Gary Stutzman with 19 points and Gal Sheldon with 17. For Kusina, Mike Ready had 13, Blissett 12, and McCuskey 12.

Andy's Tire World handed the Best Insurance team its first loss while racking up its second win in as many starts last Wednesday night with an easy defeat over the Ellsworth representatives 67 to 54. Hans Frank shot in 19 for Andy's to lead all scorers while Dave Novotny hit for 16. For Best Insurance, Joe Donaldson led with 9.

Hess Furniture finds itself in first place in Division A after defeating the Head Shop 65 to 62. The quarterly scorer went as follows: 21-11, 38-29, 50-46, 65-63. High point man for the game was Ike Boss with 22 points for the lossing team while Joe Beadoin connected for 19 and Bruce Megglson got 16 to lead scoring for Hess Furniture. After two weeks the division standings are:

DIVISION - A
HESS 2 wins 0 loss
TOPSIDE 1 - 1

HEADSHOP 1 - 1
MEDUSA 0 - 2

DIVISION - B
Andys 2 wins 0 loss
FIRST STATE 1 - 1
BEST-INSUR. 1 - 1
KUSINA 0 - 2

This week there are six games on tap. Wednesday night will feature Best's Insurance vs. Kusina motors at 6:30 p.m. Hess Furniture will take on the First State Bank at 7:45 p.m. and Andy's Tire World goes against the Head Shop at 9 p.m.

Thursday night at 6:30 the Head Shop vs Medusa, Andy's take on the Topside lounge at 7:45 and Hess furniture are pitted against Best Insurance of Ellsworth at 9 p.m.

The league will resume action on Jan. 5 after the Christmas holidays.

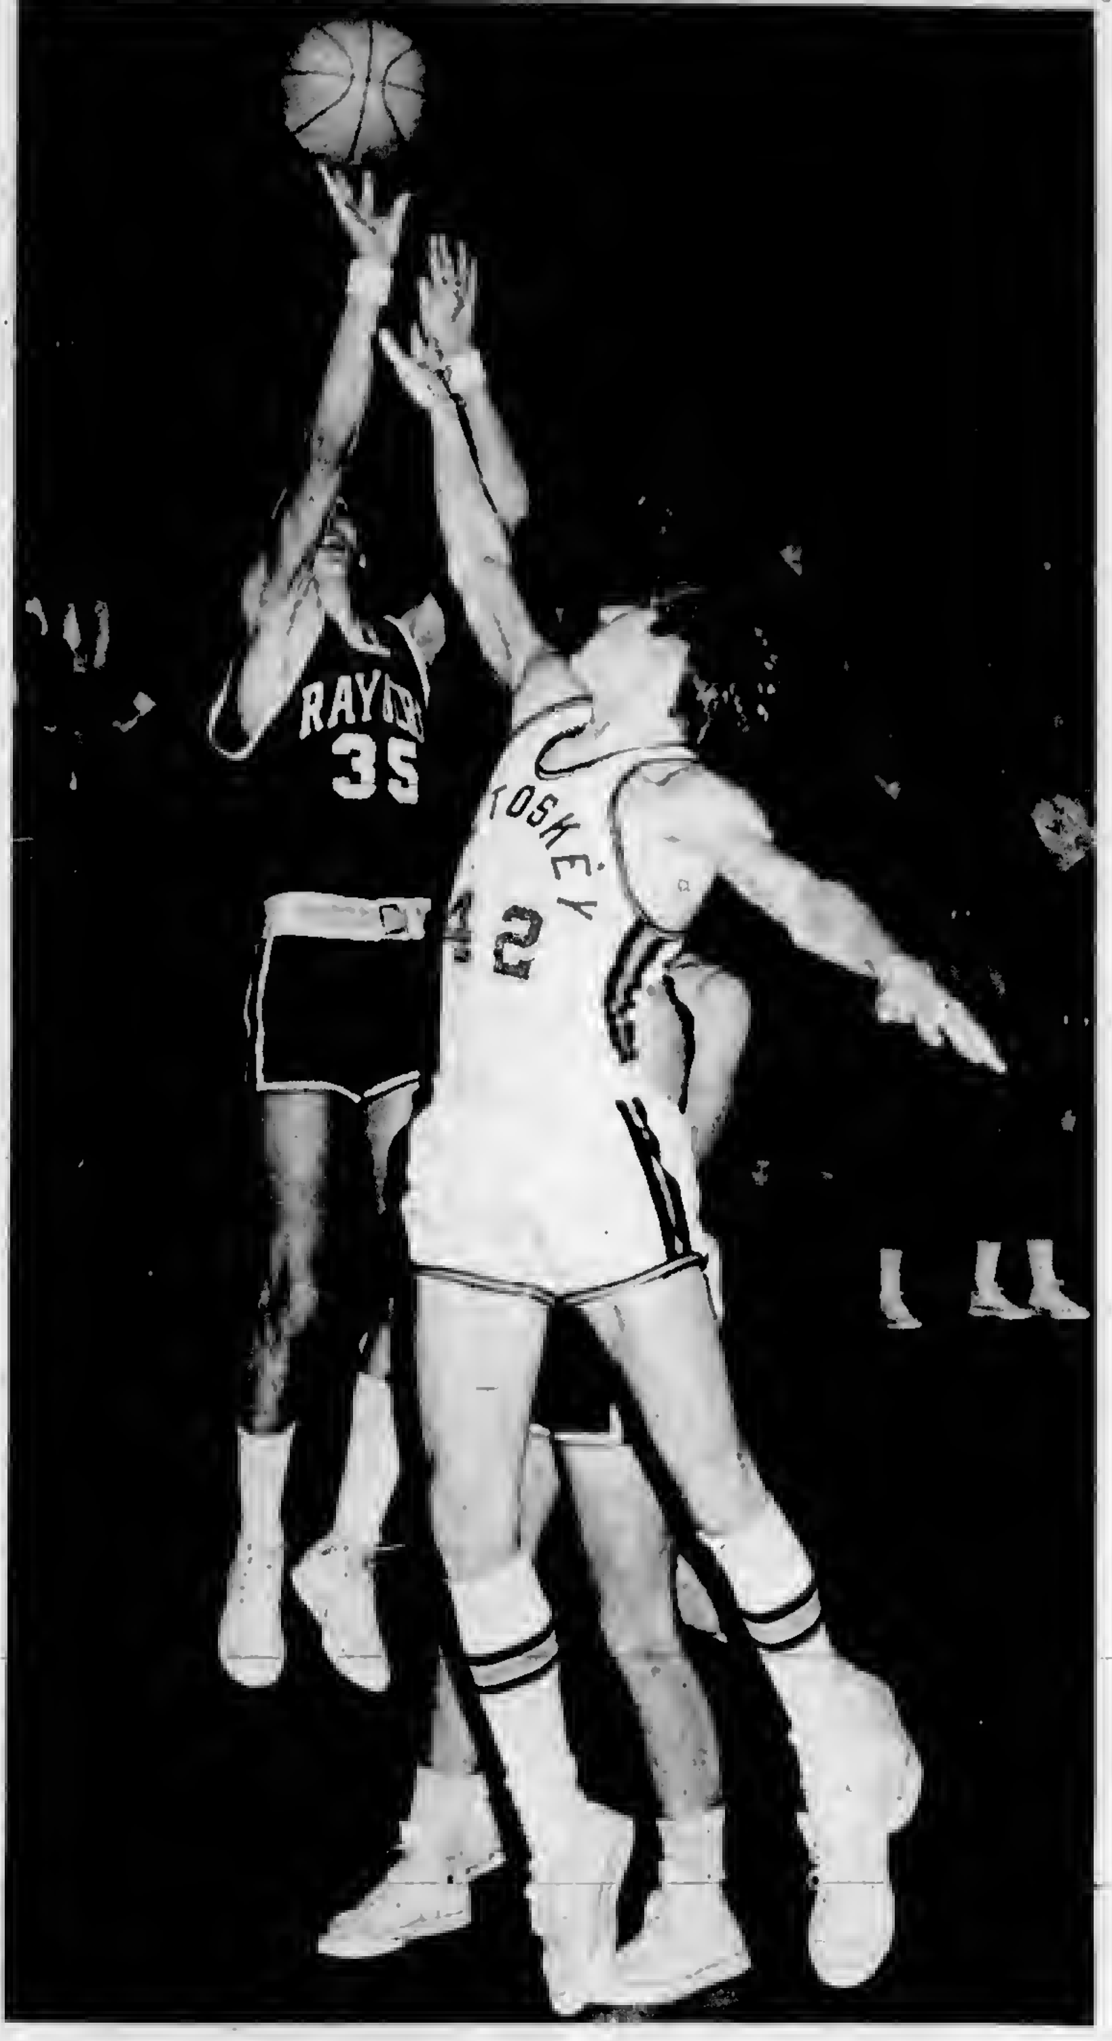
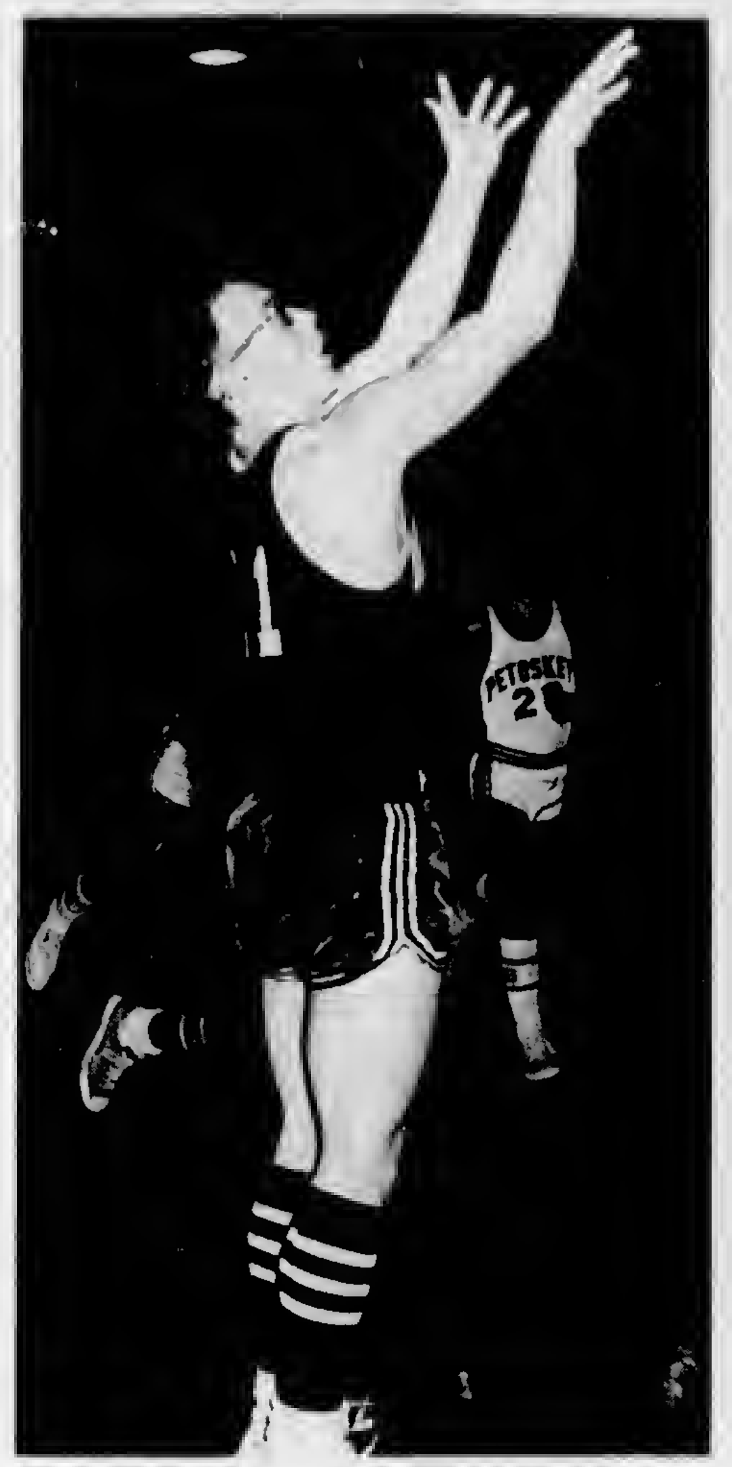
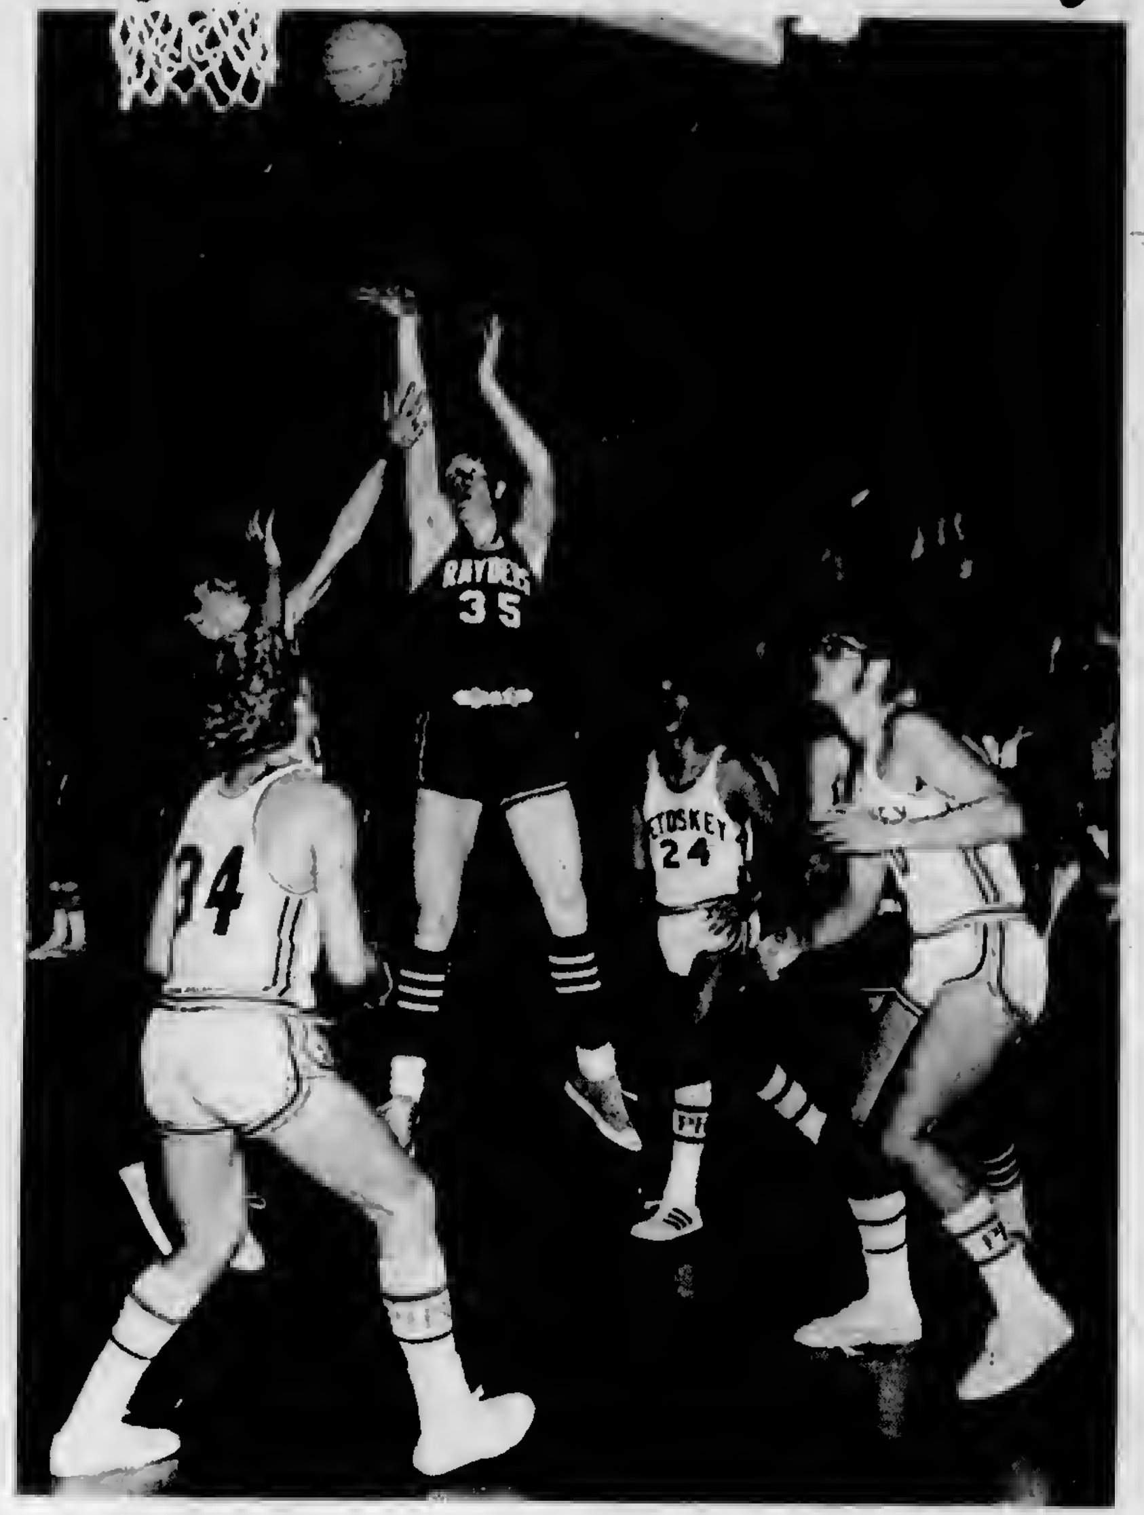
Rayders Romp Over Boyne City and Petoskey



JAYVEE Jerry Skippergosh shoots for basket over long reach of Petoskey's Dave Faulkner. Skippergosh racked up 26 of Charlevoix's 64 points.

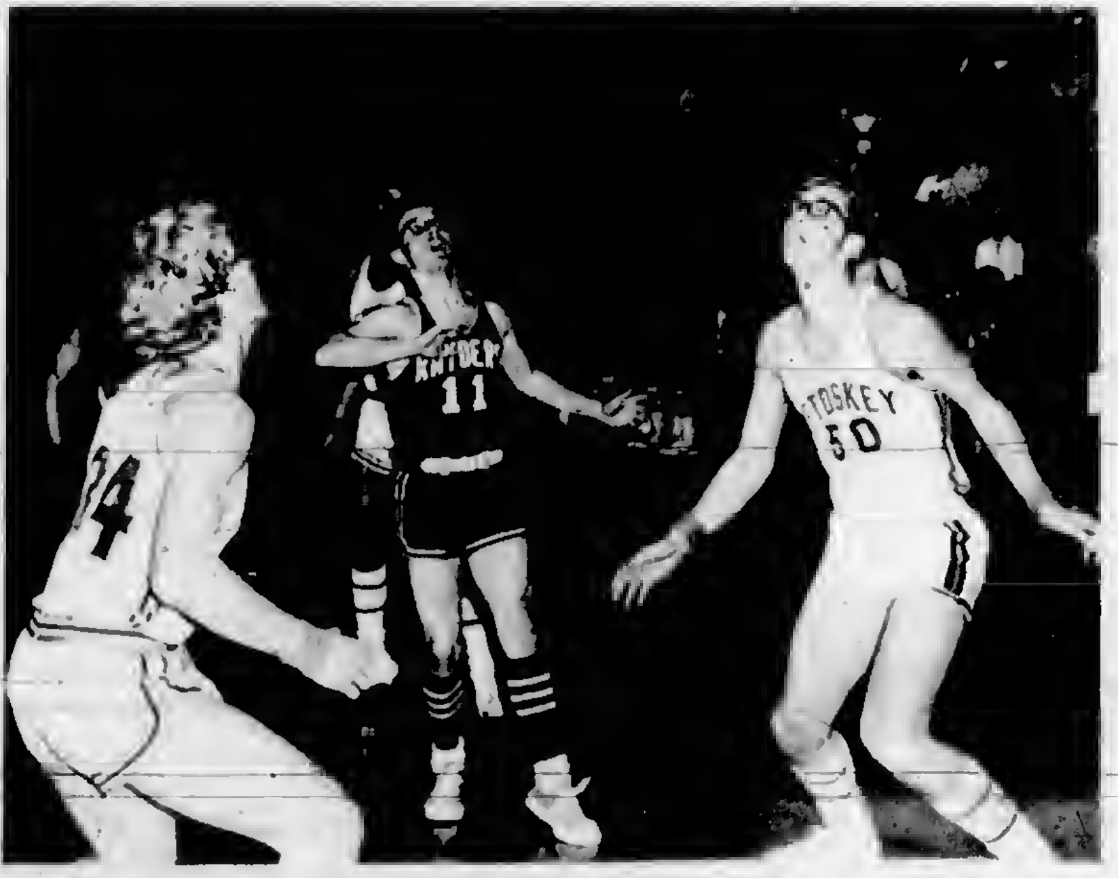


ROGER CRAIN has a wide open shot at the basket in Friday's game. Crain was credited with six points on two fieldgoals and two freethrows.



RAYDER Ned Henley (No. 35) tries a long shot against the Petoskey Northmen. Henley scored seven points toward the Charlevoix win, 54-29.

BILL CAREY has no trouble shooting over the head of Northman Dave Meyer. Carey, who has set the pace for Charlevoix scorers so far this season, relinquished the point crown to Jerry Pease in the game against Petoskey Friday.



ROGER CRAIN (No. 11) and Northmen Gary Urman (34) and Dale Meyer (50) wait for ball to return from orbit.

Gaylord Blue Devils Next on Rayder Sked

Charlevoix Varsity eagers pocketed two more basketball games last week, giving them a 4-1 record for the season.

Tuesday, the Rayders defeated the Boyne City Ramblers 50 to 39 in a home match. On Friday, they traveled to Petoskey to trounce the Northmen by a surprising score of 54 to 29.

This Friday, the Rayders will meet the Gaylord Blue Devils at Charlevoix, the last game before the Christmas holidays.

In the Boyne City game, Larry Potter was high man with 18 points on eight fieldgoals and two freethrows.

He was followed by Bill Carey, 10 (4 and 2); Jerry Pease, 8 (3 and 2); Ned Henley and Roger Crain, 6 each (3 fieldgoals); and Tim Carey, 2 (1 fieldgoal).

The Rayders led from the beginning with quarter scores of 17-12; 28-22; 40-28; and 50-39.

Sharing scoring honors for Boyne were Duff and Newville, 13 each; Spencer, 11; and Stanek, 2.

In the Petoskey game, the Rayders led by only one point at the end of the first quarter, but increased their lead in every period thereafter.

Jerry Pease was high man with 14 points on five fieldgoals and four freethrows.

Following were Bill Carey, 11 (5 and 1); Dave Swanson, 9 (4 and 1); Ned Henley, 7 (2 and 3); Roger Crain, 6 (2 and 2); Tim Carey, 4 (1 and 2) and Lee Simpson, 3, (1 and 1).

Petoskey failed to have a single man in double figures. Scorers were Kiogima, 9; Dave Meyer, 7; Davies, 4; Urman, Mays and Dale Meyer, 2 each; and Mateskon, Dave Stein and Blomberg, 1 each.

Quarter scores were 12-11; 23-18; 38-25; and 54-29.

Jayvees Win 'Em Both

Junior Varsity cagers cinched two more victories by hefty margins last week.

On Tuesday, the Jayvee Rayders outplayed their Boyne City counterparts 60 to 38. On Friday, they came back to defeat Petoskey, 64 to 42.

High man in both games was lanky Jerry Skippergosh. He scored 23 points against Boyne City on 8 fieldgoals and 7 freethrows. He did even better against Petoskey, with 26 points on 12 fieldgoals and 2 freethrows.

Trailing Skippergosh in the Boyne City game were Clayton Jones, 14 (6 and 2); Steve McClellan, 9 (4 and 1); Randy Faust, 8 (4 fieldgoals); Jim Potter, 4 (2 fieldgoals); and Pat Plumm, 2 (1 fieldgoal).

The Jayvees led all the way against the Ramblers, with quarter scores of 14-7; 29-14; 42-24; and 60-38.

Scoring for Boyne City were Shay, 12; Scott Upton and Hardy, 6 each; Miller and Wilson, 4 each; Brad Upton, 3; Fineout, 2; and Hall, 1.

Following Skippergosh in the scoring column against Petoskey were Randy Faust, 10 (5 fieldgoals); Steve McClellan, 10 (4 and 2); Jim Potter, 9 (4 and 1); Clayton Jones, 5 (1 and 3) and Pat Plumm, 2 (1 fieldgoal).

Scoring for Petoskey were Potts, 13; Hilton, 11; Faulkner and Willson, 4 each; and Wilhelm, Eaton, Kuebler, Lynn and Higley, 2 each.

Quarter scores were 23-11; 39-23; 53-32; and 64-42 with Charlevoix in the lead from the start.

CHS Students To Decorate Class Doors

By STEVE KANTOLA

The Friends of the Arts Committee will be sponsoring a door-decorating contest among the various first hour classes. The contest will require each class to decorate its door with Christmas decorations.

Students started decorating Dec. 10 and must finish by Dec. 17. Any door that is not completed by the assigned date will be automatically disqualified from the judging.

On Monday, Dec. 20, prizes will be awarded to the first and second place doors. The judging will be on the basis of originality and general appearance. The judges will be announced later.

'Messiah' Set Sunday At Petoskey

George Frederic Handel's stirring Christmas oratorio, "The Messiah," will be presented Sunday, Dec. 19, at 3:30 p.m. in the Petoskey Junior High Auditorium under the direction of Gig Stewart.

Members of the 100-voice choir and 30-piece orchestra come from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Indian River, Harbor Springs and Traverse City, as well as the Petoskey area.

Solo sections will be sung by four Ann Arbor residents with wide backgrounds as professional vocalists.

Santa, Wassail To Welcome Bank Patrons

The Charlevoix County State Bank has arranged a visit from Santa Claus Friday, Dec. 17 from 5 until 8 p.m.

A photographer will be on hand to take color pictures of youngsters as they discuss their Christmas lists with the old man. The pictures will be given to their parents as gifts from the bank.

Santa's visit will cap a day-long open house at the bank, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Customers and friends are invited to drop in for wassail, cookies and gifts.

She'll Cover East Jordan For Courier

Mrs. Joan Burkey of East Jordan will write East Jordan news for the Charlevoix Courier beginning with next week's edition.

A native of Wales, she was married to Robert G. Burkey in London in 1955 and moved to the United States the same year.

In 1966, the Burkeys moved from Lansing to East Jordan where Burkey is employed in the Engineering Department of the East Jordan Iron Works. They have three children, Greg, 15; Jennifer, 11; and Louise, 9.

For the past several months, Mrs. Burkey has worked at the desk of the Weathervane Terrace Motel in Charlevoix.

Investigate Pitfalls Before Buying Homesite in North

Don't let your vacation homesite become a legal battleground. Check with local authorities before investing in northern Michigan dreamland, advises Willard Bosserman, county extension director for Roscommon and Crawford counties.

"Most developers are honest and above board," he states, "but even the most honest individuals sometimes forget to tell prospective buyers about potential problems."

Bosserman says that some people have purchased options to buy land and were given quitclaim deeds. Later they found, to their dismay, that they did not own the property.

"Similarly, some persons have built $30,000 homes on property which they later found out was not theirs," he notes.

"Demand an abstract and have it checked by your attorney. This is the only way you can be sure of a clear title to the property you paid for."

The privacy promised by a private road entices some prospective property owners, but a private road is not maintained by the County Road Commission, points out the extension director. In a subdivision, it is up to the owner to contract for snow removal and to keep the private roads passable. Find out if the roads in "your" development are public or private.

"Some individuals have purchased a lot with the idea of locating their mobile home on it, and later were confronted by a zoning official who told them they could not do so," Bosserman points out.

"Over zealous salesmen may promise lake or river access which turns out to be a state park already overcrowded. Or, the sales person may mean a road end access, which is a dubious means of satisfying the gleam in the purchaser's eye.

"Check with the local health department about locating a well and septic tank. They must be 50 feet apart. On some lots, it is almost impossible to obtain the necessary distance between the two."

Bosserman recommends a Cooperative Extension bulletin, number E-676, "Vacation Homesites." This publication can be obtained from the local Cooperative Extension Service office or by writing to the Bulletin Office, Michigan State University, P.O. Box 231, East Lansing, Mich. 48823.

Yule Tree Sales to Send Kids to Camp

The Special Education office of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District is selling Christmas trees this year to benefit youngsters enrolled in Special Education classes.

The trees are on sale at the Charlevoix Co-Op and at the Special Education office on Stover-rd. The price is $6.

Proceeds will be used to send youngsters on a winter camp-out near Traverse City.

Turkey Dinner This Saturday At Ellsworth

The Ellsworth Senior Class is holding a turkey dinner Saturday, Dec. 18, from 1 until 7 p.m. to raise money for the class trip to Disney World in Florida next spring.

Patrons can either eat at the school, pick up their dinner and take it home or have it delivered at a nominal charge.

Along with turkey, the menu includes potato salad, baked beans, coleslaw, rolls and apple or pumpkin pie. Pick up and deliveries do not include beverage.

Deliveries will be made in the Ellsworth-Atwood area by calling 588-2544.

Adult dinners cost $2. Charge for children up to 12 is $1.25.

CHS Auto Mechanics Students Learn by Doing

TIM REEDY makes vacuum hose repair on auto engine while Louis Cebulski looks on. Both are enrolled in Charlevoix's new auto mechanics course at the Southgate garage.

AUTO MECHANICS student Mark Blanchard learns how to use hydraulic equipment to remove tire from rim.

27 Boys Enrolled In Course

The South Gate Service Station, leased from Bruce Donaldson by the Charlevoix School District last September for the teaching of auto mechanics, is proving a boon to education in Charlevoix, according to Robert Cook, vocational education director.

The facility is being used as a working classroom for 27 boys interested in learning the basics of auto mechanics.

The garage came equipped with all the heavy equipment needed, Cook said. The only major purchase to date has been a hydraulic lift to remove engines from automobiles.

The course is being taught in two sections, with each section meeting two hours a day, under the direction of Richard McLenon, a newcomer to the Charlevoix High School staff.

McLenon reports that many local companies and businesses have been helpful in donating teaching aids and materials.

A course in small engine repair and electricity is being taught in the same building by McLenon. The class is made up of 9th and 10th grade boys and meets one hour a day. The electrical portion of the course is taught at the High School by John Mills, building trades instructor.

Local industries also have been helpful in getting the small engine repair course off the ground by donations of materials and equipment, much of which is still arriving.

Last week, the School District announced that South Gate is being reopened as a diesel fuel outlet, under the managership of Gerald Sandahl.

Distributive Education students will work with Sandahl in learning the practical aspects of the petroleum business.

In addition to diesel fuel, the station will sell Arco products.

GREG SITZEMA is learning-by-doing in CHS's new auto mechanics course. Here he repairs a faulty muffler.

Calling Vietnam? Have Him Phone You

Michigan Bell reminds the families and friends of American servicemen in Vietnam to plan ahead for holiday telephone calls between the two countries.

"If you have holiday greetings to exchange by phone with a relative or friend in Vietnam, arrange to have him place the call from there," local Bell manager Kenneth T. Harrold suggested.

He said that trying to reach a particular serviceman quickly by calling from the U.S. is close to impossible – servicemen are likely to be on duty or stationed in remote areas where they're extremely difficult to locate.

To minimize these difficulties, Harrold explained, special arrangements have been made again this year to permit servicemen to call home at the times most convenient to them.

The U.S.O., the military, the Bell System and communications people in South Vietnam, Hong Kong, and Guam will be working together to simplify the calling and permit the maximum number of men to talk.

Last year, more than 1,000 calls per day were completed by the Bell System throughout the holiday season for off-duty servicemen in Vietnam calling home.

Many servicemen call from the U.S.O. center in downtown Saigon, but calls also can be placed from a number of hospitals and service centers at bases elsewhere in the country.

Families and friends of Americans stationed in other southeast Asian countries were also advised to make arrangements for servicemen there to originate the holiday phone calls, since they too often are difficult to locate.

Rates on telephone calls at all hours between the U.S. and Vietnam are $9 for a three-minute station-to-station call and $12 for a three-minute person-to-person call. Servicemen can call collect so that the messages can be paid for at home.

Vietnam is 13 hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.

The lighted Cross on the back of our Church is shining bright each night wishing each one a Happy Holiday Season with many, many blessings in the New Year.

Mrs. William Harrison of Middletown, Ohio, has been spending a week in their local home.

Rain and more rain and temperatures in the 40's. Lawns are green. We really can't complain as this weather will shorten the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williams left Sunday to spend the winter in Tarpan Springs, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Russell, Mrs. Lydia Orvis and daughter Alice Schanick are spending the winter in Punta Gorda, Fla.

Mrs. Mary Bennett has returned home after spending several days as a medical patient in Little Traverse Increased telephone rates became effective December 4th. The changes affect residence and business customers differently. Here are the facts:

Residence Customers

Monthly charges for Princess® phones will go up 5¢, Trimline® phones 10¢ and Touch-Tone® service 15¢. Additional directory listings cost a nickel more—40¢.

The charge for installation of telephone service is now $20 (includes one line and one or more instruments). Instrument moves and changes and telephone number changes made at a customer's request have been increased from $8.80 to $10 for all work done on the same order. The charge for changing to Nickel-A-Minute service is now $10.

There will be no increase in charges to residence customers for the following services: • Local, Zone and Long Distance messages • Monthly rates for basic service • Monthly charges for extension phones • Special services for the handicapped • Nickel-A-Minute (either the $2 charge or the minute rate).

Business Customers

All basic service charges have increased a minimum of 45¢ a month to a maximum of $1.85 a month, depending upon location and type of service.

Rates for the following service items have been increased 8.5 percent rounded off to the nearest 5¢: PBX, Centrex and Key Service, Private Line Service, toll and local private lines, Locality and Rural Zone charges, business extension phones, and additional listings in alphabetical directories.

Monthly charges for Princess® phones will go up 5¢, Trimline® phones 10¢, and Touch-Tone® service 15¢.

There's now a one-time installation charge of $10 for each line installed and a $10 charge for each instrument installed. Instrument moves and changes and telephone number changes made at a customer's request have been increased from $8.80 to $10. The charge for changing to Nickel-A-Minute service is now $10.

There will be no increase in charges to business customers for the following services: • Local, Zone and Long Distance messages • Mobile telephone equipment • Teletypewriter equipment • Data sets • Connecting arrangements • Special services for the handicapped • WATS.

If you have any questions regarding the new phone rates, please call your local Michigan Bell business office.

Christmas Activities Keep Clubs Hopping

By Beth Genelt

LITTLE FLOWER GUILD

Twenty members of the Little Flower Guild met recently at the home of Mrs. Francis 'Bud' Left. A Christmas sketch by Carla, Connie and Cindy Left was presented to the group. Reports were given on the huge success of the recent bazaar and dinner held at the St. Mary's school. The next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, Jan. 6 at the Mercer-blvd. home of Mrs. Charles 'Gus' Sonnenberg.

ROD AND GUN CLUB AUXILIARY

Members of the Rod and Gun Club Auxiliary held their annual Christmas party Dec. 11 at the Club House. A banquet was served and a program for the children was held. Gifts were exchanged at the close of the evening.

KAPPA SIGMA CHAPTER BETA SIGMA PHI

The regular meeting of Kappa Sigma Chapter Beta Sigma Phi was held Monday evening Dec. 13 at the home of Mrs. Walter Hufford. The evening featured the annual Christmas party, with Mrs. Paul Stephan, Mrs. Gregory Newman and Mrs. Claire Martin serving on the Social committee. A tape of Christmas songs was played during the evening program at which an exchange of gifts and Christmas cookies was made. Games were played with prizes being awarded.

VFW AUXILIARY

The VFW Club House was the scene of the VFW Auxiliary annual Christmas party Sunday, Dec. 12. Following a potluck dinner for families of the auxiliary, Santa Claus appeared with gifts for all the children - and an exchange of gifts by adults was made. The hall was completely decorated with the traditional Christmas tree and all of the trimmings.

COUNTY EXTENSION GROUP

Thirty-five members, including Mary Luttinen, of Petoskey, County Extension Leader and Chairman Mrs. Robert Tripp of Bay Shore were present for the annual Christmas dinner held at the Hospitality room of the First State Bank on Wednesday, Dec. 8.

Each member brought an ornament which was used to decorate a Christmas tree which was later presented to the Retarded Work Shop.

During the program a musical presentation was furnished by five members of the Charlevoix school music department, including Kevin Gallagher, Terry Mol, Ron Winchester, Roxann Russell and Jim Pettis.

All members attending brought a Christmas gift for patients at the Gaylord State Home which were delivered by Mrs. Floyd Baker of Bay Shore.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Judge W. Richard Smith:

A charge of larceny lodged against Wayne W. Jacob, 18, of Washington, Mich., was dismissed.

Richard LaRose, 26, East Jordan, was found guilty at trial of being drunk and disorderly. He was assessed $35 or sentenced to 10 days in jail. He also was placed on one year's probation and ordered to stay away from the East Jordan Teen Center.

Andrew T. Nickrant, 59, East Jordan, was found guilty at trial of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was assessed $105 and his driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

John H. Crandell, 38, Boyne City, demanded examination on a charge of arson and asked for the services of a court-appointed attorney. The case was continued.

John G. Fogarty, 17, Ellsworth, was sentenced to 10 days in jail on a charge of being a minor in possession of alcoholic beverages. Fogarty was charged last July but failed to keep his original court appointment. He was apprehended in Detroit.

Douglas Wiser, 17, East Jordan, plead guilty to a reduced charge of unauthorized tampering with an automobile. He will be sentenced later.

Carl VanDeCar, 18, Charlevoix, was sentenced to 30 days in jail on a charge of petty larceny.

Michael D. Straw, 17, Charlevoix, plead guilty to a charge of reckless use of firearms. He will be sentenced later.

James L. Simonsen, 20, Charlevoix, was assessed $105 and had his driver's license suspended for 90 days on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Nelson C. Brookings, 19, Central Lake, waived examination and was bound over to the December term of Circuit Court on a charge of larceny.

Evart T. Mason, 31, Charlevoix, demanded examination on charges of assault and battery, driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor and resisting an officer in the discharge of his duties. Examination was scheduled for Dec. 23. Bond of $5,000 was not furnished.

"My husband, Alexander, is a Lt. Commander in the Navy.
Four years ago he was reported missing in action.
There's a chance he was taken prisoner and is still alive.
But I don't know.
And I can't find out.
Hanoi won't tell our government.
Hanoi won't tell me."

One side of the POW question is not complicated. That's the human side.

ALTHOUGH the prisoner-of-war question is often complex and even confusing, one side of it should be very simple. That's the part that deals with the treatment of prisoners of war. That's not a political issue, but a human issue.

Of course, we all want the war to end and the prisoners of war to be released as soon as possible.

But meanwhile there is no need for Hanoi and its allies to delay even a day in answering this plea:

Let your POW camps in North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos be visited by neutral observers.

Let the world know the names of the men you have held so long in secret captivity.

Assure the world through unbiased official observers that you are treating American Prisoners according to humane standards long practiced by civilized nations.

That's the issue.
It's that simple.
It's that non-political.
It's that human.

Hanoi can open its prison camps to neutral observers without bargaining, even without consultation.

By doing so now, Hanoi would earn the gratitude of millions of Americans and find new stature in the eyes of the world.

SUPPORT OUR PLEA TO HANOI AND ITS ALLIES:

Clear away the doubts—Open your prison camps to neutral observers... now!

We ask no more than we give. All American and South Vietnamese prison camps are inspected regularly by official neutral observers—The International Committee of the Red Cross.

CHS Wrestlers in Training

TED SCHANTZ and Louis Cebulski demonstrate wrestling holds they are learning under the experfise of Coach Norm Probert. Charlevoix matmen won their first match over Rudyard two weeks ago, defeating the Class B school by a healthy margin.

WRESTLERS Jim Marshall and Terry Mol as Pat Linse referees their bout. The matmen work out every afternoon after school in the Charlevoix High School study hall.

CHS News & Views

Distaff Cagers Lose Opener

By TED SCHANTZ

The Charlevoix High School girls basketball team officially started the season last Thursday night at the high school gym.

The Charlevoix team lost to Petoskey 20-17. This game was very close up until the fourth quarter when Petoskey rallied for three points.

Scorers for Charlevoix were: Sheryl Pence, 10; Elaine Carr, 2; Tori Alger, 2 and Regina Borths, 3.

DRY TREES HAZARDOUS

No holiday season is complete without a Christmas tree. But be careful – a dry tree is a fire hazard. Trees should be stored in water and checked each day, especially if near a heating system. Also, never allow a tree to stand more than two weeks.

Yule Concert Sunday

The Charlevoix High School Symphony and Concert Bands, directed by C.A. Odmark, will present a complimentary Christmas concert Sunday, Dec. 19, at 3:30 p.m. in the high school gym.

The bands will play 90 minutes of traditional Christmas music and various other numbers.

No admittance will be charged.

Frosh Lose To Petoskey

The Charlevoix High School Freshmen basketball team dropped their game to Petoskey by a score of 62-36.

Charlevoix never led in the game.

The closest they came was in the first period when the score was 10-9.

However, gradually Petoskey pulled away and by the half the score was 29-16. In the last half Petoskey bombed Charlevoix, winning the game by a 26 point margin.

The leading scorer for the Rayders was Dan Green with 15 points. Ray Whitely was next with 7, Tom Moore and Ron Kewashgen had four and Bob Sandell had two.

Dr. Tanton's Lawsuit May Save Wilderness

The Courier erred last week.

We stated editorially that only Frank Shelden can save Monroe Creek Valley from exploitation.

Shelden, you'll remember, is the land developer who received permission from the Natural Resources Commission last week to construct a dam across Monroe Creek, thereby creating a 400-acre lake and paving the way for a 1,500-homesite development. The Commission also agreed to swap state-held fishing rights on Monroe Creek for others owned by Shelden on Warner Creek.

Now it appears that Shelden has a formidable adversary in Dr. John Tanton of Petoskey.

Last week, Dr. Tanton filed suit in Ingham County Circuit Court against the Natural Resources Commission and its director, Ralph A. MacMullen.

A member of the Sierra Club and a long-time conservationist, Dr. Tanton is challenging the right of the Commission to grant the dam permit on grounds that the dam will have an adverse effect on wildlands in the area and destroy a substantial portion of a top quality trout stream.

Dr. Tanton also claims the Natural Resources Commission short-changed the people of Michigan by swapping Monroe Creek fishing easements for easements of lesser value.

The lawsuit, needless to say, is going to cost money. Dr. Tanton has said he will pay the initial costs out of his own pocket, but would appreciate contributions to defray some of the expense.

Need we say more?

Reader Takes Satirical Poke At 'Condos'

Dear Mr. Editor:

The era of the condominium has indeed arrived. I propose giving these planners a freer hand all around. "Condos" on the north side of Round Lake would be especially fine. Occupants could sit on their balconies and gaze across at balcony sitters on the south side, and from the vantage point of East Park, one could enjoy the beauties of both.

Also, it seems incredible that such a choice spot as Old River Island has remained inviolate. Given time and enough money, a condominium or two could arise there!

There is no limit to accommodating people, once you put your mind to it. How about a paved parking lot at the channel end of State-st.? That spot at the end of Petoskey-ave. which gives one such a lovely feeling of closeness to the lake—surely it could support a large, impressive, view-blocking condominium.

However we might as well get used to being crowded. When 1,500 families from the proposed Monroe Creek community come to town to shop, and mingle with a few hundred visitors to the Woodland Memorial Park, we will have conditions approximating the first day at the State Fair. Considering how Charlevoix is situated, our only recourse may be to jump in the lake,

Yours, ever so sincerely,
Marian Broussard

Friske Critic: Wasn't He The One Who

Mr. Robert Clock
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Bob,

Since you were attacking our representative in Lansing in your Clockwise column last week, why didn't you give him both barrels.

Wasn't he the one who campaigned for less government spending, but accepted during the first month in office a wage raise to make him a member of one of the highest paid legislatures in our nation?

Wasn't he the one who claimed during the general election that he would not be dominated by any one organization but would stress his own views? Now it seems that all he represents is the John Birchers,

Wasn't he the one who claimed to be a Republican? In all the literature put out thus far, how many times has he spoken for or as a Republican? Now is the time when the county Republicans committees can show their colors because they certainly do not owe him anything! Do they think the Democrats will put up a weak candidate this time?

Wasn't he the one who said that his Lansing job would be just a stepping stone for him to get to Washington? Seems that his concern (so called positive bills) are mainly Federal problems in which a state representative has no voice in whatsoever.

Wasn't he the one who is against sex education in schools or any abortion legislation because he is against killing in any form and the JBS claims as a Communist plot? Yet the same society advocates a war with victory using atomic warheads on cities killing men, women and children. Because they are ruled by Communists are they not innocent?

Wasn't he the one who claims to get poor press coverage by a biased press, yet receives up to 30 column inches weekly in both the Petoskey and Charlevoix papers? This is not to mention the other papers who give him coverage of anything of importance concerning their areas or the excellent news releases daily or the five-minute program weekly on both Petoskey radio stations or the personal appearances on Sound Off.

Wasn't he the one...I could go on and on. I see why you can't give him both barrels because you'd run out of ink. We worked together to try and tell everyone his story before the election, but now that its happening I still can't gloat.

Sincerely,

David Fowler, R. Ph.

(Editor's note: Regarding press coverage, we don't claim that Rep. Friske receives 30 column inches a week in the Courier, however we do try to run all of his press releases which we deem newsworthy.)

Machines Fight War

We mothers have made it manifestly clear that we will not allow the continued slaughter of our sons in Indochina to carry out the insane policies of our government.

So, to continue a full-scale war in Indochina, the military has developed the automated battlefield. They have "big brother" computers which can scan huge areas and report any human movement as a blip on a screen—they can't tell the blip's politics or its age, but they can remove that blip by the press of a button—swift, clean, impersonal!

They have planes which can rain a hail of bombs on an unprotected village—and they don't even need pilots. They have bombs which can change their course mid-air and pursue fleeing people.

President Nixon thinks that by returning our sons to us he will buy our silence. But there is no mother anywhere who is enemy to another mother, and all children are our children. We will not rest until our government's barbaric war against the people of Indochina is ended.

Another mother for peace.

Kelley Asked For Opinion On Friske

(The following letter has been sent to Attorney General Frank Kelley relative to Rep. Friske's year-end report.)

Dec. 8, 1971

Frank Kelley,
Attorney General,
Lansing, Mich.

Dear Mr. Kelley:

As you know, Richard Friske, a leader of the John Birch Society posing as a Republican, was elected to the House of Representatives last November in the 106th District.

Last week, Rep. Friske sent to his constituents throughout the district a year-end report, apparently printed and mailed at public expense (line 6 of enclosed report) extolling the virtues of the John Birch Society.

On Pg. 3 he writes:

"There is one organization, though, that has found a powerful weapon to use to stop this (influential liberal) minority and its control over America. The weapon is truth, the strategy is education. The organization is the John Birch Society."

"The John Birch Society is an educational and informational group with a 13-year history of success as a fact finder and freedom fighter on both local and national issues. But to support the John Birch Society's massive effort will require the wholehearted support of you and many other Americans and with the help of our God we will win these fights."

My question is this: Can an elected official legally use state funds to promote an organization which opposes democratic government at every turn and is openly critical of democratic processes?

An answer to this question is of utmost importance to the people of the 106th District. Since Rep. Friske's report reached the public, there has even been talk of a state tax boycott until the question is resolved.

Certainly no sane taxpayer wants to see his hard-earned tax dollars spent promoting the likes of the John Birch Society.

A reply as your earliest convenience will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,
Bob Clock, editor

Construction, Housing Bills Are Opposed

Citizens for Tax Reduction, an affiliate of Voice of the People — Michigan, have sent several hundred petitions from the Grand Traverse region to Governor Milliken in opposition to House Bills 5252 and 5358 and Senate Bill 777, according to Mrs. Arthur Wexstaff of Charlevoix.

These bills relate to a Commission to enforce a State-wide Housing Code and a State Construction Code. Copies also were sent to Senator Toepp and to Representatives Dively and Friske.

The purpose of the petitions is to let these officials know the feeling of the people on this legislation. When provisions of these bills were explained, citizens reacted very strongly. Those circulating petitions are convinced that enforcement would be practically impossible. They foresee resistance even greater than in busing.

To prohibit homeowners from moving into their homes or using a building before it is completely finished and a Certificate of Use and Occupancy was obtained would drive many people to modular housing. This would require long term mortgages with interest more than doubling the original cost.

Inspection of homes and compulsory alterations and maintenance would be resented and could end in violence according to comments made to circulators.

House Bill 5252 would create a State Construction Code Commission. This would be one more commission to be supported by fees and service charges and more taxes. The repercussions from these bills could very well carry over to the political campaigns of next year judging from statements made by signers.

Senator Toepp, speaking of H.B. 5252 on October 19, said, "This is a very dangerous bill."

Santa Is Alive and Well

By Bob Clock

Our seven-year-old skeptic, Katie, is beginning to doubt the existence of Santa Claus to the consternation of her parents.

"Is there really a Santa Claus?" she asked her mother the other day, a question that takes more courage to ask than just about any other I can think of.

"Santa Claus," Judy answered wisely, "is whoever loves you best."

Katie's big eyes narrowed and her brow furrowed with the sharp plowshare of suspicion.

"But I thought you and daddy loved me best," Katie said.

"We do," Judy answered, and Katie went about her business still wearing a faintly puzzled expression.

I am glad Judy handled this first confrontation with Second Grade skepticism, because I am terribly afraid I would have botched it.

You see, I still am fairly convinced that there is a Santa Claus. In fact, at times I am downright certain of it.

Haven't you ever received a little note from the bank telling you that there is $7.37 more in your checking account than you thought you had? That was the week Santa Claus hired in as a teller.

Haven't you ever received a notice from your Insurance company saying you are entitled to a dividend. I have. That was the week Santa ran the agency.

Haven't you ever searched your pockets in vain for a nickle to feed the parking meter, and then discovered one right next to your foot on the sidewalk? I have. That was when Santa was keeping company with the meter maid.

Or have you ever scrambled around in your dresser drawer for a pair of socks, only to find a brand new pair you had forgotten you owned. I have. Santa again, who else.

Haven't you ever received an unexpected check in the mail, payment on a debt that was months or years overdue? I have.

Haven't you ever dreaded to go n particular meeting, or keep a particular appointment, only to have it cancelled the last minute? It has happened to me.

Haven't you ever had an instructor forget to show up for a final exam and then give the whole class "B's" by way of apology? That happened to me once when I hadn't even expected to receive a passing grade. Santa must have had a hand in it.

The old man makes himself known in other ways as well.

For example, take those days when everything at the office falls into place just as it should. And then your wife calls and says she has picked up a nice steak for supper. You can't tell me Santa didn't have a hand in the arrangements.

Or the lazy Sunday afternoon picnic at Depot Beach, when you find a vacant grill, with a fire already started, and an empty picnic table in your favorite spot. That has to be the Sunday when the water in Lake Charlevoix is so warm you can wade up to your waist without wincing. And on your way back to the car the little stand of poplar near the gate is so fragrant that it begs you to stop and sniff.

Surely things like this don't just happen, do they? Someone like Santa Claus has to do a little planning.

Or take a winter morning, crisp and still, when moisture rising from Pine River Channel has coated every tree limb and pine needle with sleeves of crystal.

Or a spring afternoon when the fields out Barnard way turn every shade of pastel green known to man or God.

Or an evening in fall, when the Fox Islands and the Beavers lie like great sleeping animals above the gun-metal grey of Lake Michigan.

Or take Christmas morning itself when happy little kids with tinkling voices rush downstairs to open their presents under the tree.

If that doesn't convince you there is a Santa Claus, then nothing will.

When Katie has children of her own I think she'll understand what I mean.

Pity Poor Mom

By JIM FITZGERALD

My mother is in trouble. Her hometown newspaper just bought this column.

Come to think, a lot of people may be worried now that this nonsense will appear regularly in the Port Huron (Mich) Times Herald. John and Paul, the chief pourers at the Alibi Bar, for instance. I may slip some week and reveal exactly how much of their saloon actually belongs to me, by virtue of financial investment and eminent domain.

Or little Dickie Davis, the curly-haired son of a minister, may worry that I might tell the world how he encouraged me to shoplift 532 comic books (Dad counted 'em) from Cunningham's Drugstore.

Or Dick Devereaux, another infamous friend of my youth, probably wouldn't want his children to read how he used to leap the monument in front of the old Junior College in a single bound at 3 a.m.

Then there's a guy named Don Mack who will probably start sending me blackmail money 1 second after he reads his name here.

But it's my dear old blue-haired mother who will quake most upon learning that her son's column is now appearing in the newspaper she made me peddle every night for 4 years before she'd let me in out of the cold to eat my cup of gruel.

For years, Mother has been smug in the knowledge that nothing I wrote got within 50 miles of her bridge club. She did occasionally read me in the out-of-town newspaper, mailed to her home in a plain brown wrapper. It was a lot of trouble crawling under the bed to read it, but the effort was worthwhile if she could find a mistake in my spelling or grammar.

"Thank the Good Lord my friends never read the terrible things you write," she always said.

Heh, heh, heh.

Port Huron readera may wonder why it took me so long to "come home." I left town over 20 years. I'm not sure, but I think the delay was caused by my performance when I was first on the Times Herald payroll.

I peddled Route 7A along the St. Clair River, just south of Pine Grove Park, 30 years ago. Some of my old customers still live there. Some of them may still be wondering if I'm ever going to bring their paper.

It wasn't a bad route in the warm months. But, in the winter, the wind came off the river hard enough to blow a carelessly thrown newspaper into the next county. In this manner I delivered many a Port Huron Times Herald to people who never heard of Port Huron.

Then there was that snowstorm when my corduroy pants froze. I couldn't move. The snow drifted over my head and 62 people didn't get a newspaper until spring. When I finally got home again I discovered Mother selling my gruel to a paperhanger who had run out of paste.

Anyway, I didn't cover myself with glory during my first hitch at the Times Herald. I hope to do better this time around, thus becoming a permanent source of pride to my mother who will grow used to people throwing cans at her in the supermarket.

Mother hopes my corduroys freeze again.

Detroit Fights Cement Dust, Noise From City - Financed Peerless Plant

(A. Frank Rothschild, a summer resident of Charlevoix, believes that the following article, which appeared in the Dec. 3 edition of the Wall Street Journal, may be of interest to Charlevoixans. It deals with air and noise pollution on Detroit's Southwest Side resulting from operation of a new Peerless Cement Plant, financed by a city-backed $30 million industrial revenue bond issue.)

By CHARLES B. CAMP
Staff Reporter
Wall Street Journal

DETROIT - Three years ago, amid controversy and protest, this city approved a $30 million industrial revenue bond issue to help finance a major new plant for the Peerless division of American Cement Corp., Los Angeles.

At the time, city officials argued strenuously for the bond issue on the ground it would keep Peerless, and the jobs it offered, within the city.

Now the plant is complete and in operation, but so far, city officials are less than thrilled. In fact, this week they joined in a lawsuit against American Cement that, in its extreme, could force a closing of the six-month-old cement plant.

The reason: The plant is blamed for polluting the air over part of Detroit's Southwest Side.

In a suit filed in the Wayne County circuit court, the air pollution control division of the county health department and the city charged American Cement's Peerless division with allowing excessive dust emissions of cement, limestone, sand and other materials from the new plant. The suit also charges the plant is a source of noise pollution because of heavy trucks that rumble in and out of the plant area.

According to pollution control officials, the suit is intended to force the company to negotiate with the county and city on a formal program to solve pollution problems from the plant. The program, once agreed upon, would then be enforced by the court.

But the suit also includes a request for a permanent injunction for a closedown in the event the company fails to comply with the pollution control program sought under the court order. Morton Sterling, director of the county air pollution control office, asserted the suit was "necessary in order to have legal assurance the company will take needed and proper abatement steps to prevent further insults to the public."

While Detroit city officials don't go so far as to suggest they regret having helped build the plant, Mayor Roman S. Gribbs issued a statement declaring it "absolutely vital that the rights of the people living in the vicinity be protected." Mr. Gribbs wasn't mayor at the time the bond issue was approved.

Pollution control officials say they have given Peerless 11 citations for alleged violations since the plant began operating in June. Residents of the areas have vigorously complained about the plant since then, too.

But Peerless officials said they are puzzled at being hauled into court by the city and county. "We've been doing a great deal and feel we've made good progress," said one official. "We've spent substantial money, time and effort to accelerate work we already had planned." The official contended that "almost everything they've asked us to do has already been completed."

He said many of the dust problems cited stemmed from nonrecurring events, such as grading of the site around the plant or malfunctions in new equipment when first tried, "We're still in the start-up phase," he noted. He said the plant had more than $5 million in up-to-date pollution control equipment installed in it.

The bonds to help finance the project were sold in December 1968. They were the first such bonds ever issued by the city and barely squeezed in ahead of federal limits on that type of financing pending at the time. Under terms of an agreement between the city and American Cement at the time, the city was to hold title to the properties developed under the bond proceeds and the company was to make lease payments to retire the bonds, which range up to 30 years.

Part of the controversy over the bond issue in 1968 stemmed from the fact that a Peerless official joined the staff of the then mayor, Jerome P. Cavanagh, shortly after the city administration had begun to draft details of the bond proposal. The official served in an unpaid position, aiding summer youth projects, for six months before returning to the company. Both the official and the mayor insisted there wasn't any connection between the bond issue and the official's service on the mayor's staff.

Asks Morton For Hearing

Charlevoix, Mich. 49720
Dec. 7, 1971

Hon. Rogers Morton
U.S. Department of Interior
Washington, D.C. 20240

Dear Sir:

On this Dec. 7, anniversary of the Pearl Harbor Day of Infamy, I beg you to hold an open hearing on the proposed Woodland Indian Memorial Park on the Lake Michigan shoreline of Charlevoix County, that local residents may state their grievances.

We, in the county, are of the opinion that we cannot afford this National effort in so-called behalf of Indians, which we believe can add up to nothing short of a local disaster. — Just the proposal alone has worked a devastating hardship on the citizenry involved within the area of the proposed site: Banks will not loan money for either new buildings or improvements on old buildings and to date every landowner is threatened with economic loss which he cannot afford.

As a long time member of the Daughters of the American Revolution I have followed with dismay much of the information coming from our DAR National Defense headquarters. It is my belief and the belief of many other Conservatives that the park will become nothing short of a colossal land-grab to take more and more land out of private ownership.

Can the nation afford this blatant [illegible] toward socialism and Communism that spearheads further loss of individual liberty and justice under God?

Yours truly,
(Mrs.) Arthur Wexstaff

Our 139 Inches of Snow Nets $21,580 From State

Charlevoix County will receive $21,580 from the state Motor Vehicle Highway Fund for snow removal, based on last year's accumulation of 139.17 inches.

The Department of State Highways has announced that it is distributing more than $1 million to counties which qualified for financial assistance last winter.

To be eligible for state snow removal funds, a county must have more than 70 inches of snow during a single winter.

Forty-nine of Michigan's 83 counties qualified for state snow removal money last winter.

Payments are made according to a formula established by the Legislature based on depth of snowfall and the number of miles of state highways to be maintained in each county.

The top five counties in the amount of payment are Chippewa, $40,540; Marquette, $39,302; Allegan, $36,110; Cheboygan, $35,607; and Houghton, $34,837.

However the counties with the top snowfall were Keweenaw, 260.65 inches; Gogebic, 230.64 inches; Ontonagon, 225.37 inches; Houghton, 217.68 inches; and Luce, 202.16 inches.

Emmet County had 154.64 inches of snow and will receive $25,269. Antrim had 145.65 inches and will receive $25,647. Otsego had 182.62 inches and will receive $26,386.

Love Letters to Santa

Dear Santa Claus,

I have been a good boy this year. I want you to bring me a train and three train gates. I want some great big trucks and a real telephone for Christmas, too. I want some markers.

My sister wrote this for me. I am only 6 years old. I want you to write to me. I like you. I like your reindeer. Please bring me a suck full of toys. I like you, Santa Claus.

Merry Christmas,

Love, Larry Wilson.

P.S. Be sure to come and see me Christmas Eve.

Dear Santa,

How are you? I have been a good boy all year long! I want a GI Joe Control Tower, a bean bag set, a toy sleigh and a pool table. I hope you bring me these things on Christmas. I will leave you some goodies on Christmas Eve, for you and your reindeer. I love you and Frosty and Snowman.

Love,
Chris M.

Dear Santa Claus,

These are the things I want for Christmas. Timey Tell and a Teddy Bear. I am sometimes good, but sometimes I am bad.

Love,
Kathy

Dear Santa,

These are the toys I want for Christmas from you. A teddy bear and Smarty pants.

Love,
Karen Beth Robinson

Dear Santa,

I will leave something special. And here are the things I would like:

1. Operation game. 2. Nurse kit. 3. Book ends. 4. Pencil cup sharpener. 5. Fragrance-trinket chest. 6. Timey Tell. 7. Chalk Board.

From Sandy

Susan's List: 1. Buggy. 2. Doll. 3. Play School (like the farm). 4. Carry all luggage trio. 5. Dishes.

Sheryl's list: 1. Doll Stroller. 2. Doll. 3. Carpet sweeper (to help Mom clean). 4. Skis.

Dear Santa:

I would like some ski pants, ski jacket and some toys for my little sisters.

Kim Bolduc

Dear Santa,

I want a snowmobile suit, a radio, a typewriter and a master viewer.

From Brian Martinchek

Dear Santa,

I want a snowmobile suit, guitar, talking Tender Love, Growing Hair Jo Ann, sleeping bag, Barnabas Collins and a Dark Shadows game.

Love,
Brenda Martinchek

Dear Santa:

Please bring me some skates and a football.

Shane

Dear Santa Claus,

I would like for Christmas a candle maker kit and a refill kit with a hot plate to. I also want a game called Skittlepool.

Thank you,
Michael Cohrs

Dear Santa,

My name is Jeff Heise. I'm in first grade in Charlevoix. I would like a G.I. Joe, case of the mummys tomb and a Batman punch me.

Love,
Jeff

Dear Santa,

My name is Tommy Heise. I'm nine months old, so mommy is writing for me. I would like a teddy bear and a tub toy. Thank you.

Love,
Tommy

Dear Santa:

I want a stroller. I want a watch. I want a Talking Velvet. I want a Talking Bugs Bunny. I want a Horton the elephant. I want a baby canopy bed.

From Melanie
206 E. Carpenter

Dear Santa,

My name is Ember Jayne. I'm almost three years old but I can't write yet so my mommy is writing for me.

I would like to have a "Baby Flip-Flop" and a train and a track and brown puzzle like Kelly's.

Thank you. I live by Susan Lake.

Love from Ember Spencer

Dear Santa,

I want a Jaguar, an antique car, a truck and an airplane.

Jack Moran

CHARLEVOIX firemen lent Santa a hand last week by packing boxes of candy for the Jolly Old Elf to deliver to Charlevoix youngsters. Santa paid his annual visit to the foot of Clinton-st. Saturday afternoon.

SANTA presented boxes of candy to Charlevoix youngsters during his annual visit to town Saturday, compliments of the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department. The old gent arrived at the foot of Clinton-st. aboard the fire engine.

Medusa Buying Brick Co.

W. S. Merriman, chairman of Marion Brick Corp., based in Marion, Ohio, and Robert W. Fort, president of Medusa Portland Cement Co., based in Cleveland, Ohio, announced today that the companies had agreed in principal to the acquisition of Marion Brick by Medusa for approximately 200,000 shares of Medusa common stock, having a market value of approximately $7,200,000, or $20 per Marion share.

Marion operates six brick plants in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana, with a total production capacity of 170,000,000 brick annually.

The brick is marketed principally in the Great Lakes and the Mid-Atlantic States.

The proposed merger of the two companies is subject to approval by the stockholders of Marion Brick Corporation.

The boards of directors of both companies have approved the transaction, according to William M. Troutman, Medusa's director of corporate Development and Secretary.

State Police to Mount Special Holiday Patrols

Michigan State Police will operate special holiday patrols beginning at noon each Friday of the Christmas and New Year weekends and extending to Sunday, midnight of each period, Col. John R. Plants, department director, reports.

For traffic statistic purposes the weekend periods will be 54 hours long, from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

Plants noted that Michigan's traffic death toll so far this year is showing about a three percent reduction compared with last year at this time.

In a special appeal to drivers and pedestrians, Plants added:

"Let's continue this improved record right through to the end of the year. December's holiday season of good will is an especially appropriate time for drivers and pedestrians to exert whatever extra effort is necessary to safeguard themselves and others in traffic."

In the 78-hour holiday periods a year ago, 20 persons were killed during Christmas and 21 during New Year's.

The State Police will devote maximum patrol coverage from 3 p.m. to at least 9 p.m. each day of the holiday periods. Special attention will be focused on highway sections having bad accident experience.

Michigan's traffic toll so far this year already has reached the 2,036 mark, making it the eighth year in a row to top the 2,000 level. The full count for 1970 was 2,177. Record year for deaths was 2,487 in 1969.

DANNY TOLLAS has given the big picture window at the Robert Tollas home on Dixon-ave. a stained glass effect with this Christmas scene.

Some Things Just Can't Be Replaced

Some things just can't be replaced.

For 20 years, Mrs. Harry Gebeau kept two small "hairy" cactus plants in the window of her grocery store on Lincoln-st.

They were planted in blue pottery shoes and were numbered among her most prized possessions.

Last week, one of the cactus plants and its ornamental planter turned up missing.

Some things just can't be replaced.

Particularly 20-year-old cactus plants in blue pottery shoes.

County Valuation May Skyrocket $43.4 Million

Although figures are only tentative, it appears that Charlevoix County is in for a whopping increase of $43,302,593 in its state equalized evaluation (SEV) next year, County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard told the County Board of Commissioners last week.

The increase would boost the county's state equalized evaluation from $99 million to $141.8 million.

All of which means that local tax levies should bring in more tax dollars next year, unless the levies are lowered to compensate for the increase.

The new evaluation is the result of a year-long study by the State Tax Commission on Charlevoix County property values, based on the cost property of various types in the area.

Mrs. Blanchard pointed out that the study is not yet complete, and that major industries such as the East Jordan Iron Works, Gulf and Western Corp., Freedman Artcraft Engineering and the Medusa Portland Cement Co. plant have yet to be studied.

Among cities, Charlevoix showed the largest increase in SEV, $5.9 million. The SEV increase for Boyne City is $2.4 million and for East Jordan $2.3 million.

Among townships, Eveline showed the largest increase, $6.9 million.

Other townships showed more modest SEV gains: Bay, $2.19 million; Boyne Valley, $2.53 million; Chandler, $394,542; Charlevoix, $2.4 million; Evangeline, $745,694; Hayes, $2.9 million; Hudson, $1.3 million; Marion, $1.5 million; Melrose, $3.6 million; Norwood, $1.1 million; Peaine, $1.4 million; St. James, $884,792; South Arm, $2.4 million; and Wilson $1.8 million.

In other business, the commissioners:

- –Increased wages of county employes by 5.5 percent.
- –Liberalized the county's vacation pay policy.
- –Agreed to pay 100 percent of Blue Cross insurance costs.
- –Heard a report by Mrs. Blanchard on the progress of county assessors toward certification, which is mandatory by Jan. 1. Townships without certified assessors will be assessed by the Equalization Department.
- –Increased membership in the Zoning Commission from five to nine members.
- –Discussed a dog vaccination clinic.
- –Accepted a State Farm bid for Sheriff's Department Fleet insurance, $534.10.
- –Awarded publication of the commission's proceedings to Gregg Publications.
- –Agreed to hold a public meeting, early in January, on the proposed Monroe Creek Impoundment. The hearing was requested by officials of South Arm Township.

Levi Donaldson Spread Safety Gospel in North

Funeral for Levi A. Donaldson, 62, northern Michigan's foremost exponent of safety, will be held at the United Missionary Church in East Jordan at 2 p.m. Wednesday, the Rev. Dale Turner officiating. Burial was in Southern Cemetery, Central Lake. The body is at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth.

Levi Donaldson

Mr. Donaldson, originator of the annual spring "Safety Meetings" in Ellsworth, died unexpectedly Sunday at his home in Ellsworth. He had been in poor health for several months.

His safety work started almost 22 years after his son was injured severely in an auto accident. While waiting in Charlevoix Hospital reception room for his son to return from surgery, Mr. Donaldson vowed to do something to promote safety.

The "Safety Meetings", which never failed to draw an audience of several hundred persons, were the result. They earned Mr. Donaldson the honorary title of "Mr. Safety" among his townspeople in Ellsworth.

He was widely regarded among law enforcement officers on both local and state levels for his pioneering work in promoting traffic safety.

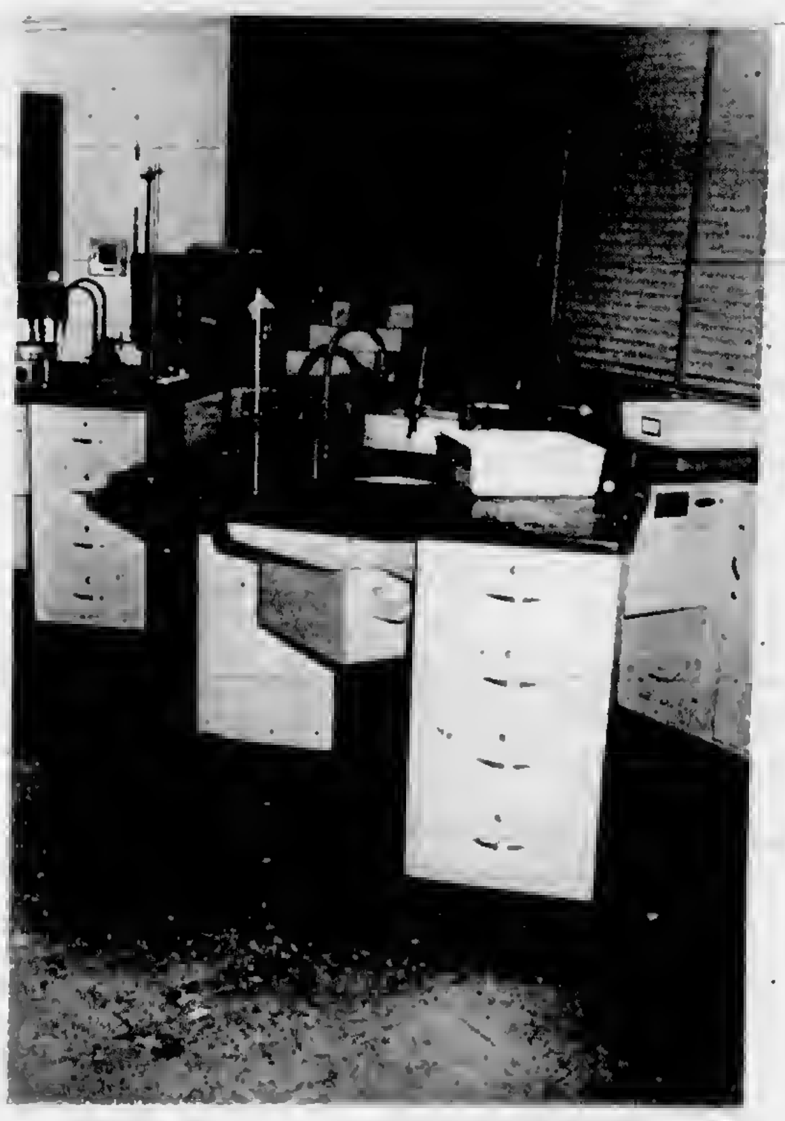
Mr. Donaldson served as transportation supervisor for the Ellsworth Community School for 35 years, retiring last June. He also was a member of Ellsworth's Volunteer Fire Department for 35 years, including several years as chief.

He also worked as an Antrim County deputy sheriff, Ellsworth village marshal and street overseer.

He attended the United Missionary Church in East Jordan and for a number of years taught Sunday school to Sixth grade level boys.

Born in Antrim county Feb. 17, 1909, Mr. Donaldson married the former Beatrice Smalley at Gaylord on May 4, 1930. They always lived in Antrim county.

Besides his wife, he is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Dermont (Barbara) Poley of Tecumseh, Mrs. Warren (Gwen) Frank of North Bay, Ont., Mrs. Wrenn (Nancy) Haley of Petoskey, Mrs. William (Donna) Stevens and Mrs. Lawrence (Sandra) Bergmann, both of Charlevoix; five sons, Allan of Long Beach, Calif., Jack of Dorr, Joel of Ellsworth, Ronald and Terry of Central Lake; 19 grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Wormell of Petoskey and Mrs. Jack McPherson of Ellsworth and a brother, Milton of Lansing.



THREE Charlevoix High School chemistry students and their teacher, James Jensen, suffered cuts from flying glass Thursday about 4:45 p.m. when an after-hours, extra-credit experiment exploded. Treated and released at Charlevoix Hospital were Randy Winchester, Bill Wilson and Ted Schantz. Above is the glass strewn lab table where the explosion took place. The school building was not damaged. Fortunately, all of the boys and Jensen were wearing safety goggles.

Club Holds Greens Sale

By JOAN BURKEY

The East Jordan Garden Club held its annual Greens Sale Friday Dec. 3, a most successful project. The money has not been earmarked, but will be early next year.

The Garden Club has donated many hours and dollars to civic projects, such as the Nativity Scene on Main-st. and the Mall, also on Main-st, where shoppers can sit for a few quiet moments.

The money received this year according to President Mrs. Hugh Gidley, will be spent on another project designed to add beauty to East Jordan.

The next meeting of the Garden Club will be Jan. 17 in the Educational Building of the Presbyterian Church.

Carol Jean Annis, Bruce Livingston Exchange Vows

Carol Jean Annis became the bride of Bruce A. Livingston in ceremonies Dec. 18 at the First Congregational Church, the Rev. Gordon Mitchison officiating at the double-ring rites.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs . James Annis, 207 Nettleton. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Livingston of 213 Antrim.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pink polyester dress with Empire waist and carried a bouquet of white mums.

Phyllis Miner of Galesburg, Mich., played "Trumpet Voluntaire" as the processional and "Prelude in Classic Style" as the recessional.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Daniel White of Kalkaska who wore a white and navy herringbone suit.

Daniel White of Kalkaska was best man.

Assisting at a reception hosted by the bride's parents were Mrs. Stan Harwood of Flint, Mrs. Michael Weeb of North Point and Mrs. Donald Livingston of Lansing.

The bride is a senior at Western Michigan University and recently completed her directed teaching in music in Charlevoix schools. The bridegroom works for the Charlevoix County Tax Equalization Department.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Annis wore a white metallic knit suit with red accessories. Mrs. Livingston wore an antique gold knit dress with navy accessories.

Out-of-town guests attended the ceremony from Dearborn, Flint, Lansing, Kalkaska and Galesburg.

The couple are making their home at 309 West Wood-st., Charlevoix.

Homemakers Vie For Scholarships

By PATTI WARNER

The Betty Crocker testing was given to all 12th grade girls to give them the opportunity to earn unrestricted college scholarships and for use in the study of nutrition.

The test was given on Dec. 7, 1971. They will be scored and selections of Homemakers of Tomorrow at local and state levels will be made by Science Research Associates of Chicago, Ill.

In each school, the senior girl with the highest score on a knowledge and aptitude examination covering a broad area of subjects related to homemaking will be named local Homemaker of Tomorrow. She will receive an award charm, and her paper will be entered in state-level judging.

The highest ranking Homemaker of Tomorrow in each state will be awarded a $1,500 college scholarship and an expense-paid educational tour of historic shrines in eastern-United States. A $1,000 Betty Crocker scholarship will be given to the girl testing highest in nutrition.

Winners will be announced Feb. 1.

Bowling Next For GAA

By Denice Wagner

On Dec. 15, 1971 the Charlevoix Girls Athletic Assocation meet at the High School gym for their Christmas party. A volleyball game began the evening and the night ended with refreshments that the members brought along to the meet.

The next activity was discussed was bowling. Sign up is being taken in Mrs. Marie Osterberg's office and Bowling will begin soon at the Paul Bunyan Lanes south of town.

Latin Students Hold Saturnalia Party

The Latin Club held its annual Saturnalia party Dec. 14 in the high school cafeteria. Saturnalia was the Roman holiday, celebrated around Christmas time, in honor of the Roman god Saturn.

The party began with a short business meeting. The date for the next meeting was set and a committee was appointed to plan it. The business meeting concluded with a reading of the history of Saturnalia.

The business meeting was followed by a skit entitled "Jo Saturnalia". Those who participated were Rae Anne Slone, Bill Wilson, Mike Kane, Laurie Bradley, Laura Custer, Sheilah Brady, Peg Berg, Jan Graf and Cheryl Coppens.

After the skit, members of the club took part in Roman Charades and prizes were awarded to the four players with the highest points.

The game was followed by group singing of Christmas songs in Latin.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the party.

Club Plans Sleigh Ride

By Steve Kantola

The Spanish Club is busy making plans for a fund raising dinner and a sleigh ride.

The club put on a Thanksgiving play last month, re-enacting the Pilgrims' landing at Plymouth Rock in Spanish.

Club to Sell Pom-poms

By Jeff Lachman

The Pep Club has begun planning a basketball homecoming for sometime in February. This was suggested during the club's last meeting Dec. 9.

It was decided that pom-poms will be sold at basketball games at a cost of two for 25 cents.

Indian Memorial Awaits Action by Interior Chief

Following is a monthly status report on the Planning Department by Director William Mercer:

This month has been hectic, as usual, and I feel that the Department has accomplished quite a bit. The following covers what I was involved in the past 30 days.

INDIANS MEMORIAL

After the flurry of activities during October and November as a result of the Task Force report, this issue is currently in a "hold" position awaiting comment from the Secretary of the Interior. The results of his review of the Task Force report will determine what happens next on this issue. I will keep you informed as the information crosses my desk.

COUNTYWIDE ZONING

This program is advancing, although slowly, as I have been meeting with more and more of the Township Boards and with other local groups. The suggestions and feelings of these people will be very helpful to the newly formed Zoning Commission and will help us put together the best Ordinance and program for the County. If any of you have questions as to the content of the zoning ordinance or any other related zoning situations, give me a call or stop in and hopefully, I can answer them.

ANTRIM-CHARLEVOIX-EMMET
US 131 / 31 COMMITTEE

This body of representatives from the three County Planning Commissions met together for the first time and discussed briefly the reasons for the group's existence. We then talked about the next meeting and it was left open until after the holidays.

At that time the committee will begin to outline what they would like to achieve by the locating of this major expressway, where (roughly) they would like to see it located and what feeder routes should be developed as major county highways.

This group is getting together to work out a program to submit to the State Highway Department as a guide for the planning of the expressway. We also hope to firm-up the dates for construction and to coordinate any work planned by the three County Road Commissions. I will be telling you more on this in the coming months.

LAW ENFORCEMENT
PLANNING STUDIES

I have spent some of the Departments time the past month working on two studies concerning the Law Enforcement Planning Component (LEPC) of the Northwest Economic Development District. One of these concerns a Police School Liaison Officer, and the other, a two county (Emmet-Charlevoix) Interdepartmental and Resource Management Study.

Both studies involve Federal monies, and are being administered by the Office of Criminal Justice Programming. Although they are structured on a 75 percent - 25 percent matching basis, the county's share can be met with "soft" match, or administrative funds and, therefore, shouldn't involve any "hard" cash.

I will be telling you more about each program as they progress out of the application stage and move into the working phase.

NORTHWEST MICHIGAN
EDD

I thought here would be a good place to discuss this Regional Planning agency and what its meaning is to Charlevoix County. The major good that has resulted, as far as I'm concerned, from our association with this group, has been to deal with the State and Federal Agencies administering programs in this area of the state. For example, during the time period October 1970 to October 1971, the Housing and Urban Development Agency (HUD) certified the Northwest Michigan District for approval of 10 percent additional funding on the East Jordan Sewage Treatment Facility. Charlevoix is also applying for an additional 10 percent on their project. This, in itself, is worth the involvement of the County, both in money and in time spent.

As further projects (such as the LEPC studies) come about, I will inform you through the Status Reports.

Library Notes

This is the season when everyone is saying "Merry Christmas" and "thank you."

The library staff would like to express their thanks and appreciation to their many patrons who have made so many generous donations this past year.

One of the most recent gifts was an ancient calf-bound Indian Bible, translated into the Chippewa language in 1857.

It was presented to the library by Junius Dixon, grandson of John Dixon, one of Charlevoix's earliest pioneers.

The staff also like to say thank you to RCA Record Co. for a gift of classical records which arrived just in time for the Christmas season.

Other important gifts include a box of historical scrapbooks of early Charlevoix. These will be placed in the Michigan Room where they can be enjoyed by all the old-timers who remember how things were in town when the scrapbooks were put together by Mrs. Mina Dawson, a beloved and remembered friend.

And a special thanks to the patrons who have donated beautiful Christmas books, fine art books, all-occasion books and books for special occasions as well as children's books and good new top fiction.

The staff extends holiday greetings to all their patrons, with special thanks to those who have contributed so generously to the library.

Dr. Kohn's Essays Shed Light on Yule

"Seeing Stars," by Harold E. Kohn, Tidings, Nashville, Tenn. $1.

Dr. Harold E. Kohn's latest book, a paperback called "Seeing Stars", is off the press and on sale in area bookstores.

Like his earlier books, most of which have been published in hard cover, "Seeing Stars" is a series of short, inspirational essays, with illustrations by the author.

The volume is dedicated to Lawrence and Mildred Tenhopen, "our successors in the Gospel ministry, cherished friends and faithful servants of Christ."

Rev. Tenhopen succeeded Dr. Kohn as pastor of Charlevoix's First Congregational Church and is now making his home in Elk Rapids.

Dr. Kohn and his wife, Marian, live at Hidden Brook, a woodland retreat near the Lake Charlevoix shore east of Charlevoix.

Most of the essays in "Seeing Stars" are keyed to the Christmas and are rich in anecdotes which shed a fresh light on the holy mysteries of the season.

The book also contains several short prayers for the Christmas season, including "First Day and Last Day:"

"Eternal God, my Father, help me to live today in joyous wonder and gratitude, as if it were the first day I had ever seen. And may I live this day responsibly, intensely and meaningfully, as if it were my last day on earth. Amen."

The book derives its title from a short essay entitled "Seeing Stars:"

"Only in the darkness do we see the stars; and when the night is darkest, stars shine most brightly.

"It was the darkness of their times that made it possible for wise men to follow the star to the manger of Bethlehem where they found Christ.

"Wise men of every age learn how to use darkness to find the Light, and the gloomiest times to find God."

What keeps Michigan running?

Every one of us uses an average of three gallons of oil every day.

So do all the other 205 million Americans. Oil and natural gas supply 75 percent of our energy needs: almost all transportation, most of what is used for cooking and heating, more than 40 percent of all our electricity.

A country that runs on oil can't afford to run short.

Hess Still Undefeated

Bankers Rally In Vane

By Dave Sheppard

After three weeks of play in the Independent League, Hess Furniture remains the only undefeated team in the league.

Wednesday night Hess played the First State Bank in what looked to be an easy match in the first quarter with Hess leading 20 to five. But the First State Bank came back slowly to bring the score within six points at one time late in the last quarter before their leading rebounder Gale Sheldon fouled out of the game. Hess Furniture began to stall making the First State Bank foul them to get the ball.

The quarterly scores were: 20-5, 35-21, 50-36, and the final score, 66-55.

High point men for Hess were Bruce Meggison with 28 and Joe Beaudion had 21. For the First State Bank Dave Sheppard had 18 and Gary Stutzman netted 10.

In a controversial game Thursday night with Best Insurance from Ellsworth, Hess won a close one by the score of 47 to 46. In that game some of the Ellsworth players and some of the spectators complained of lopsided reffing on the part of Sam Supernaw. The Ellsworth team never did get into a one-and-one situation, while they were called for 14 violations which ultimately cost them the game.

There has been some indication that a commission meeting may be called over the holiday break to look into this matter.

The quarterly scores of the game were: 15-12, 24-23, 36-35 with the final outcome 47-46. High point man for Hess was Bruce Meggison with 20 and Joe Donaldson with 10 points for the losing team.

In other action around the league last week Ellsworth representatives defeated Medusa 54-49 giving the Best Insurance team their second win while handing the Medusa team its third loss.

Quarterly scores were: 13-14, 26-25, 38-36, and 54-49. High point for Ellsworth were Donaldson with 13, and Chet Drenth with 10. For Medusa Joe Battle had 14 and Bob Holtzman with 12.

Also on Wednesday night the Head Shop defeated Andy's Tire world in an over time contest by one point, 81-80. This handed Andy's their first loss in four outings and put them in a tie for second in over-all standings with the Head Shop. The quarterly scores were: 18-10, 35-38, 54-61, 73-73, overtime 81-80. High point men for the Head Shop, Ostrum 24, Boss 20, and Buchanan 17. For Andy's Steve Smith lead all scorers with 33, Doan 20 and Hans Frank had 16.

Andy's Tire World had another close one Thursday night with the Topside Lounge. This game also was decided by only one point, but Andy's came out on the winning side this time. This defeat dropped Topside into third place in their division with one win and two losses. Topside led all the way with quarterly scores of 24-15, 37-34 and 54-50, but lost in the last minutes of the game 76-77. High point man for Topside and the game was Lee Cross with 27. Steve Smith had 25 points leading Andy's to their third win in four outings.

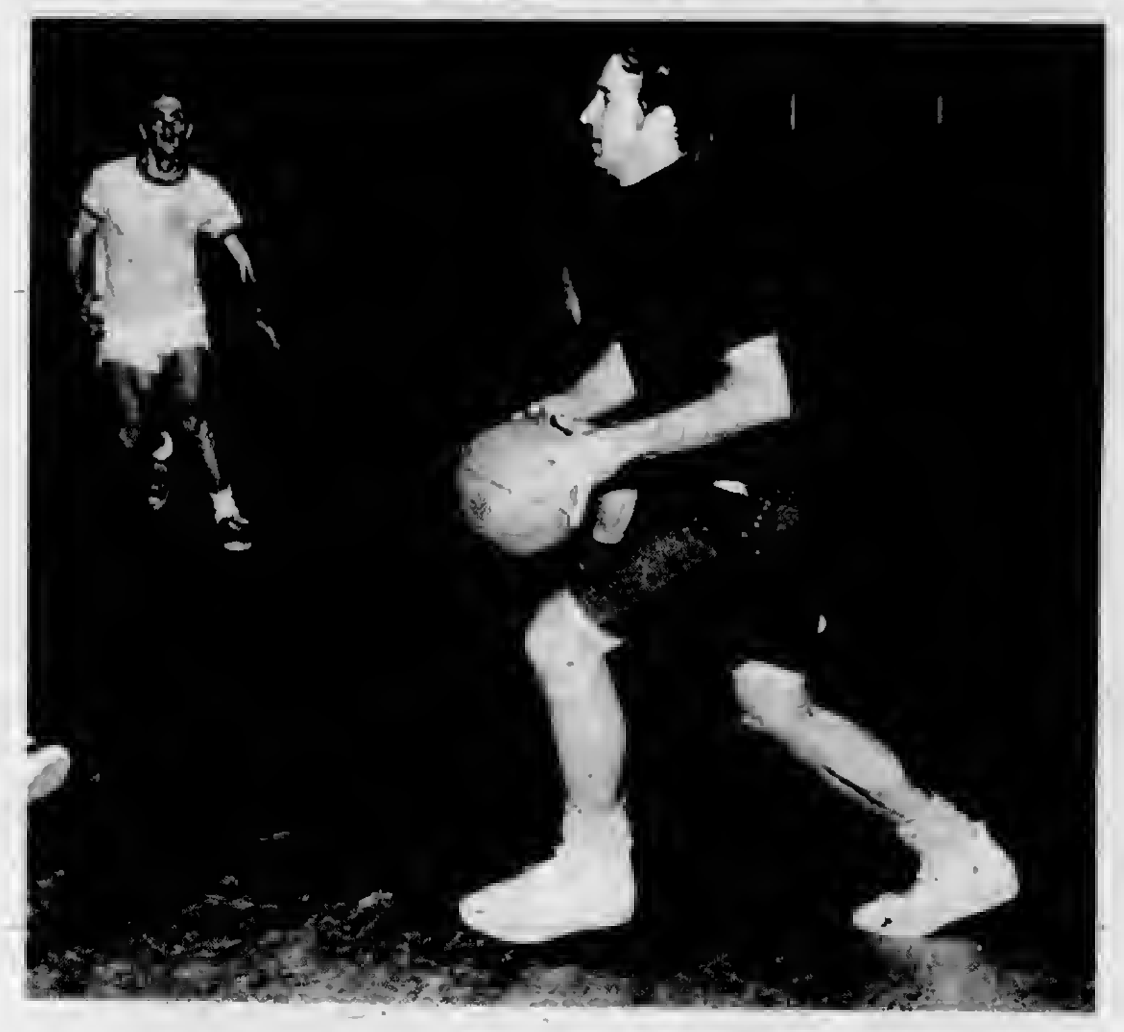
Thursday night the Head Shop handed Kusina Motors their third loss in as many outings, 83 to 64. Kusina stayed within striking distance in the first quarter 16-11, but lost ground steadily after that, 41-31, 63-50 and 83-64. High point man for the Head Shop was Ostrum with 27 to lead all scoring and for Kusina Kelly had 18.

After three weeks the division standing are as follows:

STANDINGS

Division A	W	L
Hess	4	0
Head Shop	3	1
Topside	1	2
Medusa	0	3
Division B
Andy's	3	1
Best	2	2
First State	1	2
Kusina	0	3

League action will resume after the holidays on Jan. 5 with the First State Bank taking on Medusa and Topside Lounge tangling with Kusina Motors. Thursday night will pit Andy's Tire World against undefeated Hess Furniture and Medusa and Kusina Motors will battle it out for last place in the over-all standings.



DEAN MIKULSKI, a member of the Kusina team, shows his style in game with the Head Shop. The Head Shop won, 83-64.

CO-CAPTAIN Pat Linse won on a default over Don Asam of Rogers City in last week's match with Rogers City. The loss gives Charlevoix wrestlers a one-one record for the season.

Matmen Lose to Hurons

Charlevoix Varsity wrestlers lost a lop-sided match to Rogers City Dec. 15, with the score 46-18.

The Rayder matmen made only two pins in 12 matches, lost three decisions and won another by default.

Each six-minute match is divided into three two-minute bouts. Six points are awarded for a pin, four points on a decision of the point spread is 10 or more, three points on a decision if the point spread is less than 10 and two points for a draw.

Following are the results of the match by weight class. Time is indicated for each pin.

98—Gordon Kandow pinned Dan Key, Charlevoix, :37.

105--Pat Ganske pinned Terry Mol, Charlevoix, 2:46.

112—Eugene Krueger pinned Jeff Thorp, Charlevoix, 2:43.

119—Angelo Centala pinned Jim Borths, Charlevoix, 1:18.

126—Andy Centala pinned Jeff Groomes, Charlevoix, 1:20.

132--Charley Borths, Charlevoix, lost a decision to Eugene Hopp, 6-4.

138—Co-Capt. Pat Linse, Charlevoix, won on a default over Don Asam (third in state class B last year.

145—Ken Karsten won a decision over Paul Klooster, Charlevoix, 14-0.

155—Russ Fairbanks won a decision over Don Mort, Charlevoix, 7-4.

167--Marc. Custer, Charlevoix, pinned Dave Mulka, 2:36.

185—Co-Capt. Gordon Skeel, Charlevoix, pinned Tom Yarch, 3:55.

The Rayders were scheduled to play a scrimmage match against Kalkaska Monday.

The next matches are scheduled at Glen Lake Jan. 6 and at Charlevoix Saturday, Jan. 15 at 7 p.m. against Shepherd.

JV Wrestlers Blanked by Rogers City

Jayvee wrestlers drew a blank Dec. 15 in their match with their Rogers City counterparts. The score was an embarrassing 30-0.

Following are the results of the five matches:

119--Ken Centala pinned Terry Drew, 2:55.

138--Warren Kowalensky pinned Jeff Himebauch, 2:41.

138--Mike Renus pinned John Ozga, 2:20.

145--Ted Schantz pinned John Zielaskoski, 4:41.

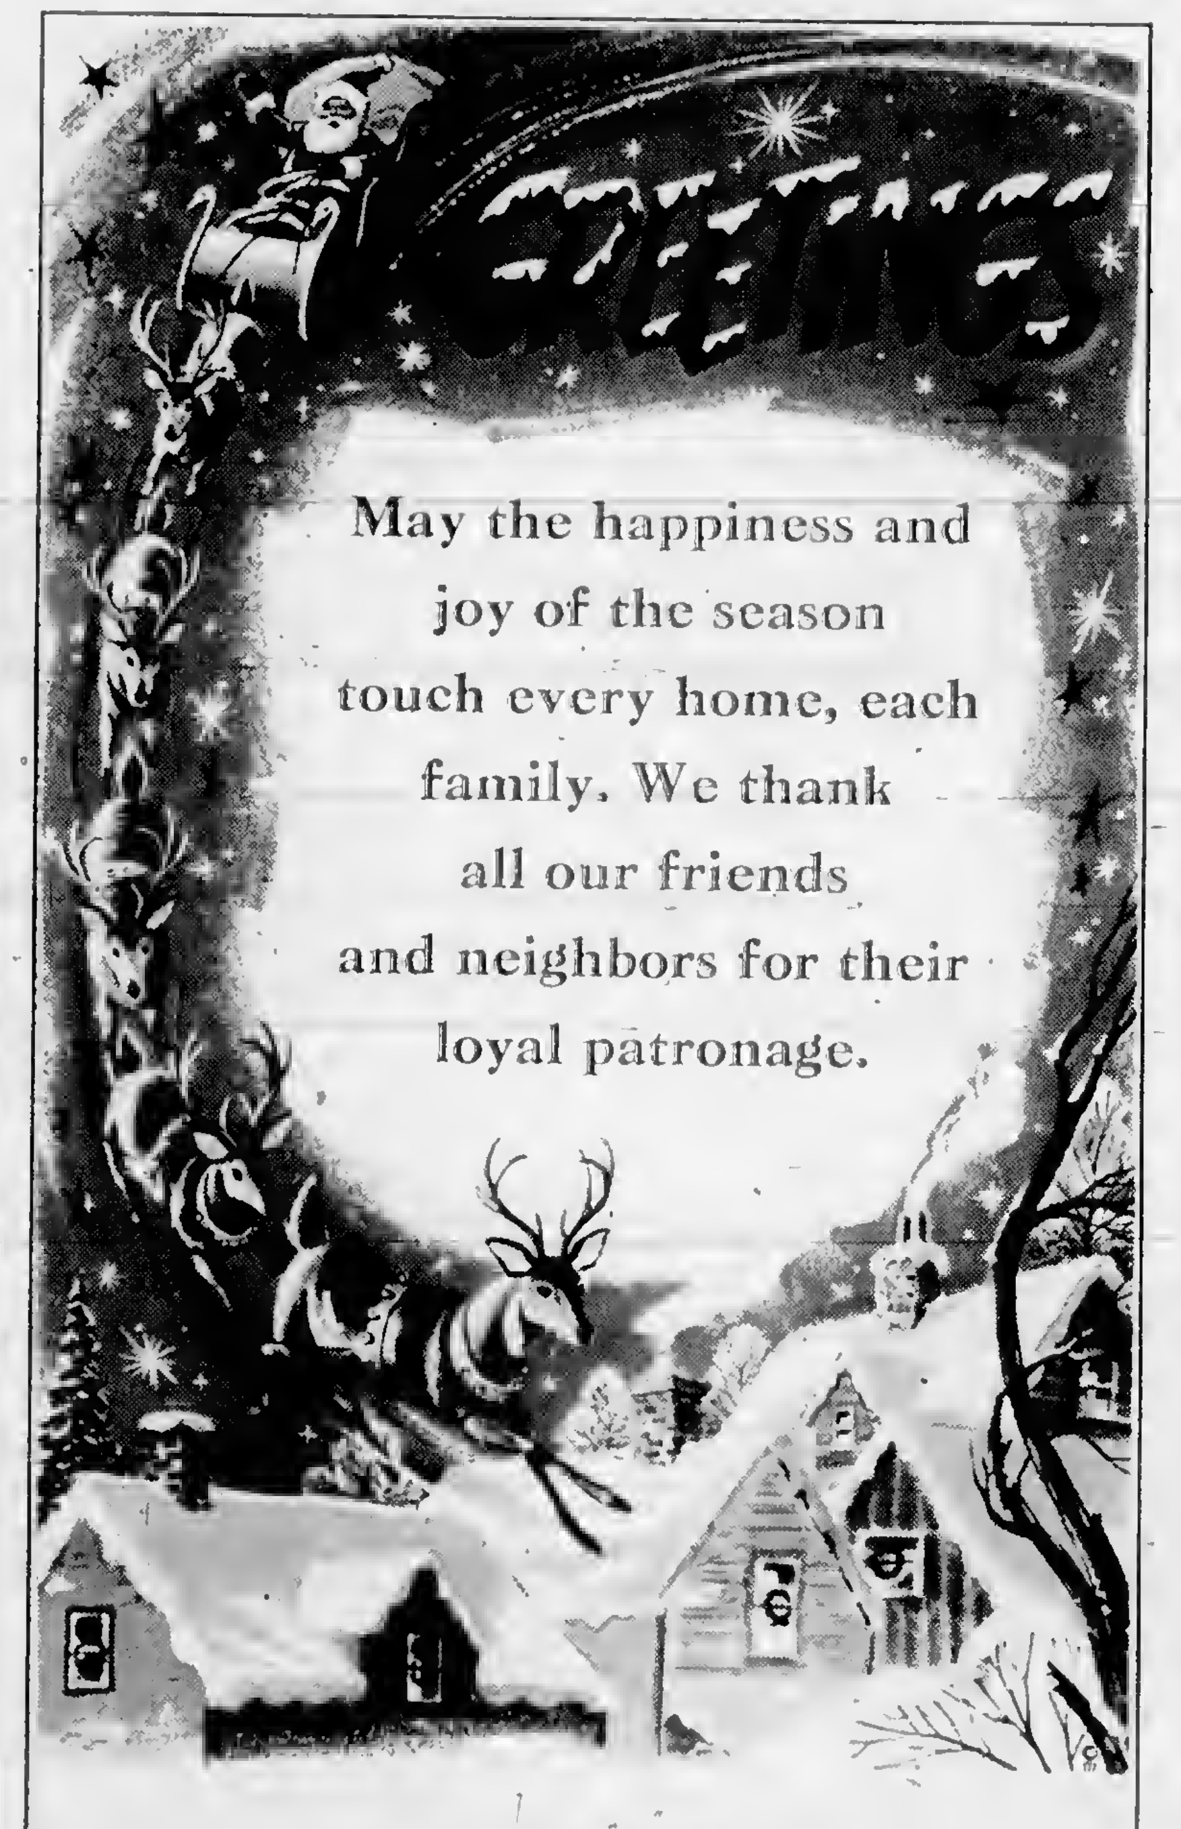
155—James Plath pinned Bill Thorp, 1:26.

DRIVE CAREFULLY

The holiday season is hectic enough as it is, so don't rush when behind the wheel. Fast driving may get you there in time – or it may not get you there at all.

AVOID TRAVEL

New Year's Eve is an especially bad time to be on the highways. Don't drive unless you have to. Another driver, who has been enjoying holiday spirits, might make you his one mistake for the road.



May the happiness and joy of the season touch every home, each family. We thank all our friends and neighbors for their loyal patronage.

Asks Northern Counties To Ban Doe, Fawn Kills

THIS ANCIENT log cabin, relic of another era, faces yet another winter on its lonesome hilltop north of East Jordan.

Rep. D.J. Jaeobetti (D-Negaunee) announced today in Lansing that he has written each County Board Chairman of the 43 counties North of Townline 16 to adopt local ordinances banning the shooting of antlerless deer. He stated that, "if all 43 counties would adopt such an ordinance and present them to the Governor he will most likely sign them into effect because such a large area of the state will have expressed themselves through their duly elected county commissions."

Jaeobetti continued by saying, "I made this request directly to the Commissioners because through the lobbying efforts of M.U.C.C. from the metropolitan areas, it has been impossible to have the House and Senate Conservation Committee vote out the deer moratorium bills in their committees to the floor of the House and Senate." Jaeobetti pointed out to the Chairmen in his letter to them that "advisory votes to ban antlerless deer hunting in a number of counties were from four to one to as much as ten to one favoring a moratorium on the shooting of antlerless deer. In fact in some townships where the deer reside, the citizens voted thirty to one against the Department of Natural Resource's policy."

Jaeobetti declared that some of the reasons for his approval to the counties were as follows:

1. The Department of Natural Resources has refused to listen to the majority advisory vote of its people living in deer areas as well as the expert opinion of hundreds of sportsmen who have actually lived in the deer hunting areas.

2. If the Department would apply their own reproductive capability of deer statistical figures, the disastrous results of shooting does would be very apparent. The does are the Department's breeding stock. Let us look at the results of shooting does in 1959, one of the years of a heavy antlerless kill.

"It is estimated that if a minimum of 76,812 does of the total antlerless deer kill of 115,220 in 1959 season had been allowed to survive and their subsequent female offspring, they would have produced 3,072,480 by 1969. This estimate is based on the Department's own statistical figure of the capability of deer to reproduce themselves. Let us assume that an additional 600,000 of these deer would have starved because of a lack of food supply the last five years. It would be very safe to assume that an additional two million deer would be added to the present deer herd in Michigan."

Jaeobetti concluded by saying, "dairy farmers buy more cows if they want to increase their production of calves and this is a proven fact in animal husbandry. Therefore, how can the Department of Natural Resources' people say if they were going to increase the dairy herd they would do so by shooting off a large percentage of cows. The D.N.R. antlerless deer policy simply does not add up and something must be done and will be done before the next deer season.

Lions Club Readies Baskets for Needy

By Beth Genelt

As a Christmas community project the local Lions Club collected food supplies for 18 needy local families through the cooperation of Leroy Buchanan of the Oleson Food Store and Richard Edwards of Edwards IGA Store.

Members of the Club manned a shopping cart at each store to accept food items donated by customers.

Distribution of the food packages was made under the direction of Mrs. Jean Miles of the District Health Department, with Jesse Penn, chairman of the committee and five members of the club assisting.

Lion Jim Cunningham was the latest winner of the attendance contest and Steve Ager the last loser.

The club had as guest speaker last Monday Mr. Morley Fraser of Albion College who gave a very informative talk on the latest methods of citizens cooperation in the control of drugs in their community.

Plans are being made for Charter Night to be held at the Weathervane Inn on Saturday, Jan. 15, to observe the 10th anniversary of the foundation of the local club.

Moonlight Gardens, Alias The Woodshed, Has New Owners

The restaurant-bar business may be new to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bagnasco and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bourke, new owners of the Woodshed, but the food business is not.

Before moving to northern Michigan, both couples were active church workers at St. Marys of Redford, serving up to 3,000 meals on a single weekend at church fairs.

The Bagnascos and the Bourkes became friends at the church functions and decided at the same time that their families would find a better life in the north.

The Bagnascos have moved to Gaylord with their eight children: Paul, 17; Steven, 15; Christine, 14; Rick, 13; Cathy, 12; Carol, 9; Cindy, 6; and Larry, 3.

The Bourkes have moved to Charlevoix with their four children: Ed, 12; Mike, 11; Kevin, 9; and Bobby, 6. They are living at 210 E. Hurlbut.

Bagnasco formerly was a carpet layer in Detroit. Bourke was an elevator inspector for the City of Detroit. They decided to go into business for themselves somewhere in northern Michigan.

While looking for a store to buy in the Gaylord area, they heard that the Woodshed was for sale and it was a case of love at first sight.

Details of the transaction were completed two weeks ago, and Bagnasco and his wife, Gerrie, and Bourke and his wife, Gerry, are now running the business.

According to Theo Jeffrey of East Jordan, the Woodshed was built by his father, the late Allen T. Jeffrey. Construction was started in 1927 and completed in 1928.

The original name was the Moonlight Gardens and the concrete-reinforced maple dance floor is reputed to be one of the finest in the state.

Jeffrey died in 1935, and the business was run by his widow, Mrs. Della Jeffrey, until 1959 when it was sold to Jim and Ann Lawyer.

The Lawyers kept the name Moonlight Gardens and operated the combination bar and dance hall until 1965 when the business was purchased by Dick Wood of Oyster Bay. Wood refurbished the building inside and out and renamed it the Woodshed.

THE WOODSHED, a landmark on U.S. 31 North, has changed hands. Here Dick Wood (left), former owner, discusses transaction with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bagnasco and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bourke. At right is Dan Vreeland who handled the sale for Jerry Lesher Realtors, Inc., of Petoskey.

District Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Judge W. Richard Smith:

Byron S. Holland, 56, Ellsworth, was assessed $105 and surrendered his license for 90 days on a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Max C. Murray, 33, Charlevoix, plead innocent to a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He demanded a jury trial, which will be held later.

Donald Willis, 21, Charlevoix, plead innocent to a charge of assault and battery lodged by Paul LaFreniere. Willis demanded a jury trial, which will be scheduled later.

Mike Lapeer, 16, and John Trojanek, East Jordan, plead innocent to a charge of furnishing alcoholic beverages to minors. They demanded a jury trial which will be held later.

An assault and battery charge lodged against Frank Damer, Boyne Falls, was dismissed on the request of the complaining witness.

Louis Hadix, 46 and Barbara Hadix, Boyne City, plead innocent to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minor children. Trial will be held later.

Michael D. Straw, 17, Charlevoix, was assessed $25 on a charge of careless use of firearms.

William Boal, 43, Charlevoix, waived examination on a charge of embezzlement and was bound over to the January term of Circuit Court.

Frank Stucker, 65, East Jordan, was assessed $50 on a charge of petty larceny.

Frederick D. Brewer, 34, Petoskey, plead guilty to a reduced charge of impaired driving. He will be sentenced later.

John Underwood, Boyne City, was sentenced to five days in jail on a charge that he was a disorderly person.

John Andrew Fortune, 37, Clarion, plead guilty to charges of hunting while intoxicated and aiming a firearm at persons. He will be sentenced later.

Magistrate's Court

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix last week by District Court Magistrate John Connolly:

Laureen Harris, 17, Charlevoix was assessed $15 on a charge of improper backing of an automobile. An accident resulted.

Rayder Debaters Tie With Rudyard

By Lisa Wasoski

On Tuesday, Dec. 6, Rudyard High School came to Charlevoix for a debate meet.

Rudyard brought four teams making it possible to go eight rounds of debate, including four affirmative rounds and four negative rounds.

Debating for Charlevoix were Lisa Wasoski and Steve Kantola, affirmative; Debbie Rank and Sue Pettis, affirmative; Jeanne Belfy and Carolin Swartout, negative; and Lauri Heeres and Vicki Skelton, negative.

Charlevoix won four rounds and lost four rounds making it a tie meet between the two schools.

This meet was not a tournament league meet, but was held mainly for practice.

The Charlevoix team entered its final league tournament in Petoskey on Dec. 18. Debating for Charlevoix were Lisa Wasoski, Steve Kantola, Jeanne Belfy, Debbie Rank, Carolin Swartout and Sue Pettis.

For future plans in debate, Charlevoix is planning an invitational meet to be held on Jan. 8. Charlevoix also will go into district competition for debate on Jan. 15 hoping to continue on to regional tournaments. The tournament date is not definite.

Christmas Letter

By JIM FITZGERALD

Dear friend, relative, neighbor, old schoolmate or anyone we met on vacation last summer:

Once again it is Christmas time. Time to report to all you people we love so much. A lot sure happened to our family in 1971.

Son Richard got his first job. He's 4th assistant manager at Kroger's on the corner, in charge of bagging. We're so proud of him. In March he celebrated his 32nd birthday.

Daughter Marcia gave us our 11th grandson last January. For keeps. She reports that there are wedding bells in her future. I think this means she's engaged but Dad says it means she's got something going with the church janitor in the belfrey.

Remember Aunt Stella who drives the school bus? She won't be here for Christmas dinner. The school sent her to Fort Knox for 8 weeks of combat training.

Our youngest son, Ralph, is still going to Michigan State University. He visited us a couple of weeks ago, we think. It's hard to tell for sure with that beard and hair. Ralph says he doesn't want a job when he graduates, he just wants to go to San Francisco and love his fellowman. Dad told him to take Richard and Marcia with him.

Our cousin Henry, that's Stella's oldest, has steady work on TV. He sweeps up the hall after the aspirin lectures.

My brother Sam's boy Tom is still in Vietnam. He's been there eight years and swears he won't come home until he meets Bob Hope. Dad says he should hold out for Ann-Margaret.

Now that he's 65 and retired from GM, Dad is getting more interested in politics. He's thinking of running for police commissioner. He says if he could hold onto that job until he's 90, he'd then be old enough to become director of the FBI.

Daughter Connie had her first date last summer and it was the cutest thing. When the boy asked to kiss her goodnight, Connie told him to wait a minute and then she ran in the house and wrote a letter to Ann Landers. They are still waiting for an answer, while looking at each other through the window. Connie celebrated her 38th birthday in June.

My sister Annette was elected president of an anti-pollution club. To help keep the earth clean, she made a great buy from The Man from Glad and she is now following the rodeo from town to town.

Cousin Harriet is happy again this year. You remember she was married to the Chevrolet dealer but he divorced her? Well, now he has recalled her. Dad says Harriet will probably be out of the bump shop by New Year's.

That's all I have room to write this year. Marcia said if I kept my Christmas letter to 1 page she would make 500 copies on the church Xerox Machine. She knows the janitor, Dad says.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Weidman's Daughter Is Cited for Service

Mrs. James Forrest of Rochester has been named the recipient of this year's Community Service Award she has informed her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T.R. Weidman of Eaton-st.

The award is given annually by the Rochester JayCee Auxiliary to a young woman who has made significant contributions to her community.

Mrs. Forrest, the former Emmy Weidman and the mother of two children was nominated by the Newcomers' Club and was among five young women who were candidates for the honor.

She is an active member of the American Association of University Women, the Children's Theatre and Another Mother for Peace and the Rochester Area People for Ending the War in Vietnam Now.

She works at Neighborhood House in addition to teaching Sunday School at St. Luke's Methodist church. She has also created a Babysitting Co-op in Rochester.

Her other interests include the Human Relations Council, volunteer work for organizations such as the Cancer Society, campaigning for school board candidates, helping out at I.B.I.D. (Drop In Center) and serving as chairman of the Church Education Commission.

Northern Michigan Mourns 'Mr. Safety'

Northern Michigan has lost a good friend in the person of Levi Donaldson.

Although Mr. Donaldson called tiny Ellsworth his home, his reputation as "Mr. Safety" was known far and wide across the state.

Twenty-one years ago, after his son was involved in a serious automobile accident, Mr. Donaldson vowed to "do something" to promote safety, particularly traffic safety.

In 1950, Mr. Donaldson called his first "Safety Meeting" at the Ellsworth Community School. He summoned safety experts, law enforcement officers and others involved in traffic safety to discuss their problems with the people of Ellsworth.

To Mr. Donaldson's surprise, the whole town turned out and "Safety Meetings" became an annual event in Ellsworth, complete with prizes offered by local merchants, entertainment of all kinds---usually with a safety motif---and refreshments.

Over the years, Mr. Donaldson has managed to secure some of Michigan's foremost speakers to attend the annual meeting to discuss his favorite subject—Safety. And attendance at the meetings never flagged, as more and more Ellsworth residents and their neighbors in nearby communities began to grasp the importance of Mr. Donaldson's work.

As supervisor of Ellsworth's school bus garage, he was in a unique position to insure that community youngsters traveled to and from school in vehicles that he judged to be safe from stem to stern.

He also had an opportunity to promote safety as Village Marshal, Antrim County Deputy Sheriff and Ellsworth fireman.

The Ellsworth School District had planned a testimonial dinner for Mr. Donaldson in January -- a fitting tribute to a man who has given so much of himself to others.

But such a dinner really wasn't necessary.

The turnout at each of Ellsworth's "Safety Meetings" over the past two decades stands as an eloquent testimonial to Mr. Donaldson and his work.

The Courier hopes that Ellsworth will honor his memory by continuing to hold the Safety Meetings that consumed so much of his time and talent.

WISH I'D SAID THAT

"As we watch world problems, it might be well to remember that a child can ask a thousand questions a wise man cannot answer." — Ed Kummer, The Eaton (Colo.) Herald.

We Can Do What Kids Did at MSU

Letter to the Editor:

Never in your wildest dreams would you or I or any other taxpayer ever PLAN to build a highway right through the center of Michigan State University Campus–yet, that is exactly what the State of Michigan's Highway Department did! And it's taken them ten years to boot to come up with such a hair-brained scheme.

Guess who squelched the deal? The trustees of the University.

Why? Because of STUDENT PRESSURE! And how come the students carry so much clout all of a sudden?

Because they can VOTE!

I just returned from Lansing and you should have seen the long faces around the Olds Plaza. For the first time our so-called public servants have been called to a halt. No longer can they run rampant with their cement roads cutting through anything that stands in their way including university campuses. Their battle cry, "We're in the business to move traffic" is at long last being challenged by people who care about other things than the traffic count at the corner supermarket.

I hope our young people in Charlevoix will take heed. If someone doesn't excert similar pressure on our local council, we can forget the last two words of Charlevoix the Beautiful, because this town can't STAY beautiful without help.

Charlevoix can't STAY beautiful when our city council allows Michigan-ave. to be classified as a major thoroughfare by the State Highway Department. This classification means that the State Highway Department can put up stop lights, widen the street, cut down all the trees and make it into another Petoskey-ave. We already have the school buses; how long will it be before the semi's will follow? And what happens to the assessed valuation of this prime residential property? The small sum the city gains from the State to pave the few blocks involved can't be that important when balanced against what the city stands to lose!

The decision is up to our local council. – Or is it? Maybe the real decision is up to YOU!

Edith Gilbert

Uncle Harry's Christmas Gift

By Bob Clock

Hilary O'Hara plunked herself down in the big armchair in the living room, her apron still wrapped around her ample waist, and stared blankly at a boys choir on television singing Christmas carols. Without warning Hilary's eyes filled with tears.

It was Christmas Eve, but this Christmas was going to be different without Harry–the late lamented Harry O'Hara whose benign and pudgy likeness beamed down on her from its gilt frame on the mantle. Overweight and sedantary, Harry had come to his expected end at age 50, the victim of an acute coronary occlusion.

Hilary glanced up briefly at the photograph of Harry, replete in his pin-stripe blue suit and diamond-studded lodge pin, but she turned away abruptly with a feeling something akin to anger. After all, Harry had no business dying like he did last August leaving her to face the holidays alone.

It would have been different, Hilary thought idly, if there had been children. Then they could have consoled each other over Harry's passing, and when Christmas came they could have made a brave show of putting up a tree and all, even though their hearts wouldn't have been in it with Harry gone.

But there were no children and there never had been, except for the neighborhood youngsters who dropped around every Christmas morning to see what Santa had left for them under "Uncle Harry's" Christmas tree.

This year, of course, there was no Christmas tree in the big O'Hara living room. Hilary told herself it would be unseemly for a widow of only four months to undulge in such frivolity. In truth, she was just too worn out, mentally and physically, to bother. She hadn't even sent out any Christmas cards and she hoped her few scattered friends and Harry's handful of former business acquaintances would understand.

All of a sudden, Hilary was startled from her somber reveries by the ear-shattering clatter of winter boots on the front porch, the frozen boards sounding like a wooden drum. She had just started to raise herself from her chair when she heard a familiar voice which made her fall back again, mouth open.

"C'mon right along, boy. I'll open the door and we'll squeeze her in trunk first so we don't break any branches."

Hilary's eyes opened as wide as her mouth as the front door burst open and in marched Harry–her late lamented Harry–tugging the trunk of a bushy Scotch pine in one hand and balancing a gigantic sack of gift-wrapped Christmas packages in the other.

"Here, you take these," Harry boomed, literally throwing the sack full of parcels at Hilary, who was now standing, albeit unsteadily. "I have to help this young fellow with his Christmas tree."

Hilary knew right from the start that she was dreaming, but she had never had a dream that was quite so vivid or smelled quite so Christmasy as the big Scotch pine. Grasping the parcels, she looked beyond Harry and the tree, and sure enough there on the porch was a little fellow, not more than eight years old, hanging onto the small end of the tree.

Hilary put the bag of parcels on the floor and looked on speechless while Harry and the boy maneuvered the tree into its accustomed corner of the living room. Then Harry walked briskly toward his wife and planted a wet kiss on her startled lips.

"Now, my dear," he said, "young Freddie and I would appreciate your fixing us a bite of supper while we trim the tree. It is Christmas Eve, you know, and there's no time to waste."

"Harry! Harry O'Hara!" Hilary fairly shrieked when her voice returned. "What in the world are you doing playing Christmas up here on Hill-st. when you should be dead and buried down in Evergreen Cemetery!"

"Shhh!" Harry cautioned, raising his forefinger to his lips. "Don't want to alarm the boy, do you, talking about cemeteries and the like."

"And who is the boy?" Hilary asked again, this time almost under her breath. "Is he from the neighborhood? I've never seen him?"

"No, you don't know him," Harry said, but he's going to be spending a few days with us. Maybe longer. Name's Freddie Mason and he comes from over around Centerville."

"Freddie!" he called, turning toward the boy who was brushing snow from the pine boughs, "Come here a minute. I'd like you to meet Mrs. O'Hara–the best cook in seven counties. She's going to fix us some supper while we trim the tree."

"Pleased to meet you, m'am," Freddie said, nodding his mat of brown curly hair in her direction. "You've got a nice house here and a nice husband. Uncle Harry and I had a good time shopping."

"Thank you, Freddie," Hilary answered, managing a smile.

Satisfied that she was dreaming, Hilary went to the kitchen to rustle up hamburgers and fried potatoes while Harry and the boy made a great to-do about finding the tree stand and stringing the lights, both of them laughing like schoolboys. Hilary was strangely happy, too, cooking again for someone besides herself. She set places for two at the kitchen table, and when the tree was decorated she called Harry and Freddie in for supper, hovering around the table like a head waiter while they ate.

After supper, they all trooped back into the living room to admire the tree. Harry had placed all the packages he had brought under the boughs, one for every boy and girl in the neighborhood, a small red one with a tag reading "Hilary" and several big ones for "Freddie." Then the three of them sat close together on the big davenport while Christmas carols emanated softly from the television.

"It's not such a bad Christmas, after all," Hilary thought to herself "even though I'm dreaming."

When the bell in the city hall tower boomed 10 o'clock, Harry reached around Hilary's shoulder and rumpled Freddie's hair.

"It's time for you to get to bed, young fellow. Christmas will be here before you know it."

"I'll fix up the spare room," Hilary said. "And I'll find one of your old nightshirts for him. It'll be too big, but I guess that won't matter."

Freddie didn't say anything, but his eyes wore the sleepy look of a little boy who has had a busy day.

Freddie said goodnight and Merry Christmas to Uncle Harry and followed Hilary up the long flight of stairs to the spare bedroom. Hilary found a pair of sheets in the linen closet and a warm woolen blanket on the closet shelf. Then she disappeared into her own room across the hall and emerged a few minutes later with one of Harry's old red nightshirts.

"Santa's going to think he has a twin brother if he peeks in and sees you in this," Hilary laughed handing it to him. "But no one's going to know except you, Santa and Mrs. O'Hara, so I wouldn't worry."

Hilary bid Freddie goodnight and was about to leave the room when the boy stopped her.

"Mrs. O'Hara," he said timidly.

"Yes, Freddie," Hilary answered, turning toward him.

"Mrs. O'Hara, do you think that because it's Christmas Eve, and all, that it would be all right if...if..."

"Yes, Freddie?"

"Do you think I might call you Mom – just for Christmas?"

The next thing Hilary knew the boy was folded in her arms, his sleepy head pressed against her breast.

"Of course it is, Freddie. Of course it is. I'll be your Mom tonight and tomorrow and as long as you like."

When Hillary returned to the living room, Harry was gone. At first she was tempted to believe that he had just run down to the drugstore or across the street to a neighbor's house. But she knew that Harry was dead and had never been home for Christmas Eve. Furthermore, there was no boy named Freddie upstairs who wanted to call her Mom. She had been the victim of a delightful Christmas hallucination, spawned in loneliness and nurtured by wishful thinking.

Hilary took a long, last look at the sparkling Christmas tree rising from an undergrowth of gaily wrapped parcels, fully aware that it was nothing more than a mirage. Then slowly, reluctantly she turned off the lights and went upstairs to bed.

In the morning, Hilary arose early and went directly to the kitchen where she fixed a pot of coffee. She didn't know why she hadn't at least made an effort to sleep late, since the whole long day yawned ahead of her like baleful eternity. She had no plans. She had tendered no invitations to dinner nor had she accepted any. And she certainly hoped the neighborhood children wouldn't drop around to bid her a Merry Christmas, since there were no presents for them. A widow, even a fairly well-fixed widow, must watch her spending.

While she was waiting for the coffee to perk, Hilary's eye fell on the kitchen table where two dinner plates, decorated with scrolls of dried catsup, looked up at her. There also was assorted silverware, an empty milk glass and a coffee cup. Hilary's brow creased as she attempted to account for the dirty dishes in her otherwise spotless kitchen, when suddenly she was startled by the sound of footsteps upstairs. With a rush, the details of her lovely Christmas Eve reverie returned to her, and she raced into the front hall to find Freddie, looking for all the world like a sleepy Santa Claus, descending the stairs.

"It's Christmas, Mom, isn't it?" he asked. "Isn't this Christmas Day?"

"Of course, it is," Hilary laughed. "You didn't think I would let you sleep right through, did you?"

She welcomed Freddie with a kiss and a hug. Together they walked into the living room where the big Christmas tree in the corner was barely discernible in the first faint rays of Christmas morning.

Hilary hurried to plug in the lights and the tree came alive with flecks of color dancing among the glittering ornaments.

"It's the nicest Christmas tree I've ever seen," Freddie gasped. "Are there really presents for me? When I woke up, I was afraid I was dreaming."

"So was I," Hilary said, close to tears. "Now you get down there and see if you can find any presents marked "Freddie."

While the boy busied himself under the tree, Hilary slipped into the kitchen and picked up the telephone. In a second, she was talking to a deputy in the sheriff's office.

"I hate to bother you on Christmas morning," Hilary began in a low voice, "but do you have a report on a missing boy named Freddie Mason, from over Centerville way?"

"Sure do, m'am," the deputy answered. "Have the report right here in front of me. Runaway from the Centerville Orphanage." "Caucasian, brown curley hair, brown eyes, four-feet, seven inches tall."

Hilary explained that the boy has showed up at her home quite unexpectedly the night before.

"We'll send a car right over to pick him up," the deputy said.

"Oh, please don't," Hilary begged. "I mean, there's no hurry. He might as well spend Christmas here with me."

"Well, if you don't mind," the deputy said. "We're always understaffed on Christmas as it is. According to the report he's really not a bad boy. Orphaned ah the age of two, no close relatives, a ward of the state. He had some trouble with bigger boys at the orphanage and ran away."

"Is he adoptable?" Hilary asked, almost breathless.

"Why don't you check with Probate Court tomorrow," the deputy suggested. "In the meantime, I'll call the orphanage and tell them Freddie is in good hands."

Hilary returned to the living room to find it a psychedelic bedlam of Christmas wrappings, toy soldiers, an electric train, a dump truck and assorted half-opened boxes bulging with shirts, trousers, underwear and socks — with Freddie reveling in the middle of it all.

"I've never gotten so many presents in all my life," Freddie said looking up at Hilary, the sleepy look replaced by a look of wonder and excitement. "But there are other presents here for Jim and Jerry and Betty and Ken. Who are they?"

"They are children from the neighborhood," Hilary explained. "They'll all be over before long to wish us a Merry Christmas."

"And here's one for Hilary," Freddie said, picking up a small package wrapped in red. "Is that you, Mom?"

"That's me," Hilary said, reaching over to take the package from him. Inside was Harry's diamond studded lodge pin, the one she had affixed to the lapel of his blue suit down at the funeral home. With it was a little note in Harry's handwriting which read: "Hilary, dear, how many times must I tell you that diamond's are a girl's best friend?"

Hilary looked up at the beaming likeness of Harry on the mantle. She was surprised, although she shouldn't have been, when the portrait winked, a long, slow, mischievous wink.

'Messiah' Came Close To Meaning of Christmas

Mrs. Eleanor Steen of Charlevoix thinks that someone -- somewhere -- should give Gig Stewart and his area vocalists a pat-on-the-back for the marvelous job they did Sunday afternoon in presenting Handel's "Messiah" at the Petoskey Junior High Auditorium.

And the Courier heartily concurs.

The "Messiah", as music lovers know, is not the easiest oratorio to present. Some passages are extremely difficult, testing the mettle of even the most accomplished musicians.

To present the "Messiah" with a chorus composed largely of amateur vocalists, with only two rehearsals, requires a rare expertise on the part of the conductor. That expertise is found abundantly in Gig Stewart.

The Courier adds its thanks to that of Mrs. Steen and thousands of area music lovers who enjoyed the "Messiah" Sunday afternoon, either in person or on radio.

You Can't Stop in Time If Tire Tread is Worn

Those "thrills of a lifetime" experienced by skiers swishing down the ski slope will also be felt by motorists driving on bald tires in winter weather.

"Safety experts estimate even in good weather nearly one third of the cars on the highway have one or more bald tires," says Ross R. Ormsby, Chairman of the Tire Industry Safety Council. "If this figure holds true for winter weather and its related increase in driving hazards, a lot of motorists are asking for trouble."

The Council advises drivers that the coming season is no time to economize by continuing to drive on bald or worn tires until next spring. Any tire worn to 1 16 inch or less in two or more adjacent tread grooves should be immediately discarded and replaced, and when feasible with a regular snow tire, or a safety studded snow tire.

Bald tires in snow or ice conditions at the critical temperature of 32 degrees offer no traction, and thus starting and stopping ability are practically nil. Even if the motorist can get his car out of the driveway, he won't be driving down the road, he'll be skiing.

The dangers of driving on ice and snow should be obvious to all motorists. Bearing this in mind, consider some of the findings of automotive experts at the General Motors Proving Grounds in Milford, Michigan. Cars with new tires, traveling at 45 miles per hour on wet "good" pavement, had a stopping distance of 100 feet. When tires worn to 1 / 16 of an inch were placed on the same car and driven under identical conditions the stopping distance increased to 140 feet.

Atwood

Sgt. Perry Penfold has returned to Bentwaters Air Force Base in England after spending a leave of nearly three weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Penfold.

The Atwood Reformed Church Circle met at Meadow Brook Medical Care Facility recently so that Mrs. Nellie Uhlinger and other patients could attend. Discussion leader was Mrs. Earl Copeland.

Recent visitors with the Wesley Veenstras and John DeVries were Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Veenstra and son David of Jenison and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kulpers and baby Susan Joyce of Grand Rapids.

Paul Doctor has returned home from Little Traverse Hospital where he was a surgical patient.

The Atwood Homemakers Extension Club met Dec. 14 at the home of Mrs. Henry Burns of a potluck luncheon and business meeting. Mrs. Ben DeVries discussed Christmas foods and members exchanged Christmas gifts. The January meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Frank Ross.

Office Moves

Army, Navy and Marine Corps recruiters are moving from their present location in the J. C. Penney Building in Petoskey to new quarters on the ground floor level of the Born Chiropractic Clinic, 116 W. Mitchell-st., Petoskey.

Appeals Court Upholds City In Shaw Suit

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Cincinnati has upheld a decision by District Judge Albert J. Engel of Grand Rapids dismissing charges by Shaw-Henderson, Inc., of Cheboygan against the city of Charlevoix relative to the awarding of a contract for construction of the city's waste water treatment plant.

Shaw-Henderson sued the city and R.J. Schneider, regional construction grants program director, Environmental Protection Agency, Water Quality Office, on grounds that the Cheboygan firm should have been awarded the contract instead of Clark Construction of Lansing because of alleged irregularities in the Clark bid. Schneider became involved because federal monies are being used in the project.

Two bids were only $255 apart, although Clark was low.

In a brief opinion, the three-man tribunal wrote:

"The appellant (Shaw-Henderson) sued to enjoin the construction of the plant in question and to obtain damages on the theory that under the provisions of the Act the successful bidder was not in fact the low bidder. All of the issues presented have been adequately considered and resolved in the comprehensive opinion of District Judge Albert J. Engel.

"For the reasons stated by Judge Engel the decision of the District Court is affirmed."

John Michael, special city attorney handling the Shaw-Henderson litigation, Shaw-Henderson has until Jan. 4 to petition for a re-hearing and 90 days from Dec. 21 to appeal the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

THE ROBERT TROST residence on Lincoln-st. won first place in the city-sponsored Christmas Home Decorating Contest. Recorded music was piped outside to enhance this Nativity scene.

C-E Building, Site Bonds Approved by State Agency

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley, chairman of the Municipal Finance Commission, announced today that the Commission approved $217,000.00 of "Administration Building and Site Bonds" for Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

Attorney General Kelley said, "The proceeds will be used to defray the cost of erecting the equipping a building to house the administrative offices and staff of Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, and acquiring, developing and improving a site therefore.

The bonds are unlimited tax bonds and will run until 1976. The School District is authorized to levy whatever taxes are necessary to pay principal and interest."

Other members of the Municipal Finance Commission are Allison Green, State Treasurer and John W. Porter, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The bond attorney will receive a fee of $1,059.00.

The new administration building will be located on a tract of land on Mercer-blvd. in Charlevoix to be purchased from the city.

C-E offices presently are located on the second floor of the County Building: Special Education offices are located in a leased building on Stover-rd.

Lease on the Stover-rd. building terminates in June. Intermediate School Superintendent Charles A. Robinson hopes to have the new building ready for occupancy by September.

All Was Calm, Not Bright, On Christmas

Northside residents who stayed up late Christmas night found themselves going to bed by candlelight.

City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna reports that a wire burned through in the Coast Guard Hill area at 11:20 p.m., plunging the entire North Side and a section of the Belvedere Club into darkness.

Because of the nature of the trouble, it took city electric crews about four hours to isolate the problem and restore power.

Prior to the blackout, some residents reported seeing a bright flash.

Gas Fumes Reach City

That wasn't a leak in your gas meter you smelled last Wednesday.

Nor was it a break in a gas line during construction of the forced sewer main on Park-ave.

It was a gas well at Kalkaska, some 55 miles southeast, which covered all of northwestern Michigan with noxious fumes until it was capped.

Apparently, atmospheric conditions were such that the gas was trapped close to the ground.

The odor was reported to be particularly bad in East Jordan.

Council Waives Building Height For Condominium

Acting as the board of review, the Charlevoix City Council last week waived a 35-foot building height limit for the foot of Dixon-ave., paving the way for construction of a 58-unit condominium proposed by Ralph Hess.

Hess said the proposed building will rise 49 feet above Michigan-ave.

The city's waiver is contingent upon the successful acquisition of the property in question, most of which is owned by Charlevoix Properties.

In other business the council:

--Heard a complaint by Art Reibel that City Superintendent Thomas G. Hanna has been uncooperative in his refusal to turn on electric power at the Tower Lodge on Park-ave., owned by Reibel. Reibel said he asked the city last winter to shut off water to the unheated building, but that the city neglected to do so. As a result, pipes froze, damaging the water meter. Hanna said he would restore power only after the repairs and back utility bills are paid.

--Heard a request from Trans-Michigan Airlines, via John Barnes, that the airline would like to provide Charlevoix with air service on a three-month trial basis, beginning March 1.

--Agreed to a $750 inspection and report on the Bellaire dam by R.F. Scott Engineering of Alpena.

--Learned that the C&O Railroad has approved sale of 150-feet of Lake Michigan frontage adjacent to Depot Beach to the city.

--Learned that the Grant-st. hill will be open for sliding from 3 to 5 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m. Mondays through Fridays; from 10 a.m. to noon, from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m. Saturdays; and from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m. Sundays.

License Office to Open

The Michigan Secretary of State's office will open a branch office in the Elzinga-Redeker Building at 710 Bridge-st. on Jan. 3, according to Herman Heuvelhorst, manager.

The office, which will dispense both license plates and driver's licenses, will move to Charlevoix from East Jordan over the New Year's holiday, Heuvelhorst said.

In addition to auto and truck licenses, the office also will handle watercraft and snowmobile registrations.

Charlevoix has been without a Secretary of State's office since last spring when Mrs. Mary Marshall closed the fee branch in Oleson's Shopping Center. Mrs. Marshall said it was impossible to make enough on a fee basis to pay her overhead.

Heuvelhorst, who lives in Petoskey, said that the office will be open from 10 a.m. until 6:30 p.m. on Mondays to allow day workers to purchase plates and apply for licenses in the evening.

Tuesday through Friday the office will be open from 8:30 until 5 p.m. The office will be closed from noon until 1 p.m. each day for the lunch break. It also will be closed Saturdays and Sundays.

Well Drillers Hit Gas

The Leo Riegler Well Drilling Co. of Muskegon struck a powerful pocket of shale gas Tuesday near the junction of Waller-rd. and Martin-rd. while drilling a second water well for Charlevoix Township.

Oscar Stroud, township supervisor, said that the gas blew a column of water, mud and sand from the hole, splattering the well drillers, but that no one was injured.

The well is about 100 feet from the township's first well, which has been capped for future use after producing 400 gallons a minute.

Work on the second well was stopped after hitting the gas until geologists can determine the size of the pocket, Stroud said. Work is expected to resume in January.

The wells are part of a township project to establish a municipal water supply for township residents.

Here's What Made News in Charlevoix in 1971

The year 1971 will be relegated to the history books at midnight Friday.

On the international scene, it was a year that saw a winding-down of the ground war in Vietnam, new strife in India and Pakistan, and the first thaw in the cold war between the United States and Communist China in 22 years.

Nationally, Americans took pride in two successful flights to the moon. And in August they pulled in their belts in a nation-wide attempt to bring inflation under control.

On the state level, lawmakers and policymakers wrestled with financial problems, land use problems, school problems and the age-of-majority problems.

And in Charlevoix-the-Beautiful, here is what made news in 1971:

Icebreaking to Start In January in Area

U.S. Coast Guard icebreaking operations on the Great Lakes will begin in early January in order to keep shipping lanes open.

Forecasts of ice conditions indicate rapid freezing conditions on the northern lakes and rivers.

Ice fishermen, snowmobilers, iceboaters and anyone who uses the frozen surface of these waters are advised to use extreme caution when venturing on them.

Areas where icebreaking will take place will include Whitefish Bay in Lake Superior, the St. Mary's River, the Straits of Mackinac, and possibly Grand Traverse Bay, Charlevoix, Escanaba, and Marquette, Mich., and Duluth, Minn.

It should be noted however, that operations will not necessarily be limited to just these areas.

The Coast Guard will make every effort to notify the public when icebreaking will be conducted in any area.

District Court

The following cases were heard last week in Charlevoix by District Judge Wayne Richard Smith:

Brian F. Potter, 19, Charlevoix, waived examination on a charge of breaking and entering and was bound over to the January term of Circuit Court.

John H. Crandell, 37, Boyne City, waived examination on charges of arson and burning personal property. He was bound over to the January term of Circuit Court.

Melvin J. Blain, 31, East Jordan, demanded examination on a charge of statutory rape. Examination will be set later. Blain was released on $2,500 personal recognizance bond.

Lawrence Wynsma, 49, plead guilty to a charge of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was assessed $105 and his driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

Frederick D. Brewer, 34, Petoskey, plead guilty to a reduced charge of unpaired driving. He was assessed $100 or sentenced to 30 days in jail.

New Rights Imply New Responsibilities

By Sue Haertter

Beginning Jan. 1, 18 through 20 year-olds are going to exercise several newly attained responsibilities. The young adults of Charlevoix will have the following new rights and responsibilities:

The right to vote.

The right to drink alcoholic beverages.

Parental consent is no longer necessary for marriage.

Voluntary commitment to a mental institution and the right to petition for involuntary commitment of next to kin.

Parents will not have to sign agreements.

The right to receive general relief including medical care under the States' welfare law.

May make a will.

The right to claim workmen's compensation if injured while working.

May obtain a permit to operate a billard hall, bowling alley, or soft drink emporium.

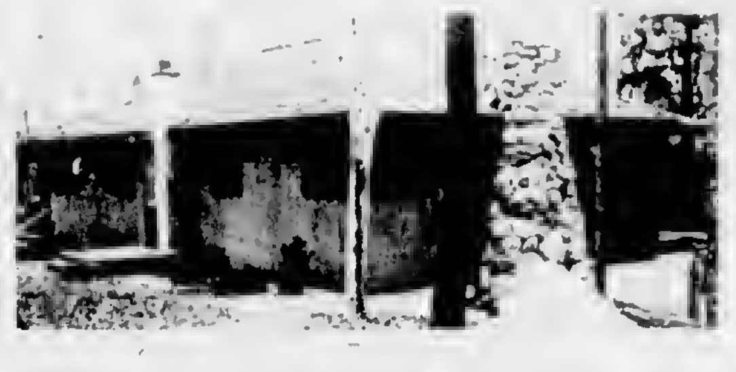
May be appointed a notary public.

May drive a school bus.

As anyone can see, the new rights are emancipating, but also carry new responsibilities.

THIRD GRADE students at St. Marys School made this Nativity Scene as a class project before the Christmas holidays. From left are David Herboldsheimer, Teresa Browe, Eric Mays and Joe Sladek. They are in Mrs. Dee Ann Rothenberger's room.

WORK is progressing rapidly on the forced main down Park-ave. The main will connect the present sewage plant on Round Lake with the new plant on Lake Shore-dr. The old plant will become a pumping station when the project is completed next year.



Modern home with 20 acres, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, swimming pool, stream on property, and many added features. $48,000.

News from Ellsworth

Mrs. Anne Osterbaan
Phone 588-2433

Miss Jean Sommerville of Gaylord is spending her Christmas vacation with her mother, Mrs. Flossie Sommerville and families.

Mrs. Maude Patterson returned last week after spending a month in Southfield. Mrs. Patterson took care of the children of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Patterson while they enjoyed a vacation in Aruba Island off the Coast of Venezuela. Accompanying the Pattersons were his sisters and husbands. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stout and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mascho. Maude Patterson also attended the wedding of her granddaughter Corrine Mascho and Al Branstrom of Southfield on Dec. 11, 1971.

Roy De Vries, son of Mr. and Mrs. Siebe De Vries, who is attending Asbury Theological Seminary this term had charge of both worship services at the Wesleyan Church Sunday.

We extend the Season's greetings to everyone and to help you get a wise start in 1972, here is a bit of sage advice "Close your eyes to the faults of others and, you will open the doors of friendship."

The teenagers of the Wesleyan Church and the Christian Reformed Church went out caroling Wednesday evening and also enjoyed a hay ride.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jansen and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Heeres were in Grand Rapids to attend the musical program of the "Kings Choraleers" in the Civic Center Dec. 19. Don formerly was a member of the Choraleers before moving to Ellsworth this fall.

Our schools closed Tuesday, December 21, for the holidays and will have vacation until Jan. 3, 1971. We are glad with our kids and also other "older kids" that we received several inches of "The Beautiful."

Mrs. Mary Balch entertained Sunday with a pre-Christmas dinner for her grandsons and great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Balch and three children from East Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Balch and one child from Charlevoix.

Mrs. John Klooster and Mrs. James Rubingh were in Grand Rapids Wednesday, Agnes on business and Gertrude to call on her son's wife, Mrs. Allen Rubingh, who recently had back surgery.

How much gasoline does a Michigan baby use?

Not much? Well, every man, woman and child uses an average of three gallons of oil products every day.

All told, America uses 600 million gallons daily. And demand is increasing so fast that by the time this baby is 15 years old, he and every other American will be using six gallons every day.

A country that runs on oil can't afford to run short.

Girl Scout Magazine Seeks Manuscripts

American Girl Magazine, the official publication of the Girl Scouts of the USA is for the second year in a row, inviting all girls 17 or under to submit original contributions for a special April issue. The entire magazine, from cover to editorial, will be created by interested contributors, who will be paid up to $100.00 for any material accepted. Last year, over 30,000 entries were submitted for this special issue.

A special award of $50,00 will be given for a "Boythink" page written by a boy. Boys are also welcome to submit contributions in other categories as well.

Girl Scouts in the 11-County Crooked Tree Council, supported in port by the Charlevoix Community Chest, are urged to submit their entries before Jan. 7, 1972. A note from parent or guardian certifying the originality of the work and confirming that proposed rate of pay is acceptable, will be requested only when a contribution has reached the semifinal stage of the judging.

Entries are to be addressed to April 1972 American Girl, 830 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022, and must have name, address and age on each piece of work submitted.

Further information is available at the Girl Scout Office, 235 Grandview Parkway, Traverse City.

Charlevoix COURIER Editorial page

Calls JBS Attack Unjust

December 16, 1971

Editor, The Charlevoix Courier

Once again you have compelled me to take time from my very busy Birch schedule to set the record straight. Your most recent attack on Rep. Richard Friske should be repudiated paragraph by paragraph, but I won't take the time. His outstanding effort of fighting for God's Law and the constitution of the United States and his defense of our personal liberties since becoming our representative in Lansing is a matter of public record. It is a record he may be justly proud of and does not have to be defended. But your unjust attack on the John Birch Society does.

First of all, I would like to urge you to control yourself. You are obviously becoming quite paranoid. First thing you know, you will start seeing Birchers every time you eat an apple, get your pants pressed, buy an electric light bulb or get your hair cut. Birchers don't have to worry about where the enemies of the United States are, we know. All anyone has to do to find such enemies today is read the newspaper-any newspaper.

We do "see communist inspired, sutanical scheming behind" some seemingly innocent facets of American life, even some "modern architecture", but most positively behind the teaching of pornography to our children in school under the banner of sex education.

The courier has not "given valuable news space" to an explanation of "Friskes" Liberty Amendment. First of all it is not "Friskes" nor, as I have reminded you in the past, is it the John Birch Societies.' The Liberty Amendment committee was begun and has been directed for twenty-eight years by Mr. Willis Stone of Los Angeles, California. Through the efforts of this group, seven of our sister states have passed this important liberty saving amendment. Being only 13 years old (this month), the John Birch Society could hardly take credit for this wonderful work. Admittedly, the Courier has used much space to confuse its readers about just what the Liberty Amendment is.

Finally, I must remind you again that our doors are always open. Any Bircher would be most happy to assist you with an educational program that would aid you in understanding just what is going on in the world around you. If you would accept this invitation, I am sure you would not find it necessary to continue to use your usual smear tactics when discussing us. Such as your most recent,—"the pernicious doctrine of The John Birch Society, a tightly-knit band of right-wing extremists—". Really now Mr. Editor, the big boys aren't using this cheap cliche smear tactic any more. You know (and have known for almost two years now) that we are saying there is a diabolical communist conspiracy of a small group of people who are working to set up a one world (U.N.) communist government. That these men intend to rule slaves, not peers, and they consider themselves to be the intellectual, political, and economic elite. Now why don't you attack that? Is it because you know we can prove it? You know you did sit through a portion of our seven hour seminar awhile back. Not really long enough to learn many facts I will admit, but long enough to know today that you are avoiding the truth about The John Birch Societies' position and are guilty of distorting this truth in all of your editorial comments concerning the Society.

In closing, I urge you once again to ask one of our many dedicated members in Charlevoix to teach you what the John Birch Society is all about. Our newest film "An Overview Of Our World" covers most of it in just two and one-half hours. Surely you owe that much time to yourself and this wonderful community.

Sincerely,
Malcolm W. Dale

Merry Busing

By Jim Fitzgerald

During the Christmas season, mean is meaner.

The bum who robs the blind beggar in July barely makes page 52 of his local newspaper. But the same crime committed Dec. 20 makes front pages all over the nation as it is revealed the beggar was saving his money to buy a Christmas tree for 103 orphans.

The idea is that every man is supposed to wear a white hat at Christmas no matter how big a rat he is the rest of the year. And when a man breaks your face while you're singing "Joy to the World" it hurts more than if you'd been singing "Roll Me Over in the Clover."

All of which probably explains why I was particularly stung to receive a hate letter just a few days before Christ's birthday. Usually I use such mail to absorb wet bottle rings. But it was the holiday season, and I'd just been roasting chestnuts over an open Zippo, and this letter made me feel like the robbed beggar and the treeless orphans.

Here's a short quote typical of the entire 3 pages of crud:

"Negroes are poor mostly because they are too lazy to work and they purposely raise very large families, mostly out of wedlock, so they can lay around drinking and love making while the white race works hard to support these ungrateful, indolent darkies......Government by law is forcing us to mix and mate with darkies and raise millions of half-breeds. Stop this forced busing. Let us now read what the Bible has to say....."

And a Merry Christmas to you, too.

Gosh, I don't know what got this darkie hater so excited. All I did was write that a fair man could not oppose busing to achieve racial integration unless he had also opposed the forced busing which has been used for years to achieve racial segregation. Plenty of black kids have been bused out of their neighborhoods, right on by white schools, and there was never a murmer of protest from the suburbs. Forced busing is like dope. It has been a fact for many years but Mr. Commuter didn't get excited about it until the bus stopped in front of his 3-car garage and the driver said "All aboard, Boss."

Admittedly, viewpoints like mine usually create an uncomfortable silence around the punch bowl. So, when the wassailing is in the name of the Prince of Peace, I cop out in the spirit of the season. I talk about what happened to the Detroit Lions. I don't mind a good argument but somehow it wouldn't seem right to get decked along with the boughs of holly.

But how about the Rt. Rev. Richard Emrich, Episcopal bishop of Michigan? Certainly his credentials as a man of peace, particularly at Christmas, are much heavier than mine. However, all the plaster manger scenes were in plain view the other Sunday when Bishop Emrich sermonized:

"I tend to favor the idea of busing, not because it is all clear, simple and without problems, but because the alternative is the tragedy of segregation.....When we meet others, we enter into their lives and hopes and problems, and see ourselves in a different light. If we retreat into our own racial, religious or economic groups, we are not only divided, we are the poorer."

The Bishop's words must have echoed awkwardly in a lot of "good, Christian homes." I hope my darkie hating friend was listening – and thinking. Perhaps he learned something that might let a little fresh air into his bigoted brain. He might even acquire some attitudes of which he isn't ashamed and thereby start signing his name to his lousy letters.

But gosh, that sounded mean, didn't it? Mean is meaner at Christmas. And love is lovelier. Make mine love.

And the same to you, Buster.

Two Moon Flights Made Science News in 1971

Two, epic missions to the moon crowned man's 1971 achievements in exploration and geography.

"As tough as trying to find your way around the Sahara Desert," recalls Alan B. Shepard jr., of the unprecedented journey that took him and fellow astronaut Edgar D. Mitchell of Apollo 14 almost to the lip of Cone Crater–the longest lunar walk to that time.

The two astronauts touched down in the lunar module Antares on Feb. 5 at 4:18 a.m., EST. Stuart A. Roosa orbited overhead in the command module Kitty Hawk.

SYSTEMATIC APPROACH

While earlier missions had emphasized the technology of moon landings, Apollo 14's crew systematically explored the new realm. After 33½ hours on the moon, they lifted off to rejoin Roosa for the three-day 246,200-mile trip home.

The most ambitious effort to explore the moon was Apollo 15, the 25th United States manned space flight.

"The Falcon is on the plain at Hadley," reported astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin after they successfully landed the instrument-laden LM between the moon's lofty Apeanine Mountains and the deep Hadley Rille on July 30.

Alfred M. Worden busily performed experiments above in the command module Endeavour, while his two companions spent more than 18 hours outside their spacecraft and explored 17 miles of the rocky, crater-packed lunar surface in a battery-powered dune buggy called Rover.

The mission rewarded scientists with rare treasures: more than 10,000 photographs, about 100 documented samples of rock and soil weighing 170 pounds, and an eight-foot core tube, which when X-rayed showed 58 separate layers of lunar soil, representing perhaps a billion years of moon history.

Inspired in part by a 1927 article in National Geographic, the astronauts had named their command module Endeavour in honor of the vessel Captain James Cook commanded on his first voyage two centuries ago.

Unmanned space vehicles gathered a wide variety of information during the year. Mariner 9, launched on May 30, streaked 248 million miles to keep a rendezvous with Mars 167 days later. A severe dust storm on the red planet obscured the spacecraft's first pictures.

Scientists hope that instruments and a radio-signal experiment on the orbiting spacecraft will determine Martian surface elevations, atmospheric pressures, and other measurements. When all pictures and data are received on Earth, they want to assemble a topographic map for 50 million square miles of the planet's surface–the equivalent of mapping all the dry land areas of Earth.

Previous United States spacecraft obtained only brief views of Mars on fly-by missions.

While some men reached for the stars in 1971, others plumbed the oceans.

Divers working from mini-subs explored the continental shelf off New Jersey, examined marine life in the Gulf of Mexico, investigated a half-mile-wide hole in the ocean floor 20 miles south of Key West, and studied the sea bottom in the Straits of Florida.

Scientists working out of mini-subs and an underwater habitat began an ambitious research project off the Bahamas on Nov. 29. They will study fish behavior and the distribution of plankton and gauge the fluctuations of the sea level during the last Ice Age.

These projects were sponsored by the Manned Undersea Science and Technology program, begun in August as part of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's effort to increase knowledge of ocean resources and processes.

OCEAN OF ICE UNVEILED

A rare view of the Arctic was afforded by a new National Geographic map that rolled back a canopy of ice and water to bare a panorama still unknown to human eyes–the floor of the Arctic Ocean.

The Arctic map reveals the same sweeping panorama of a waterless ocean that was so spectacular in similar Geographic maps of the Indian, Atlantic, and Pacific Oceans.

The reverse side shows the more familiar view of the Arctic Ocean, but among the updated details of ice pack and surrounding bleak land masses are footnotes outlining man's dramatic attempts to explore the Arctic by snowshoe, ski, sled, ship, submarine, and aircraft.

Far from the frigid Arctic, Qatar, a sweltering sheikdom of 100,000 people on the Persian Gulf, became the world's 146th independent state on Sept. 3.

Little more than 20 years ago, Qatar (pronounced "Kuttar") was one of the world's poorest nations. In a rock-and-sand wasteland about the size of Connecticut, fewer than 20,000 people earned bare subsistence as fishermen or pearl divers.

Then came the oil bonanza that revolutionized life. New housing, office buildings, and shops now line brightly lighted paved streets in Doha, the capital. Fresh water is piped to houses from suburban wells and a sea-water distillation plant.

CONGO CHANGED NAMES

Another country created since World War II switched names in 1971. The Democratic Republic of the Congo announced that it would be known as the Republic of Zaire and its major waterway–formerly the Congo River–would become the Zaire River. Officials at the capital, Kinshasa, pointed out that this was the river's previous name.

In nearby Kenya, Richard E. Leakey, son of the famed anthropologist Louis S.B. Leakey, continued to come up with remarkable discoveries near the shores of Lake Rudolf. His work is supported by the National Geographic Society.

Bones found by Leakey suggest that two types of early man–"Australopithecus" and "Homo"–concurrently roamed the East African plain early in the Pleistocene Epoch some 3 million years ago. A skillfully made stone tool found by his expedition was fashioned 2.6 million years ago.

Although bone studies are incomplete, Leakey speculates that "Australopithecus" probably did not walk erect but instead was a "knuckle-walker" much like present-day chimpanzees and was eventually superseded by the more advanced genus known as "Homo," predecessor of modern man.

Obituaries

Heering

Funeral was held at the Epiphany Church in Port Orange, Fla., Dec. 24, for Dr. William M. Heering, 80, a former Charlevoix chiropractor, with burial in Shady Rest Cemetery.

Dr. Heering died at his home at 5417 Isabel-ave., Port Orange, Dec. 21. The rosary was recited Dec. 23 at the Robert L. Hannah Chapel.

While practicing in Charlevoix, Dr. Heering lived at 202 Michigan-ave. He moved to Florida about 12 years ago.

He is survived by his widow, Helen; two daughters, Mrs. Lois Brune of Potomac, Md., and Mrs. Shirley Campbell of Royal Oak; four brothers, John, August, Felix and Bernard of Port Huron; two sisters, Mrs. Lewis Robbins and Mrs. Clara Wellman of Port Huron; and 10 grandchildren.

Paulson

Funeral for Mrs. Arthur S. Paulson, 57, who died unexpectedly at her home Christmas Eve, will be held at the Peterson Funeral Home in Cadillac at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Burial will be in Maplehill Cemetery at Cadillac.

Born at Boyne Falls, Jan. 25, 1914, the former Violet M. Watkins was married to Mr. Paulson at Cadillac in 1929. They lived there until 1963 except for the year of 1956-57 that they lived in his native city, Oslo, Norway. From 1963 until coming here in 1967 they made their home in Bay City. She was a member of the Mary Martha Society of the First Covenant Church in Cadillac, the American Legion Auxiliary in Cadillac, the Charlevoix V.F.W. Auxiliary and the Charlevoix Women's Bowling League.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Thomas (Jo-Anne) Maxwell of Cadillac; a son, Charles, stationed in Morocco with the U.S. Navy; 13 grandchildren; two brothers, Donald Watkins of Huntington, W. Va., and Cecil Watkins of Mancelona and five sisters, Mrs. John Korr of Mancelona, Mrs. Robert Miller of Southfield, Mrs. Kenneth Woods of Redford, Mrs. James Hawks of Livonia and Mrs. George Hakenson of Barton, N.D.

The family suggests that anyone wishing to honor Mrs. Paulson's memory may contribute to the Michigan Heart Fund.

Rankin

Services for Mrs. Roy S. Rankin, 64, who died Sunday at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey, will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. A.K. Kalkbrenner of the First Presbyterian Church of Petoskey will officiate. Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Born at Pittsburgh, Pa, March 5, 1907, the former Kathryn F. Ferguson was married to Mr. Rankin at Carapolis, Pa., in 1931. They resided in Birmingham until June when they moved here to make Charlevoix their permanent home. They had summered at their Evergreen Point home since 1947. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Birmingham.

Surviving are her husband; two sons, Charles F. of Flint and Robert H. of Fenton; three grandchildren; a brother, John Ferguson of Smyerna, Tenn., and a sister, Mrs. T.A. Marshall of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Drost

CHARLEVOIX – Funeral services for Christine Lynn Drost, five-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Drost, will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Tuesday. The Rev. Robert Rutledge of the Assembly of God church will officiate. Burial will be in Brookside cemetery.

She died early Sunday at the Charlevoix hospital following a year's illness.

Born in Charlevoix Nov. 7, 1966, Christine attended kindergarten in the Charlevoix public schools in September. She attended the Assembly of God Sunday School.

Besides her parents, she is survived by a brother, Larry, at home; her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Drost sr.; of Charlevoix; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Ohmer, also of Charlevoix and her maternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell King of Lansing and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stone of Eaton Rapids.

FIRST Ward winner in the Christmas Decoration contest was the Mont Withers home on Mercer-blvd., decorated by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle King.

Contest Winners

Once again Charlevoix homes are decorated to the hilt for the Christmas season – and once again the city has offered prizes for the best decorations.

First place winners in each ward will receive $25; second place $15; and third place, $10.

Judging was completed last Tuesday night by a committee made of the wives of city officials, chaired by Mrs. Barbara Essenburg, wife of Mayor Andrew Essenburg. Assisting her were Mrs. Clifton Sundberg, Mrs. Robert Gill and Mrs. Sam Supernaw.

Here are the winners they came up with:

FIRST WARD

1. The Mont Withers home at 200 Mercer-blvd., decorated by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle King.
2. The Frank Zednicek home at 505 Central-ave.
3. The Kenneth Coen home at 405 E. Dixon-ave.

SECOND WARD

1. The George Lusk home at 203 W. Hurlbut.
2. The Roger Pischner home at 522 Newman-st.
3. The Joseph Etienne home at 319 Antrim.

THIRD WARD

1. Robert Trost home, 202 E. Lincoln.
2. John Klooster home, 1024 May-st.
3. Forest Muma home, Meadow Lane.

A $15 prize also was awarded to the Hal Forbrigs on M-66 for having the best decorated home outside city limits supplied by city electric power.

SECOND Ward Christmas Decoration winner was the George Lusk home on Hurlbut-st.
